A STRIKE AT THE SHOPS

BOILERMAKERS, HELPERS AND APPRENTICES QUIT LABOR THIS MORNING.

TWO UNION MEN HAD BEEN 'FIRED'

Because They Had Refused to Work With Non-Union Tinners Who Had Taken Places of Union Men on a Strike.

Twenty-three boilermakers, eight apprentices and six helpers, employed at the Missouri Pacific shops in this city, went on a strike at 8 o'clock this morning.

The men struck because two fellow boilermakers were discharged for refusing to go to work with what organized labor calls "scab" tinners.

Yesterday afternoon a union boilermaker was directed to go to the car shops and do some work where a number of so-called "scab" tinners, under guard, were working. He refused to do as directed and was promptly discharged.

The boilermakers said nothing until this morning, when another boilermaker was directed to the car shops to do some work with "scab" tinners. He likewise refused, and was also promptly discharged.

Immediately the entire department of employes threw down their tools and left the place, declaring a strike on account of the treatment received.

The strike is purely local, and other boiler making departments on the Missouri Pacific system are not affected.

One of the striking boilermakers was seen by the Democrat-Sentinel this forenoon and he claimed that the number of men on strike is somewhat larger than the figures given above by Master Mechanic McGraw.

"There is going to be more trouble at other departments at the shops," said the striker, "for the reason that the union men object to working with 'scabs.'

"These tinners at work at the shops are not non-union men, properly speaking. They are 'scabs,' for they came here to take the places of striking union men and perform their work under guard every hour of the day."

On May 15, last, the union tinners and pipe fitters employed at the shops went out on a strike because their demand for an increase of one cent an hour in their wage scale was refused.

There were several conferences between the company officials and a committee representing the strikers, but nothing came of it, and at the expiration of a month a number of non-union men were employed to take the places vacated by the strikers.

These are the men the boilermakers refer to as "scabs," and the union men in the different departments have left them severely alone, as one of the men put it today.

Early this week a gang of ten union machinists quit work because of the employment of the non-union tinners and pipe fitters, but there was no further trouble until this morning, when the boilermakers, their helpers and apprentices walked out.

The non-union tinners and pipe fitters board near the shops, and are constantly under guard. So far there has been no friction between them and the union men, which would not be the case, it is feared, if the new men came down into the city after the conclusion of their day's labor.

J. A. Franklin, vice president of the Boilermakers' union, arrived here from Kansas City on the noon train today to confer with the men in regard to the strike.

ON AN INSPECTION TRIP

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS GOING OVER THE MISSOURI PACIFIC LINES.

SAY NEW TIES ARE BADLY NEEDED

Especially Is This the Case Between Jefferson City and Syracuse and Also Along the Warsaw Branch.

R. H. Oglesby, of Warrensburg; F. A. Wightman, of Monett; John A. Knott, of the Hannibal Journal, comprising the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners, accompanied by T. M. Bradberry, secretary; several members of the Trackmen's union; M. L. Byers, superintendent of maintenance of way department of the Missouri Pacific, and other company officials, arrived here from Jefferson City in a special train of three cars, in charge of Conductor Burch, with Engineer Healy in the cab, at 12:45 o'clock this afternoon.

The party is on a tour of inspection of the Missouri Pacific lines from Jefferson City to Kansas City, and tomorrow will go over the L. & S. division of the road.

"We find the roadbed, track and ties in a very fair condition," remarked a member of the board to a Democrat-Sentinel representative. "The Missouri Pacific has a good roadbed and very good rails, but is badly in need of ties, especially between Jefferson City and Syracuse.

"We will inspect the main line from Jefferson City to Kansas City today, and tomorrow will go over the L. & S. division.

"We recently returned from a trip over the Frisco system, and found the line in a very good condition. That is, the main line, but the branch lines are in bad shape. The Frisco's main line, however, shows up better than the Missouri Pacific main line.

"The Warsaw branch of the Missouri Pacific needs much repairing. Ties are needed at various places along the route, but the company complains that it cannot secure men to do the work."

READY FOR ARGUMENT

Loving Case Has Finished Testimony and Arguments Begin.

Houston, Va., June 28.—In the Loving case this morning the judge stated that the arguments would not begin until this afternoon and the jury was discharged until 2 o'clock.

The attorneys had not this morning finished the preparation of the instructions to be presented to the court It is expected that the fight for instructions will be long drawn out.

Loving looked more composed this morning than at any previous time during the trial.

JURY ACQUITTED PRISONER WHO CONDUCTED HIS OWN DEFENSE.

HE WAS CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

"Don't Send Me to Prison," Alf. Blanchard Begged—He Told His Life's Story With His Wife By His Side.

Kansas City, Mo., June 28.—Alfred C. Blanchard, who discharged his two lawyers in the criminal court Wednesday and received permission from Judge Wallace to conduct his own case, told the jury the story of his life yesterday afternoon and asked it to acquit him. The jury acquiesced. I. B. Kimbrell, the prosecutor, talked to the jurors after the prisoner finished. As a prosecutor Mr. Kimbrell has convicted all except a very few of the prisoners whom he has sought to punish. His speech yesterday was based on facts and the logic of the case. But the jury remembered the prisoner's tears and his pleadings and acquitted him. Blanchard was tried on a charge of attacking Maude Ainsworth, a girl of 13 years.

Blanchard's young wife sat beside him throughout the trial. She wore a large hat, almost covered by artificial violets. A soft white sash was fastened to the hat and tied in a bow knot under her chin. Her shirtwaist was a simple white garment and she wore a plain black skirt.

In making his plea to the jury Blanchard talked in his usual low voice. He leaned against a table and used very few gestures. His long gray hair was brushed close to his head.

"I realize now that I made a mistake in trying to plead my own case," he said. "I should have relied upon my lawyers, but I thought I could bring out some facts that would absolutely prove my innocence. I have not been able to bring those things out as clearly as I wished.

"My whole career has been one of mistakes and misfortunes. I started out wrong. I was educated for a priest. Then I took up law. Both were mistakes. I could not be a priest, I wanted a wife and little children."

Blanchard's four months' confinement in jail had weakened him and he began to tire. He tried to stand upright with shoulders back, but his figure drooped and his face looked worn. When he spoke of his conviction for burglary in Lynn county, Kansas, ten years ago he cried.

"I was a victim of circumstances," he said. "I was found asleep in a room containing stolen goods. I couldn't prove that I did not steal them. I was tried and sentenced to twelve years in the penitentiary."

His tears were falling fast and his voice was very low. He moved over close to the jurymen.

"At Lansing, Kansas, I got these gray hairs. Six years of my life were passed behind the bars. Governor Bailey pardoned me after six years. Why? Because of the deathbed confession of a one-legged man, George McGlaughton, who stole the goods that were found in the room where I was sleeping. The governor saw me personally, clasped my hand and told me that I was innocent.

"Now, gentlemen, are you going to send me back to the iron cells? Are you going to make me again a victim of circumstances? I ask you not to return me to the prison on this false charge. I ask you not to tear me from my wife. I ask you to set me free. Thank you."

The prisoner sank weakly into his chair. His wife clasped his hand and smiled at him.

The case went to the jury a few minutes after 4 o'clock. It took three ballots. One man voted twice for conviction, the rest for acquittal. An agreement was reached at 5 o'clock. After returningg a verdict of acquittal each juryman shook hands with Blanchard, who wept profusely. When the news spread to the prisoners in the jail they cheered loudly.

A FATAL FAMILY FIGHT

WOMAN KILLS HER SISTER-IN-LAW BY CUTTING HER THROAT.

Quarrel Arose and Mrs. Walter Hurd Seized a Butcher Knife and Made Short Work of Mrs. James Hurd.

Warrensburg, Mo., June 28.—In a family fight last night near Bristleridge, six miles southeast of this city, Mrs. Walter Hurd killed Mrs. James Hurd, her sister-in-law, according to reports received here this morning.

The women, with their husbands, had been drinking heavily, and a quarrel ensued in which the women led the fight. Finally, Mrs. Walter Hurd secured a butcher knife and attacked her sister-in-law, cutting her throat in a horrible manner and making a wound from which she soon died.

The sheriff of Johnson county went to the scene of the tragedy this morning.

WAS THIS MAN KILLED?

Further in Regard to the Corpse Found Near Dresden.

Residents of Lamonte are of the opinion that the unidentified young man, who was thought to have been killed by Missouri Pacific train No. 6, west of Dresden, last Saturday morning, was murdered, and his body placed on the railroad track to throw off suspicion.

Bert Sanders, who is engaged in the mercantile business at Lamonte, in conversation with a Sedalian today, said that Friday night he saw the man, whose body was found on the railroad tracks, at Lamonte, in company with four other tramps.

According to his story, the four men were fussing with the fifth man, and were cursing and abusing him. Mr. Sanders paid some little attention to the party, and was about to call the town marshal, when the argument stopped.

This and other circumstances furnish the suspicion that the man was murdered. People who viewed the body soon after the train had passed state that on top of the dead man's head was a deep cut, bearing evidence of having been inflicted by something other than the train.

Then, too, when the body was found, soon after the train passed, the man's clothes were dry, which makes it further suspicious that he was killed and his body put on the track.

BIT HOLE IN BLACK CAP

THE DEATH STRUGGLE OF RAYMOND, HANGED IN JEFFERSON CITY.

HE WAS THE BRAVEST OF THE TRIO

Horror of Hanging Proved by One of the Three Who Died at the Capital—No Excitement at the Burial.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 28.—After the bodies of the three convicts hanged on the same trap here yesterday were cut down it was found that Edward Raymond, the nerviest one of the trio, had bitten a hole in the black cap in his struggles after the trap was sprung.

It was noticed by many persons at the hanging that Raymond's body was subject to more convulsive movements than that of either George Ryan or Harry Vaughan, the other victims.

When Raymond mounted the scaffold he was chewing a toothpick. It is thought that just as the trap was sprung Raymond made an effort to spit out the toothpick and in doing so brought the cloth into his mouth just s he went downward.

Raymond's body was the last to be cut down. As it was placed in the box there were many who expressed admiration for the man's courage on the scaffold. It was remarked that even in death there could faintly be seen the smile the man had worn when his features were last seen in life.

There was no crowd at the burying as there was at the execution. There was not the disorder, the excitement or the bid interest there was atprG or morbid interest of the hanging.

When the boxes had been lifted from the wagon that brought them to the cemetery the Rev. Fr. Geisert and the Rev. Fr. Sellinger performed the burial ceremony of the Catholic church.

The bodies of Ryan, Vaughan and Raymond rest in consecrated ground. It was one of the last requests of the condemned men to the priests in their talk yesterday morning. Before the priests left the state cemetery they blessed the graves of the three convicts.

Three wooden headboards mark the graves. On each coffin is a cheap silver plate. On it is engraved: "At Rest."

THE DISCOVERY OF A SHORTAGE IN LAWRENCE COUNTY, MISSOURI.

TREASURER TELLS WHO GOT COIN

This is the Case That Was Unearthed By L. U. Crawford, a Former Sedalian, But Now Living in Kansas City.

Aurora, Mo., June 28.—W. I. Long, who resigned as county treasurer this week after settling a shortage, yesterday, with tears in his eyes, divulged to Prosecuting Attorney Renfro the names of those he claims were responsible for his downfall, involving a judge and a banker. He claims he received none of the shortage money. Many predict a serious feud.

While the prosecuting attorney was having the books examined by L. U. Crawford, a Kansas City expert, he had the court house guarded, day and night.

Some records have been burned and others mutilated so that the shortage can not be accurately known.

"THE PEERLESS LEADER"

THE HON. W. J. BRYAN WAS NOT ENDORSED BY DEMOCRATS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

STATE ISSUES ARE SUFFICIENT

Harman Nominated for Treasurer on a Platform Condemning Capitol Graft and Pledging Him to Watch Republicans.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 28.—Pennsylvania democrats in convention here yesterday tabled a resolution indorsing "our peerless leader and statesman, William Jennings Bryan, the Jefferson and Jackson of today," and nominated John G. Harman for state treasurer on a platform confined to state issues.

State Treasurer William H. Berry, who claims credit for having uncovered the capitol scandal, was chairman of the convention and made a speech advocating the election of a democratic treasurer as a check on the republican state officials. He commended the capitol investigation commission, and said that much of the testimony taken by the commission has sustained the charges he made in the last campaign.

At the meeting of the resolutions committee, S. M. Seibert took exceptions to the silence of the platform on national matters. Mr. Seibert said he could see no reason why a democratic party should be afraid to indorse Mr. William J. Bryan.

There were cries for a vote on the platform, but Mr. Seibert stood his ground and offered the following resolution:

"We are heartily in accord with the beliefs and positions taken by our peerless leader and statesman, William Jennings Bryan, the Jefferson and Jackson of the democratic party of today, and indorse his candidacy for the democratic nomination for president in 1908."

The resolution was laid on the table, after which the platform as drafted was adopted, the revelations of the legislative committee in investigating the expenditure of $9,000,000 in furnishing the state capitol furnishing the feature.

"Believing this to be the vital question of this state," it says, "we are not to be led astray by perfunctory indorsement of any candidate for president in 1908, or the declamatory laudation of the present incumbent.

"KATY" MAN ROBBED

Sneak Thief Stole His Pocketbook While in Fort Scott.

J. R. Blevans, assistant general claim agent for the M., K. & T. system, who lives at Nevada, was robbed night before last of a pocketbook containing about $30 in cash, a voucher for $80 and some other valuable papers, says the Fort Scott Tribune.

Mr. Blevans was stopping at the Goodlander while here. He placed his pocketbook beneath the pillow and when he left the room in the morning placed the purse on the foot of the bed, intending to get it before leaving the apartment.

Forgetting the pocketbook, he went down stairs and later discovering his mistake hurried upstairs, only to find the money gone. The hotel management made every possible effort to secure the stolen property, but was unsuccessful. Chief Mendenhall was called into the case, but secured no clue.

It is not known whether some attache of the place took the pocketbook or some sneak thief from outside ventured in and finding the room deserted, took the valuable. The banks were notified not to pay the $80 voucher. This was Mr. Blevans' expense account.

IG ELECTRICITY UNDERSTOOD?

A startling but fortunately not disastrous demonstration of the dangers of electricity was given in New York last week when a short circuit in the new electrical equipment of the New York Central set the entire structure from One Hundred and Twenty-sixth to One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street ablaze with blue flames, said to be thirty-five feet high. The cause was a leak between the iron conduit pipes, which carry the many wires supplying the current to the various divisions, and the third rail. Although there is no wood in the viaduct, except the ties, imbedded in the stone ballast, the entire structure seemed to be ablaze within five seconds after the first loud report.

One account declares that a stream of molten iron and copper, fused by the heat of the electricity, immediately began to drop into the street. The firemen were afraid to turn their hose on the blaze lest the stream of water become also charged with electricity. Finally, the current was turned off and the flames disappeared. But nervous people asked what would result if the same thing should occur when a train was passing over the short circuited track, or if it should occur in the subway, where the system of insulation is said to be similar. If the demonstration teaches any sure means of guarding against its recurrence, it will be experience cheaply gained. Electricity is a useful servant, but we do not yet know all about it.

A DANISH GENIUS.

While doubtless there is a great influx of the undesirables among the hordes of immigrants who annually pour into this country, it is interesting to note some who are more than a credit to the land of their adoption.

Such a case was Alexander Larsen, a young Dane, who has just been signally recognized by the Smithsonian institution. Larsen came to this country only a few years ago, ignorant of everything except a smattering of English. What he knows now of science, electricity, chemistry and photography he picked up in a night school while working for a living. He attracted the attention of the Smithsonian scientists by a number of photographs of lightning flashes he had made with an old hand camera. He said that with a little better apparatus there were other studies in the same line he would like to make. Struck with his genius, the institution made him a small grant for experimental work, and he has just made his report, not only reflecting credit on himself, but on the judgment of those who gave him the money to work with.

He bids fair to develop into a valuable original worker. The country can stand all that sort of immigrants Europe wants to ship us.

THE PASSING OF MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

The announcement from England of the continued and probably fatal illness of Joseph Chamberlain, formerly secretary of state for the colonies, is of more than common interest in this country, because Chamberlain has been the leader and the real animating force of the movement for a protective tariff in England. It is possible that even the death of Mr. Chamberlain would not stop the slow but almost resistless current now setting toward protection in the best foreign customer of the United States, but it would give it a strong check, for Joseph Chamberlain, though perhaps a generation in advance of British sentiment, has aroused the country to the need of a tariff as an offensive weapon, if for nothing else. No matter how much commercial ill an English tariff would entail on the United States, there could be nothing but regret in this country over anything happening to Mr. Chamberlain. He has been an honest and open commercial fighter, he is well known in this country, having been here often, and he frankly admires America, though he says she is England's greatest commercial menace. He is a fair opponent, for whom all wish a complete and speedy recovery.

SHOULD HAVE JAIL SENTENCES.

Attorney General Bonaparte has announced in an interview that the government is about tired of imposing fines on big corporations that recklessly disregard the law. He says that while an accumulation of fines reaching a large amount may act as a deterrant, such penalties only too frequently are paid out of the treasury of the corporation, whether they are assessed against individual officers or not, and result only in decreasing the company's dividends, and thus strike many innocent stockholders without affecting the high officials who are really at fault.

He intimates that a jail sentence which will have to be served by the officials against whom it is directed seems a much simpler and more effective measure. This will be bad intelligence for the managers of many big corporations, who supposed they were "law-proof." It will be interesting to see whether the attorney general will have the hardihood to put his threat into execution.

The alleged basis of the La Follette candidacy is this: Wisconsin will be for Roosevelt is he wishes to run, but it will not be for any "heir apparent" that Mr. Roosevelt may select. Mr. La Follette would enjoy enforcing the Roosevelt policies himself, and certainly some of them originated in his own fertile brain cells.

An incoming ship recently unloaded ten tons of limburger cheese in San Fracisco. If there is any place in the United States where the presence of such a cargo will not be noticeable, that is the one.

The Chinese rebels admit that their object is to overthrow the government by killing all the officials. It would certainly tax human ingenuity to hit upon a plan more likely to accomplish the purpose.

MACKEREL WAS CHEAPER

THAN BEEF, SO JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER ORDERED IT FOR BREAKFAST.

HE SOLVED DINING CAR PROBLEM

In True Russel Sage Style the Standard Oil Magnate Made a Railway Trip With Least Expense Possible.

Cleveland, O., June 28.—The beef trust doesn't reach deep into the Rockefeller pocketbook when John D., Jr., pays the bill. Neither does the Pullman trust, nor the porter and waiter trust. Young John D. held the purse strings on the family trip from New York to Cleveland, and Russell Sage, in his closest days, couldn't have done better.

Early in the morning the rich man's son walked up to the sleeping car porter and asked:

"How much do you usually get from passengers? Fifty cents?"

"Fifty cents sometimes, sah. Other times kind gentlemen give me a dollar."

"But fifty cents is the regular price?"

"Yes, sah, yes, sah."

John D. handed him $6, or fifty cents for each section of the car. Had he paid fifty cents a passenger he would have given the porter $9. The fact that there was a drawing room in the car was overlooked altogether.

The porter attended to, John D., Jr., next financed the breakfast, so that the expense would not eat too heavily into the Rockefeller millions. He fed his persons for $5.70 in the dining car, and gave the head waiter $1, making a total of $6.70.

The rate of 31 2-3 cents a person for breakfast on a dining car, where all the prices are high, is below the average.

Not many could have ordered broiled fresh mackerel, which is listed on the bill of fare at 50 cents. Tenderloin steak was 70 cents, sirloin 50. At the bottom of the card was printed:

"No orders less than 25 cents to each person."

The Rockefeller rate per person did not get quite that low. It ran 6 2-3 cents higher.

Included in the party were Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Sr.; Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Miss Spelman. John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was detained in New York on business.

The train was stopped at the East One Hundred and Fifth street station here, where the party entered automobiles and was taken to Forest Hill, the suburban home of John D. Rockefeller, where the party will spend the summer months.

WIFE'S "NO," THEN TRAGEDY

Kummerer Placed Dynamite Across His Breast and Exploded It.

Toledo, Ohio, June 28.—George Kummerer, aged 46, employed in the quaries of the Monroe Stone company, came home yesterday morning and asked his wife, who had decided to leave him, if she would not consent to live with him again.

Upon her refusal he went into the barn upon the rear of the premises, laid down, placed a stick of dynamite across his body and exploded it.

The force of the explosion partly demolished the barn and tore his body into fragments. There had been family trouble for some time on account of his intemperance.

FLAMES KILLED 500

Theatre Collapses, Trapping Audience and Actors.

Victoria, B. C., June 28.—A holocaust is reported in mail advices from Hong Kong, where 500 Chinese of the audience of a Chinese theatre and ten of the actors were burned to death when the native theatre was destroyed by fire.

The flames spread rapidly and the building collapsed, blocking the entrance with burning debris. The origin of the fire is said to have been due to the igniting of explosives concealed in the floor of the theatre, the fire following the explosion.

Our Coffee Business Growing

We have been compelled on account of the constant growth of our coffee trade to install another mill—one of the Stimpson's latest patterns. The new mill will grind coffee as coarse or as fine as you want it. No. 6 is the coarsest grind and the finest is the pulverized. If once we get the grind you like we will tell you the number, so when you order coffee you can always have the same grind. Call and see it work.

Married to Miss Bettie Webb Chinn at Lexington, Mo.

Rev. Richard Gentry, son of Mrs. Ella Gentry, of Sedalia, and Miss Bettie Webb Chinn, a beautiful young girl of Lexington, Mo., were married by the Rev. Briney at the Christian church in Lexington at noon Thursday, and departed last night for a brida ltrip, the itinerary of which was kept secret.

Miss Nancy Shelby Chinn, of Lexington, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Misses Pinkie McGrew, Norma Steele and Chinn, of Lexington, and Fannie May Estes, of Columbia.

Reuben Gentry, of Sedalia, was the best man, and Messrs. Lee Gentry and Roy Dalby, of Sedalia, and Gentry Estill, of Estill, Mo., were the ushers.

The maid of honor and the bridesmaids were gowned alike in white net over white satin with trimmings of lace. They carried showers of roses.

After the ceremony a large reception was given at the home of the bride's grandfather, Joseph Graves Chinn.

The Sedalians who attended the wedding returned home Thursday night. In the Sedalia party were: Mrs. Ella Gentry, Mrs. Jael Gentry, Mrs. W. E. PLEA FOR MERCY

In Behalf of Man Who Slandered Her Made By Matron.

Piqua, Ohio, June 28.—A forgiving spirit was shown by the prosecuting witness in the probate court toward Samuel Yantis, a young farmer, who had been arrested for criminal slander on the complaint of Mrs. Mary Favorite, of Tippecanoe City.

Yantis entered a plea of guilty to the authorship of slanderous talk involving Mrs. Favorite and the pastor of the church, of which she i sthe organist.

When he admitted his guilt and vindicated Mrs. Favorite, she asked the court not to assess a fine, but to dismiss the case and remit the costs.

She said she did not desire to punish Yantis and that she had only wanted the vindication that she felt was given her when Yantis pleaded guilty. The court respected her wishes and dismissed Yantis.

DIVORCE SET ASIDE

A Doctor Married in St. Louis Got Service by Publication.

Cape Girardeau, Mo., June 28—Mrs. Julia N. Miller, a young woman, persuaded Judge Marshall Davis yesterday to set aside the decree of divorce granted her husband last April by Judge Riley, of New Madrid.

Mrs. Miller stated, through her attorney, that she had never received notice of the suit, which was given by publication in a local paper. Mrs. Miller is expected now to sue for divorce and alimony.

Dr. Miller met her while a medical student at Vanderbilt university in Nashville and a boarder in her mother's house. After two years he went to St. Louis to finish his studies and she followed him there, where they were married.

Visited Confederate Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brandt returned last night from Higginsville, where they had been since Monday as the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Dr. Charles Ott. While there, Mr. and Mrs. Brandt drove out to the Confederate home, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. William Scott, inmates of the home, who formerly resided at Fifth and Vermont streets here, and who desired to be remembered to their Sedalia friends. Mr. and Mrs. Scott are in the best of health, Mrs. Brandt says, but still have a warm place in their hearts for their Sedalia friends.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to fleshy again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

Germany—with a Chemist in the City of largest—I found the last ingredient with and Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made and ved, dependable prescription. Without are ingredient, I successfully treated many, actio nes of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it unifies all curable cases of this heretofore will readed disease. Those sand-like granular found in Rhenmatic Blood seem to dissolve s away under the action of this remedy as abou does sugar when added to pure water. Then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

HARRIMAN IS ARRESTED

RAILROAD MAGNATE AND CHAIRMAN OF HARVARD-YALE PEGATTA CLASH.

THE LAUNCH HELD AT NAVY DOCK

Fine of $500 Probably Will Be the Result—Taken Aboard Revenue Cutter—The Chairman Is Threatened.

New London, Conn., June 28.—Edward H. Harriman, who arrived here with his yacht, the Sultana, to see the Harvard-Yale regatta, was arrested last evening by Naval Aid Billott, in charge of the revenue cutter Gresham, because he persisted in following the race of the varsity crews in launch of the Sultana, contrary to the regulations of the department of the treasury governing the races.

Mr. Harriman was arrested at the two-mile mark and taken on board the Gresham. He was subsequently released, but the launch is still tied up at the navy dock yard. It is expected that a fine will be levied for the offense.

The arrest of Mr. Harriman was made by Lieut. Billard, president Roosevelt's naval aid. Lieut. Billard, who was in charge of the revenue cutters, had warned every boat owner not to follow the race. The big varsity struggle had scarcely been started, when Mr. Harriman, in his powerful motor boat, started to follow the race.

Lieut. Billard and Chairman Schweppe, who were aboard the regatta committee boat, The Arrow, repeatedly warned Mr. Harriman to stop his engine and get out of the course.

Mr. Harriman not only paid no attention to them, but took a position right alongside the referee's boat and held it. Off the navy yard, Lieut. Billard signaled for a launch, and tooted the revenue cutter whistle, which finally caused Mr. Harriman to look around.

"You are under arrest, sir," shouted Lieut. Billard.

"You will give yourself up to this man, who will take you aboard the Cresham, to await my orders."

Then it was discovered that the man in the boat was Mr. Harriman. Chairman Schweppe, of the regatta committee, was angry and he shouted to Mr. Harriman in terms that the latter could not mistake. The millionaire leveled his forefinger at Chairman Schweppe, and yelled back:

"Young man, I will see you later."

Schweppe's friends aboard the Arrow gave Mr. Harriman a gentle laugh. Mr. Harriman saw no more of the race, but was detained as an ordinary prisoner aboard the Gresham until after the race was over, when Lieut. Billard went aboard the Gresham and released Mr. Harriman, but ordered his boat tied up at the navy yard.

The incident may cost Mr. Harriman a fine of $500. This was the penalty imposed on a yacht owner at last year's race for transgressing the rules governing the course.

It Pays to Read the Advertisements in Your Newspaper.

"I was down with chronic rheumatism since last fall," writes M. F. Toorney, No. 52 Carbon street, Scranton, Pa. "I tried all kinds of medicine, but did not receive any benefit. I saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised in the Scranton Times, got a half dollar bottle of it, but as everything else had failed I had little faith in it. I rubbed myself thoroughly with it and went to bed, and to my surprise felt better the next morning. The pains seemed to go away. I kept on using it and now have had no pains for the past six week. I only used half of it." For sale by W. E. Bard Drug Co.

NERVOUS COLLAPSE

IS OFTEN PREVENTED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

Taken When the First Warning Symptoms Are Noticed Much Needless Suffering May Be Saved.

Are you troubled with pallor, loss of spirits, waves of heat passing over the body, shortness of breath after slight exertion, a peculiar skipping of the heart beat, poor digestion, cold extremities or a feeling of weight and fullness? Do not make the mistake of thinking that these are diseases in themselves and be satisfied with temporary relief.

This is the way the nerves give warning that they are breaking down. It simply means that the blood has become impure and cannot carry enough nourishment to the nerves to keep them healthy and able to do their work.

Rest, alone, will sometimes give the needed relief. The tonic treatment by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, however, prevents the final breakdown of the nerves and the more serious diseases which follow, because the pills act directly upon the impure blood, making it rich, red and pure.

Mrs. E. C. Bradley, of 103 Parsells avenue, Rochester, N. Y., says:

"I was never very healthy and some years ago, when in a run-down condition, I suffered a nervous shock, caused by a misfortune to a friend. It was so great that I was unfitted for work.

"I was just weak, low-spirited and nervous. I could hardly walk and could not bear the least noise. My appetite was poor and I did not care for food. I couldn't sleep well and once for two weeks got scarcely an hour's sleep. I had severe headaches most of the time and pains in the back and spine.

"I was treated by two doctors, being under the care of one of them for six months. I got no relief and then decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I soon began to feel better and the improvement was general. My appetite became hearty and my sleep better. The headaches all left and also the pains in my back. A few more boxes entirely cured me and I was able to go back to work. I felt splendid and as though I had never been sick."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable in such diseases as rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Boonville, Mo., June 28.—George Fluke, jr., 8-year-old son of A. J. Fluke, was seriously injured late yesterday afternoon by running in front of a moving binder while chasing a rabbit on his grandfather's farm, ten miles east of here. The lad received a long and deep cut on his left leg.

Most disfiguring skin eruptions, scrofula, pimples, rashes, etc., are due to impure blood. Burdock Blood Bitters is a cleansing blood tonic. Makes you clear-eyed, clear-brained, clear-skinned.

Itching piles provoke profanity, but profanity won't cure them. Doan's Ointment cures itching, bleeding and protruding piles after years or suffering. At any drug store.

If you haven't the time to exercise regularly, Doan's Regulets will prevent constipation. They induce a mild, easy healthful action of the bowels without griping. Ask you druggist for them. 25c.

Stops earache in two minutes; toothache or pain of burn or scald in five minutes; hoarseness, one hour muscle ache, two hours; sore throat, twelve hours—Dr. Thomas Electric Oil, monarch over pain.

Denies the Report.

Jefferson City, Mo., Juen 28.—W. D. Vandiver, state superintendent of insurance, yesterday made a statement denying the reports that have been circulated recently to the effect that he contempiated resigning his position at an early day, with a view to succeeding Dr. R. H. Jesse as head of the state university.

All stomach troubles are quickly relieved by taking a little Kodol after each meal. Kodol goes directly to the seat of the trouble, strengthening the digestive organs, supplies the natural digestive juices and digests what you eat. It is a simple, clean, pure, harmless remedy. Don't neglect your stomach. Take a little Kodol after each meal and see how good it makes you feel. Money back if it fails. Sold by Arlington pharmacy.

GOLDEN NUGGETS FOR SALLOW PEOPLE

KISSED THE SERVANT

Wife Listened at Speaking Tube and Heard the "Smack."

Chicago, Ill., June 28.—Mrs. Josephine K. Gallagher, 5630 Monroe avenue, told Judge McEwen, of the superior court, that her husband, Clarence V. Gallagher, had caressed and kissed a pretty mulatto domestic at her mother's home in Kansas City March 30.

Mrs. Gallagher appeared to ask separate maintenance from her husband, who is contracting freight agent for the Canadian Pacific and Soo Railway company. Both are known at the Metropole hotel, where they lived for some time. Judge McEwen declared he would put the case over one week for decision.

Mrs. Gallagher is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McDonald, Forest avenue, Kansas City. Her parents are well to do.

"We were visiting at my mother's home March 30," said Mrs. Gallagher. "My husband went down to the kitchen so often that I became suspicious. At last I went to the speaking tube which leads to the kitchen. I listened and heard my husband kissing the domestic. He came upstairs and seemed nervous."

A WHITECAP VICTIM

Is Guarded By Friends in a Barricaded House.

Columbus, Ind., June 28.—Charles Stull, Canada Clark, Charles Seitz, John Burkhardt and James Kirtz were arrested and brought here on a charge of whitecapping Thomas Vanesta, a blacksmith at South Bethany, Sunday night. The prisoners pleaded not guilty, gave bond in the sum of $300 each and their hearings were set for July 22.

The accused men are respected citizens of the South Bethany neighborhaad. Vanesta, the man who was whitecapped, became so terror-stricken by repeated rumors that reached him to the effect that he was to be flogged a second time that he fled to the home of Forest Mellott, his brother-in-law, accompanied by a number of friends, who were heavily armed. The Mellott home was barricaded with iron bars. Vaesta is under a heavy guard of friends at the same house.

Public sentiment is divided and further and more serious trouble is feared.

GOUGED HIS EYE

Then She Identified Him Later at the Police Station.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 28.—Mrs. Elizabeth Di Cellis was attacked by a negro burglar in her bedroom and was found unconscious several hours later by her husband. Charles Holly is under arrest charged with the crime.

Mrs. Di Cellis was awakened by a rough hand pressed against her mouth. She screamed and the burglar grasped her throat, choking her until her eyes and tongue protruded. She dug her hands into the burglar's eyes. He seized her by the neck and leg and, raising her above his head, cast her across the room against a wall.

At noon the woman came to Central police station to report the crime. When she was waiting Holly was brought into the office by a policeman. He had been arrested on suspicion of being a man reported by Mrs. Bernard Rosenfeld as having robbed her house early Sunday. Both women identified Holly.

WAS HE MURDERED?

A Man Whose Body Was Taken From the Ohio River.

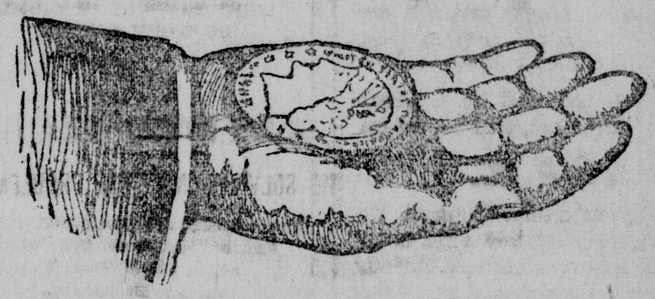

Georgetown, Ky., June 28.—Hugh Frank Jouett, of Oxford, this county, was the man whose body was taken from the Ohio river at Louisville. Relatives made the identification. Much mystery attaches to the case. Though the body bore no outward evidences of violence, several of his relatives believe that the drowning, if drowning it was, did not result from accident.

Jouett left here as a delegate to attend the republican convention at Louisville. Information that he became engaged in a quarrel there with a man with whom he had been at swords' points for years, has come to the ears of the relatives. They say they will demand a searching investigation.

Jouett was connected with the United States revenue service. He was 55 years of age.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 28.—Alexander De Bacilla, a native born Roumanian and editor of a paper published in that language in Cleveland, is wanted here on a peculiar charge.

About one month ago Bacilla borrowed $150 from a Martin's Ferry Roumanian, giving a contract for the payment.

Yesterday he was made defendant in a justice's court for the recovery of the amount and compromised by giving a note payable in October this year.

He signed his name in full, and after he had left the city his whereabouts were sought on the charge of attempting to defraud by using the "De," the complainant who swore out a warrant for Bacilla's arrest claiming that the latter was not authorized to use an honorary title.

APPROVED METHODS OF COOKING ONIONS.

Young Plants May Be Served on Buttered Toast Like Asparagus—When Escalloped Vegetable Is Delicious—Mint Vinegar.

To Cook Young Onions.—Peel, drop in cold water and let them soak 15 minutes. Cook tender in boiling salted water and serve on slices of buttered toast like asparagus. Season with salt, pepper and a little butter.

Onion Soup.—This is wholesome and "tasty." Slice two or three large onions and fry yellow in butter or clarified drippings. When soft add three tablespoonfuls flour and stir until cooked and frothy. Now add slowly a pint of boiling water, stirring until smooth and slightly thickened. Have ready three potatoes boiled and mashed and add to them a quart of milk that has been brought just to the scalding point. Put the potato and onion mixture together, season with salt and pepper, let it get very hot, then press through a strainer into a hot tureen. Sprinkle over the top a little parsley minced fine and a handful crisp croutons.

Escalloped Onions.—Peel half a dozen large onions and lay in cold water for an hour. Cut in thick slices and put on to cook in boiling salted water. Boil ten minutes, drain and cover again with boiling water. Cook until they are tender, but still firm. Have ready a pint of rather thin cream sauce. Butter a baking dish, put in a layer of onions, then one of the sauce and sprinkle with bread sauce and crumbs and so on until the dish is full, having the last layer of buttered crumbs. Bake in a quick oven and brown. A little cheese may be used with each layer of crumbs, if desired. There should be enough of the thin cream sauce used to show generously about the onions when served.

Mint Vinegar.—Fill loosely a large wide-mouthed bottle with the mint leaves. Pour in vinegar, cork securely and let it remain for two or three weeks. Then pour off the vinegar into another bottle and keep well corked until needed. This is a capital substitute for fresh mint when the latter cannot be obtained.

Cowslip Vinegar.—An excellent vinegar is also made from cowslips (primula). Put one quart of the pips into a jar with three pints white wine vinegar. Cork tightly and let it remain for ten days. Strain, bottle and seal. An excellent addition are a few sweet briar tips—three or four to two cups of the liquid.

Vegetable Cutlets.—Boil separately until tender a half dozen French carrots, a turnip and an onion. Mash thoroughly and mix with a cupful cooked lentils drained perfectly dry. Season with minced parsley, salt and pepper, and a beaten egg and bread crumbs to bind together. Form into croquettes, cutlet shaped, dip in beaten egg, roll in fine crumbs and fry in deep fat. Garnish with parsley and serve hot. A little curry powder may be added to the seasoning.

A Bachelor's Den.

Police Officer James Card is fitting up in fine style the room in the rear of Justice J. B. Rickman's office, preparatory to removing into the apartment soon.

Wood Felled by Gladstone's Axe.

What Mr. Gladstone most enjoyed about the Chateau de Choronc (adds our correspondent) were the beautiful walks in the neighborhood. Many photographs were taken of him there, but the one he liked most was a photograph in which he and Lord Rendel appeared walking arm in arm, deep in political discussion. I came across a copy of it once in a remote farmhouse in Montgomeryshire, and on the back of it was written. "To Mr. John Jones Vichir, with best wishes. W. E. Gladstone."

John Jones was a farmer, a constituent of Lord Rendel, a tremendous admirer of Mr. Gladstone, and an amateur woodcarver. He had once written to the prime minister asking for some wood felled by the statesman's own axe, and for some time afterward he regularly received a supply of wood whenever Mr. Gladstone brought down a new tree.

This he worked up into walking stick handles, crosses, lockets, necklaces, etc., and they were greatly prized among his friends.—Manchester Guardian.

Delicately Put.

Stuyvesant Fish was discussing in Philadelphia the March panic.

"That was delicately put," he said, referring to a remark that indirectly cast the blame for the panic on a certain source. "Whether your remark is true or false, it was couched delicately. It reminds me of the story of the footman.

"A footman called his master up by telephone and said:

"'I regret to inform you, sir, that your house is on fire and fast burning down.'

"'Oh!' cried the master, 'what a terrible misfortune! But my wife—is she safe?'

"'Quite safe, sir. She got out among the first.'

"'And my daughters—are they all right?"

"'All right, sir. They're with their mother.'

"There was a pause. Then:

"'That, sir,' said the footman suavely, 'was what I wished to speak to you about sir, particular. Your mother-in-law is lyin' asleep in the third story back, and knowin' your regard for her comfort, sir, I wasn't sure whether I ought to disturb her or not, sir.'"

Suiting Music to the Work.

The mistress of the house is a cultivated Bostonian of much musical taste, and the whistling of the footman, who believed himself alone in the house, fretted her artistic soul.

"Joseph," she called at last, from the head of the back stairs, "please don't whistle those vulgar ragtime things!"

"Yes, mem," returned Joseph, meekly. "I know, mem," he continued, with unexpected spirit, "but you cannot expect a rhapsody of Liszt with cleaning the knives. That will come later, when I'm polishing the silver."—Youth's Companion.

Taken Literally.

"Lady," said Weary Willie, "I'm near dead fur a good square meal."

"Well," said Mrs. Hauskeeep, "if you'll saw some of that wood over there I'll let you eat your fill."

"Good day, lady! I ain't never et no wood, thank ye, kindly."

And It's Not Worth It.

It is impossible to acquire money without making sacrifices; most men and women who marry for it sacrifice their happiness.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

A PREACHER TOOK GIRLS

THROUGH THE FAMOUS RED LIGHT DISTRICT IN CHICA. GO SIGHT SEEING.

IS NOW CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

The Accused is An Evangelist and He Has Brought Down Upon Himself a Storm That Refuses to Be Calmed.

Chicago, June 28.—Rev. V. A. Mortensen, the evangelist who, with Rev. Ernest A. Bell, brought a storm down on himself for escorting young girls through the red-light district, was arrested at the Palmer House on sensational charges preferred by a young woman inmate of an alleged disorderly house on the west side. The woman accused the minister of assaulting her.

Ida Pickard, who gave her address as 17 Peoria street, was the complainant. She charged that the clergyman struck her in the face and threatened to knock her down.

The daughter of the sensational street preacher was taken down to the Harrison street police station by Detective Sergeant Morgan. On arrival there the daughter, Camilla Mortensen, who accompanied the preacher in his crusades, signed a bail bond, thus saving Mortensen from a cell.

Miss Pickard charged that Rev. Mr. Mortensen entered the house at 17 Peoria street and told her and a number of other inmates that the premises would be raided by the police unless they vacated at once. She alleges that Mortensen left the house after attacking her, but later summoned police of the Desplaines street station and had the house raided.

Miss Pickard was arrested in the raid and taken to the Desplaines street station with a number of other inmates of the house, who were also arrested, and was arraigned in the Municipal court at Desplaines street.

LUTHERANS TO SEPARATE

Winfield College Will Be Turned Over to German Branch.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 28.—A further separation of the English Lutheran church and the German Lutheran church is likely to be effected at the convention of the English Lutheran church, Missouri synod, now in session at Mount Olive Lutheran church, Milwaukee.

While the English Lutheran church of this synod has conducted the academic education of their ministers, the religious instruction has been given principally at the German college in St. Louis.

SERVANT PROBLEM IN CUBA.

Cook Is in Sole Charge of the Domestic Cusine.

The Cuban matron has little to say in the management of her own household, as the family literally board with their cook, who has sole control of the cusine. When a cook is engaged she is paid so much per month—$10, $15 or $20, as the case may be—for her work. She at once inquires how much is allowed for the marketing, which she is to do each morning. On being told, she figures out how much she can save from the amount, and if the graft amount to say 15 or 20 cents per day, she is likely to accept the position. She rarely sleeps at the house, and usually has a family of her own who are fed from the larder of her employer. Early breakfast is light—fruit, rolls and coffee—and at noon there is a meal known as late breakfast, which resembles the American luncheon. When this is finished the cook spends a few hours at her home and returns at five o'clock in time to prepare dinner. A half-grown girl is employed to wait on the table, answer the door bell, etc. In some families male cooks are employed. If the meals do not suit the master of the house he adds more money to the marketing allowance.—Mrs. C. R. Miller, in Leslie's Weekly.

Life a Childish Pleasure.

A wealthy woman with diamonds up to her knuckles was telling of a man she knew who was going abroad on a cattle steamer.

"He is going for his health," she said. "He is very delicate, but he is so poor. Why should a man who has no health endeavor to preserve the little he has? With no money to make life agreeable and so little life left in his body, why should he keep on wanting to live?"

One of her listening friends who is not particularly encumbered with this world's goods, spoke up. "I suppose he takes a sort of childish pleasure in it. Most of us do."

CHIPPING THE CASTINGS

Son of a Millionaire Working in a Foundry.

Akron, Ohio, June 28.—As the blast from the whistles at the plant of the Pittsburg Valve and Fitting company, at Barberton, at 6:30 yesterday morning brought the employes rushing to their work, a slight lad, clad in jumper and overalls, fell into line with the foundrymen.

Once inside the foundry, the foreman set him to work chipping castings, working beside a number of foreigners.

It was the sixteen-year-old son of M. J. Alexander, the Pittsburg millionaire and secretary and treasurer of the company. The boy has been going to school in Pittsburg and came to Barberton to join his father. The latter wished him to begin at the bottom.

WAS CHOKED TO DEATH

THEN THE BODY WAS COVERED WITH RUBBISH, SAYS HERBERT GLENN.

THIS IS HIS SECOND CONFESSION

Admits That the First Story He Told Was False—Nine Indictments Have Been Returned Already.

Mt. Gilead, Ohio, June 28.—After the unprecedented high waters of March 17, 1904, the dead body of "Shad" Westbrook was found dead on the banks of the Olentangy river, near Cardington.

It was at once concluded that he had been murdered, and rewards offered stimulated the search for his murderer.

In all nine persons have been arrested for the crime, six of whom have had to contend with the grand jury, three being now in jail awaiting trial upon the charge of first degree murder.

Herbert Glenn has been the cause of these indictments, for by his three different confessions all have been indicted.

He was on the stand yesterday and told how Jerry Williams, who is defending himself against the charge, struck Westbrook with a billy and choked the life out of his victim afterward.

Then Glenn Williams and William Mauck, who all had entered into a plot to murder Westbrook for the purpose of robbery, carried the body to a depression on the creek bank and buried it under some rubbish.

Glenn admitted that his previous confessions were false, and affirms he is now telling the truth.

The interest in the case is intense, and it is impossible for all the people to get into the courtroom.

ACCOUNT BOOK A NECESSITY.

Without It, There Is Bound to Be Waste in Household.

Unless one keeps a record of the way in which the pennies go, the expense account has a disagreeable habit of swelling larger than the income.

With an account book a housekeeper knows at a glance just how much meat, flour, or other articles of food it has taken for the table during the month, and can compare with the same month of the year before.

In this way one can easily tell if expenses are still on the same level or if they are on the increase, and the cause may be readily discovered.

Money left loose in a purse or bag goes, but no one can make an accurate account of it at the end of the month.

The little account book with everything down in black and white keeps business methods in the buying of supplies, and is a great factor for economy.

Spotless Linen.

The following recipe for the washing mixture will insure clothes being beautifully clean and white without a great amount of rubbing. Get two pounds of common soda, one gill of sweet oil, one gill of turpentine, one pint of ammonia. Dissolve the soda and pour into two-gallon bottle, add the sweet oil and turpentine and, lastly, the ammonia. Shake well together, and then fill the bottle nearly full with cold water; shake again and it is ready for use. One gill of this mixture put into the boiler when the clothes are boiling will surprise anyone who has not tried it before. It leaves no smell, is economical and does the clothes no injury.

Chicken in Rice Cups.

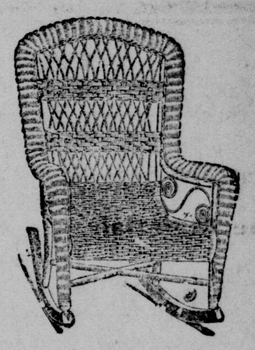

This is a delicious luncheon dish, and also is an economical way of using small quantities of leftovers. To prepare it, line small buttered cups with soft-boiled rice a half inch in thickness. Fill the center with cooked chicken, finely minced, delicately seasoned and slightly made moist with cream sauce or chicken broth. Onion juice and minced celery may be added if desired. Cover the top with a layer of the rice and bake in a moderate oven for 15 minutes. Then invert the cups carefully on a heated platter and serve at once with any preferred sauce.

LINK WITH THE DEAD PAST.

Woman Has Handkerchief Stained with Blood of Charles I.

An interesting Derbyshire "link with the past" is recalled by Mr. J. H. Sharpley of Hatfield college, Doncaster, in a letter to the Sheffield Telegraph. He says: "In 1872, when a boy, staying at Hulland ward, Derbyshire, I called on an old woman, Elizabeth Durose, then 97, widow of a farmer, who told me that her grandmother, when a girl, had known a man—a distant relative—who had witnessed the execution of Charles I. The old woman then took out of a corner cupboard an old prayer-book, bound in black leather, which was, I fancy, of the time of Queen Anne, for I remember it had a frontispiece picturing a parson in gown and bands, and wearing a long wig, saying prayers in a 'three-decker.' Opening it at the form of service for January 30, she showed me a piece of coarse linen, of the color of a dead leaf, which she said was a portion of a handkerchief which had been dipped in the king's blood, and was given to her grandmother by the above eye-witness. When it first passed into her possession it was nearly entire, but her children had played with it, and this was all she had managed to preserve."—Derby (England) Telegraph.

Pigeons as Messengers.

Pigeons were used as messengers as early as the Crusades, and at the siege of Acre and at Modena. Competitors at the Olympian games frequently released the swift little birds to inform their friends of victory, and pigeons were kept at Tyburn to carry information regarding the reprieve or execution of prisoners.

HE SOUGHT HIS MOTHER

A SON LEARNED THAT SHE HAD BEEN BURIED IN THE ATLANTIC.

SHE WAS RETURNING FROM EUROPE

For an Hour the Son Was Speechless, After Having Been Apprised of the Death and Burial of Parent.

New York, June 28.—When the Cunard steamship Caronia, from Liverpool, was warped into her dock a young man approached one of the officers and said:

"I am looking for Mrs. S. M. Camp, of Liverpool. She is my mother. I am here to meet her, but can not find her."

The officer said: "Please come with me."

When the two men reached the purser's office the under officer stood aside, hat in hand.

"Are you Mr. Camp, of Buffalo?" was asked of the young man.

"Yes. My mother said—" he started to say, but he was cut short by the words:

"Mr. Camp, it is my sad duty to inform you that your mother was taken suddenly ill. She died on Saturday and we buried her at sea Sunday. I will see that all her belongings are turned over to you, sir."

The young man was kept from falling by the under officer. For an hour he sat speechless with his head buried in his hands.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

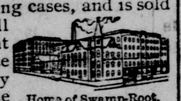

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

WHERE THE NUDE IS NATURAL.

Hopi Indians Have Little Use for Clothing in Their Villages.

When living by themselves under perfectly natural conditions, as I found them 15 years ago, nearly all the Hopi children ran about entirely nude, and the adults were as unconscious of the need of clothing or of the lack of it as were Adam and Eve prior to the apple episode. The presence and teachings of the white man have of late years induced a certain measure of self-consciousness, so that all except the very little children are chary of allowing themselves to be seen unclothed by strange eyes, but I lived so long among them and gained their confidence to such an extent that I was able to photograph them as if from the viewpoint of one of themselves and so to gain a record, which to anthropologists should prove very interesting, of the fact that these people are physically at an earlier stage of development than the white race, says a writer in the Craftsman.

Although, if you have lived long enough among the Hopi for them to feel thoroughly acquainted and at home with you, they may sometimes go around without clothing as comfortably and unconsciously as with it—you feel no sense of shock as at the sight of nakedness, for your experience is precisely like that recorded by the explorers and travelers in Africa and among all dark-skinned races—it is not the lack of clothing but the sight of the white skin that is startling. A brown skin seems in a way to be a sort of clothing like the fur of an animal and excites no more attention, after once you are used to seeing it undraped. You note only the extreme beauty of color, form and movement, and after awhile begin to realize something of the innocence, freedom and childlike joy of living that we like to think prevailed among all men in the morning of the world.

As babies and little children are so seldom troubled with garments of any description, they are early inured to all changes of temperature and remain unaffected by chill winds, soaking rain and the scorching desert sun. Also, they have the same freedom in the use of every muscle as little animals, and they can climb almost anywhere and balance themselves in most precarious positions with no more danger than as if they were panther kittens.

Drives his creditors into bankruptcy, runs over people with his imported 60-horse power automobile, owns a $3,000 fighting dog, talks so loudly in his box at the opera that he infuriates those who think music was made to be listened to, reads novels in French, and—" "Ah, I see!—strange I should make such a mistake—a well-known man-about-town."—Puck.

WALKED 23 MILES TO WED

Performed Ceremony in Bare Feet, Lamp in Hand, From Porch.

Nashville, Ind., June 28.—Jefferson Sturgeon, 45 years old, and Miss Estelle Haik, 22, walked from Bloomington, twenty-two miles distant, to be married here.

Jefferson is a cripple, and it is his third venture in matrimony. After reaching this place [illegible] known to men in the [illegible] lacked sufficient money with [illegible] procure a license and a collection was taken for his benefit.

Sturgeon and his bride-elect then began seeking a minister or a justice of the peace. It was after nightfall before Squire McHasken was found at home and he appeared on his doorstep, barefooted and with shirt unbuttoned, carrying a lighted lamp.

After examining the license and while standing on his front porch, lamp still in hand, the marriage ceremony was performed, a crowd of 250 men and boys witnessing the ceremony from the sidewalk.

After the ceremony Sturgeon and bride started on the weary walk back to Bloomington.

WRONG MAN GETS POISON

Suicide Gives It to Him for Whisky.

Rochester, N. Y., June 28.—Peter and David Morad, of Philadelphia, traveling to Geneva last night, accepted a drink of whisky from Leo L. King, who boarded the train at Wilkes-Parre.

The three men finished the bottle and King produced a second one. Peter Morad took the first drink out of it, when King discovered that he had given Morad a bottle containing cyanide of potassium. Morad immediately collapsed, and when the train reached Geneva he was hurried to a hospital, where he died in a few hours.

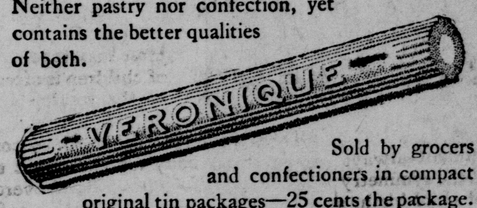

King was arrested. He said he secured the poison for himself, intending to end his life on account of family troubles. He gave his age as 29 years, and said his mother was living in Rockford, Ill.

FORMER SEDALIA BOY

He Claims That He Was "Mesmerized" in St. Louis.

A son of the late W. H. Mugford, of Sedalia, was written of as follows in the Versailles Leader of yesterday:

Constable Xanders, of Richland township, arrested Albert Mugford, six miles northwest of Florence, upon a complaint of disturbing the peace, and turned him over to Sheriff Wilson Saturday. His case was diagnosed by Prosecuting Attorney Agee as a "plain drunk," and he was told to go.

A few days later Albert appeared in the Hinken neighborhood and complaint was made against him, but the complainants refused to swear out a warrant for his arrest.

Albert is the lamented son of the well-known and lamented W. H. Magford, who years ago wrote for Sedalia papers and was recognized as one of the brightest journalists in the state.

Albert claims that while working in St. Louis, early last March, he was mesmerized, and hasn't the power within himself to break the spell. Poor Albert, it's something worse than mesmerism that controls him. Alcohol is a tyrant king.

Mr. Evans is so favorably impressed with the surroundings that he has determined to spend a week or more there next month.

IMPORTANT SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

A Clinical Preparation That Positively Kills the Dandruff Germ.

A most important discovery has been made after a year's patient laboratory work aimed in a certain direction—it is Newbro's Herpicide, a preparation that prevents falling hair and speedily and permanently eradicates dandruff. These evils are caused by a germ or parasite that burrows into the scalp, throwing up dandruff as it seeks to sap the life of the hair at the root. There's no baldness without falling hair, no thin hair without dandruff, and no dandruff if the germ is destroyed. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that will do the work. Destroy the cause you will remove the effect. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1. W. E. LEFT HIS BRIDE OF A DAY

OSTENSIBLY TO SECURE A CONVEYANCE FOR HAPPY HONEYMOON.

THE BRIDEGROOM STILL IS GOING

"Lord" Stanley Has Not Returned and Posses Are Seeking Him Back in Maryland—His Quick Courtship.

Philadelphia, Penn., June 28.—"Lord Stanley, Earl of Aberdeen," has mysteriously disappeared and men on foot, on horseback and in automobiles are scouring Maryland for the errant bridegroom.

"Lord" Stanley, who claims to be King Edward's cousin, married Miss Irene Clayton, a wealthy spinster, of Calvert, in defiance of the vigorous opposition of the lady's brothers.

It was shortly after 6 o'clock in the morning that the earl informed his bride that he was going to procure a team in order that they might start on their honeymoon as soon as possible.

"I'll go over to Rising Sun, hire a team and then come right back," he told "Lady Stanley."

The earl started to walk to Rising Sun. He had not gone very far before some of the vigilant farmers saw him. Thinking that he was trying to get away, they told the Clayton brothers. A posse was organized and galloped after the earl, but he has not been found.

Stanley's bride, who is 54 years of age, had known him 12 days and they were engaged just a week.

One afternoon a man looked over the fence at the farm of Joseph McVey:

"Want any help?" he inquired.

"What can you do?"

"Anything in your line."

McVey employed the stranger, who, within four hours, took Joe McVey, the son of the farmer, aside and said:

"I am not an ordinary person. I am a descendant of the titled Dudley and Stanley families of England. Now, my boy, I am looking for a wife who has some money. Introduce me to one and I will give you $1,000."

Young McVey thought of Irene Clayton, who has an interest in two farms worth perhaps $20,000.

Stanley admits that he knows the history of the bogus "Lord" Douglas, that strange bigamist, who married Miss Josephine Hood, of New Iberia, La., more than a year ago and disappeared with her. The age and appearance of "Lord Douglas" were not unlike those of "Lord Stanley."

NEW 'PHONE WOULDN'T WORK

Man Who Bled Himself Expired Before Doctor Arrived.

Akron, Ohio, June 28.—Andrew Lanson, 71 years old, a wealthy contracting carpenter, living in East Akron, died because a new telephone instrument would not work.

He had long been afflicted with rheumatism, and hearing that bleeding would relieve the pain, went into a woodshed behind his home and slashed his leg with a pocket knife.

A scream of pain brought members of his family to the shed a few minutes later and they found him lying in a pool of blood.

His wife hastily ran to the telephone to summon a physician, but after working in vain for several minutes gave it up and sent a messenger. When the doctor finally arrived Lanson had just expired, having bled to death.

ON HUSBAND'S GRAVE

Old Lady Was Eating Paris Green With a Spoon.

Danville, Ill., June 28.—Mrs. John Rates, 70 years old, was found by her husband's grave eating paris green out of a can with a spoon.

On the ground was a bottle of carbolic acid, which she intended taking after the other poison.

She was in a critical condition when prevented from eating the poison by an assistant sexton.

She declared she would yet finish the work of self-destruction, as she had nothing to live for.

THE JUDGE HAD PITY

Reformed by Surgeon, but Blow on Head Made Him Bad Again.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 28—Surgeons made a good youth out of Leo Dean, aged 14 years, formerly known as "Cleveland's bad boy," but they had all kinds of trouble in doing so. That is the opinion of Juvenile Judge Addams, who discharged Leo that he might go home with his mother.

Leo was charged with having refused to turn over a revolver that had dropped out of a policeman's pocket. He denied the charge in court and told such a reasonable story that the court refused to hold him.

Some time ago surgeons cut into Leo's skull and raised a bone. Subsequently the lad became one of the best boys in the neighborhood, but recenty was hit on the head by a hammer falling from an awning and returned to his old habits again.

A DELIGHTFUL FUNCTION

Miss Lou Menefee Entertained for Miss Ethel Collins.

Miss Lou Menefee, always a charming hostess, entertained a party of her girl friends at the home of her sister, Mrs. Harvey MacGugin, yesterday afternoon, for Miss Ethel Collins, who is to be married to Mr. Will Tuley tomorrow.

The decorations were in white and green, and were beautiful, indeed. The menu was far beyond the ordinary, consisting of fruit bouillon, mushrooms, fried chicken with cream gravy, hot biscuit, new potatoes, French peas, asparagus, tomato salad with cheese, bread and butter sandwiches, cherry frappe, angel food cake, coffee and mints.

When the guests left the table Miss Collins was persuaded to sit in a chair directly under a huge wedding bell, which hung from the chandelier. When she was seated the hostess pulled the ribbons attached to the bell and a shower of dainty handkerchiefs descended upon the guest of honor.

There were twelve guests at the luncheon, as follows: Misses McDonald, of St. Louis; Elizabeth Hanson, of Sardis, Miss.; Kathryn Monroe, of Tipton, and Misses Kathryn Courtney, Florence Floyd, Marguerite Curran, Genevieve Waddell, Nelle Harris, Nelle Fletcher, Lou Menefee and Ethel Collins.

FROM TWO JAILS

He Escaped in as Many Days and He's Now Captive in a Third

Lexington, Ky., June 28.—After escaping twice from two different jails, Thomas Thomas, wanted on the charge of disturbing religious worship, was landed finally in the Georgetown jail by Marshal A. B. Davis, of Sadieville.

Thomas heard while at Georgetown that he was to be arrested and took refuge among his friends at Stamping Grounds. He was arrested there and put in jail, but escaped during the night and fled to Sadieville, where he was arrested and put in jail.

He again escaped, but was captured after a long chase and taken to Georgetown by Marshal Davis.

HEN'S PECK CAUSED DEATH

The "Setter" Cackled Hilariously Over in Hoosier State.

Anderson, Id., June 28.—That a henpecked man may die was demonstrated sadly here yesterday when Joseph B. Brya, aged 69 years, a retired building contractor, died in great agony from blood poisoning that developed at a point in his scalp, where a hen had pecked him so fiercely that blood had flowed.

The following day Bryan, who apparently had been in excellent health, fell very ill, and his physician declared that the hen's peck had caused it.

Bryan had undertaken to lift the hen from her nest when she attacked him. Despite his efforts at defense the biped flew against his head and sank its bill into his scalp. Then she cackled hilariously. The hen was a "sitter."

It goes to the root of disease, invigorates, strengthens, exhilarates. Its life-producing properties are not contained in any other known remedy. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Tea or tablets, 35 cents.—W. E. Bard

DROPPED BOTH WIVES

Escaped Prosecution for Having More Than Law Allows.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 28.—Harry Moudy, a contractor, has got rid of two wives and avoided trial on a charge of bigamy.

Some months ago he was married to Miss Stella Hollingsworth under the belief that his first wife had procured a divorce in St. Louis 15 years ago.

Soon after the marriage his mother-in-law heard of the former marriage and she prevailed on her daughter to bring suit for separation.

Moudy hunted up his first wife and found that she had not procured a divorce, whereupon he brought suit for divorce from his first wife and for annulment of the second marriage, and all this has been accomplished.

GENTLEMEN—I contracted in the army, about 42 years ago, a very bad case of eczema of the face. During all of which time I have tried every known remedy and a number of physicians. I had doctored until I had given up all hope of ever being cured. Your "Zemo" was recommended to me and I have been using the same a short time and am happy to say that its results have been marvelous from the beginning. From the start it gave me immediate relief, stopped the itching and burning and all symptoms of the disease disappeared. Judging from my case, I consider your remedy a specific for eczema worth its weight in gold.

I heartily recommend its use by any and all who may be so unfortunate as to have this dreaded disease. I am, Respectfully yours, JOHN I. CAPEL.

BARRICADED IN HIS ROOM

For Sixty-Four Consecutive Weeks the Maniac Defied Capture.

Dayton, Ohio, June 28.—For 64 consecutive weeks Robert Gebhart, aged 28 years, remained locked in his room at his home in Miami township and defied any person to disturb him.

Yesterday he was hauled before the probate judge, declared insane and committed to the Dayton state hospital. His beard was breast long and his hair hung far down his back.

When deputies went to Gebhart's home they had to fight their way into his room, as he had locked the door and piled furniture against it. As they entered the maniac pounced upon them, but was overpowered after a desperate struggle.

When he entered his self-made prison Gebhart was clean shaven and youthful-looking.

Yesterday he appeared to be the reincaration of Rip Van Winkle.

Lost—Somewhere within the confines of Sedalia, one electric railway embyro named the Missouri Interurban railway. When last seen this infant prodigy was being fondled by members of the Sedalia Business Men's association, and it is believed that their manner of handling it has in some way put a quietus upon the exuberant growth youngster. Who speaks next?

This couple is too well known to our people, having been born and reared here, to need any words of commendation from us. Both of them are worthy, popular and most excellent young people, and in taking this, the most serious and important step of their lives, they have the best wishes of many friends for a happy, contented and prosperous voyage through life together. The young couple will go housekeeping immediately in a little home neatly furnished and ready for them in the south part of town.

Some time ago a young lady, living near Smithton, while taking down the telephone receiver to answer a call, emitted one of those delightful little laughs so pleasing to hear, that the party on the other end of the line, upon inquiring for the reason of the mirth, was greeted with the response, "Oh, I thought you were Albert calling up to make an engagement for next Sunday." But it wasn't Albert.

Hard to Answer.

One day Robert Herrick, the novelist, was impressing upon his class in English literature, in the University of Chicago, the importance of reading what had been written with a purpose and had character and power. He contrasted forcefully such literature with the light, vapid, frivolous sort that seemed to appeal to such a large percentage of readers. He then asked each student to tell him frankly which kind he was reading. After nearly all had confessed to something light, he came to a tall westerner, who showed a tendency to evade the question. "It can't be possible, I hope," said Herrick, "that you are not reading anything?" "No, it is not that," replied the westerner. "The fact is, I am reading your latest novel, and I can't decide to which class it belongs."—Lippincott's Magazine.

DUSTER IS DOOMED

DANGER IN OLD-TIME BUNCH OF FEATHERS.

Tuberculosis and Many Minor Ills Lurk in Its Wake—Only Proper Way to Sweep a Carpeted Room.

The committee on the prevention of tuberculosis is trying to rid every house of the old feather duster. The recruits in the warfare against consumption have taken up arms against it. A good deal is heard about street dust and soft coal as a nuisance and as dangerous to the public health, but we are apt to forget that right in our own homes we often have a danger that is perhaps just as great as either of these. The old-fashioned way of cleaning a room with a feather dusted is a real menace to health. The men who have organized anti-tuberculosis movements have come out with the following public announcement about sweeping and dusting:

"When you sweep a room raise as little dust as possible, because this dust when breathed irritates the nose and throat and may set up catarrh. Some of the dust breathed in the dusty air reaches the lungs, making parts of them black and hard and useless.

"To prevent making a dust in sweeping, use moist sawdust on bare floors. When the room is carpeted, moisten a newspaper and tear it into small scraps and scatter upon the carpet where you begin sweeping. As you sweep brush the papers along by the broom, and they will catch most of the dust and hold it fast, just as the sawdust does on bare floors. Do not have either the paper or the sawdust dripping wet, only moist.

"In dusting a room do not use a feather duster, because this does not remove the dust from the room, but only brushes it into the air so that you breathe it in; or it settles down, and then you have to do the work over again.

"Use soft, dry cloths to dust with and shake them frequently out of the window, or use slightly moistened cloths and rinse them out in water when you have finished. In this way you get the dust out of the room.

"In cleaning rooms you should remember that dust settles upon the floors as well as on the furniture, and is stirred into the air we breathe by walking across the floors. You can easily remove all this dust in rooms which have bare floors, in houses, stores, shops, schoolrooms, etc., after the dust has settled, by passing over the floor a mop which has been [illegible]ng out so as to be only moist, [illegible] dripping wet."

POINTS ON IRONING LACE.

Well to Remember If You Desire the Best Results.

One of the points to remember when ironing lace is to iron it well to the width, so that the whole design of the lace will show clear and distinct and look as near like the new material as possible.

To do this the lace must be carefully pulled to the width and then placed on the table wrong side up and ironed along the straight edge, holding the lace up in front of the iron so that the toe of the iron may press the lace to the width and also keep the selvedge straight.

Again place the lace flat on the table and iron across the width, pressing the toe of the iron into each point until it is quite dry. If the lace has a raised pattern, a thick piece of felt or three folds of ordinary blanket may be slipped under the ironing sheet and the lace ironed over it. This will raise the work considerably.

Very fine lace should be ironed through muslin and never touched with the bare metal.

Cold Slaw.

Select a fresh hard head of cabbage, pick off the outside leaves, cut in half with a sharp knife, shave into fine pieces, a board comes for this purpose, put the shreds into a dish and pour over the following dressing:

Take the whole of two raw eggs, beat slightly, add half a tumblerful of cream, stir well then add two tablespoonfuls of good vinegar (unless very strong) stir until it thickens.

Put on the fire in an enameled saucepan until it comes to a boil, remove from the fire, pour over the cabbage while hot, mix thoroughly and put away to cool. Just before serving season with salt and pepper.

Frothed Chocolate.

To make frothed chocolate for ten or a dozen guests, beat two quarts milk in a double boiler so that there will be no danger of its scorching. Cook in a saucepan four squares chocolate with four tablespoonfuls sugar, four tablespoonfuls hot water or milk, and a saltspoonful salt. When smooth and shiny add the hot milk gradually, stirring all the time. Then whip lightly with an egg beater and flavor with cinnamon or a teaspoonful vanilla, or a little of each. Have ready a pint of whipped cream, put a tablespoonful in the bottom of each cup, pour the hot chocolate over it and serve very hot.

Peas in Turnip Cups.

Select even sized white Dutch turnips. Peel them and scoop out the center, so that only a shell remains. Put these in a steamer and cook until tender, but not soft enough to lose their shape. Put a turnip cup on a small plate, fill the center with French peas which have been heated in a rich white sauce, and surround the base of the turnip with sprigs of parsley.

REFUSED TO GIVE NAMES

OF WOULD-BE ASSASSINS WHO SHOT HIM IN PIKE COUNTY, KY.

HE WILL LIVE 'TO GET THEM BOTH'

The Man Who Was Wounded Is One of the Best Marksmen in the Blue Grass State, but Recovery Is Not Assured.

Ashland, Ky., June 28.—John Adams, a wealthy cattle dealer of Pike county, who has been for years connected with the Wellman faction in the feud troubles in that county, was ambushed by two men while passing a clump of bushes on the Esau Moore place yesterday and probably fatally shot.

His assailants are not positively known by any one save the wounded man, and he refuses to give their names, saying he will live "to get them both."

Adams is one of the best shots in Pike county. His activity in feud troubles in the past has been the cause of a number of attempts to kill him, but he has always escaped, and in three known instances "got" the men who attempted to kill him.

Adams is the man who lay in wait three days on the Sandy Hook trail in Elliott county for "Dick" Tolburn, who had shot him through the shoulder from ambush, finally "landing" Tolburn with a squirrel rifle by a drop shot of more than 500 yards, shooting from mountain side to mountain side.

It is not thought that Adams can recover from his present wounds, as he was hit four times, one bullet passing entirely through the body, one through the muscles of the neck and two through the legs.

TENT HAD 300 GUESTS

The Fish Fry Given by the Maccabees Last Night.

Fully 300 people attended the annual fish fry of Ritchie tent of the Maccabees, given at Thatcher's ford, on Flat creek, last night. As told in yesterday's Democrat-Sentinel, the wagons, numbering five, with a large number of private conveyances, left the court house square, accompanied by the Sedalia Military band, at 6:15 o'clock.

The finest fish ever eaten, and of all varieties, cooked and prepared in royal style by J. L. Babcock and Lee Looney, were supplied in ample quantities, and each and every guest had his or her share of the supply.

The table on which the finny tribe was served was neatly decorated by John McCloskey, who, among other things, arrayed it with a number of Japanese lanterns.

TAPPED THE THEATER TILL

Business Manager Convicted of Stealing $3,000.

St. Paul, Minn., June 28.—Harry E. Ricker, formerly business manager of the Metropolitan opera house, St. Paul's leading theatre, has been found guilty by a jury in the district ccurt of having stolen over $3,000 from the funds of the theatre.

Ricker's defense was that he was held up and robbed in the theatre on the night of April 27 of over $2,000 while he was carrying that amount from the box office upstairs to the safe in the office. An examination of the books showed further shortage of funds.

Ricker has been in the employ of Manager L. N. Scott for ten years.

CHILD'S BODY IN COAL BIN

Missing Little Girl Found to Have Been Murdered.

New York, June 28.—Eight-year-old Viola Boylan, who had been missing from her home in Second avenue since last Monday, was the victim of a most atrocious assault. Her body, horribly mutilated, was found in a coal bin in the cellar of her home yesterday. She had been dead for many hours.

The police are searching for two young Italians, who, they have been informed, were seen trying to entice the child to enter a cellar with them several days ago.

TELEGRAMS SENT BY MAIL

Small Hints They're Not All Put On the Wire

San Francisco, June 28.—It is claimed by the striking telegraphers that the Western Union is tied up tighter on the sixth day of the strike than on the evening the strike was called.

Absolutely reliable reports, it is claimed, from the Postal office in the Ferry building, show that on June 25 there were less than 400 messages sent Easward, as against an average of 2,200 per day, and 495 received from the east, as against an average of 3,300.

President Small of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, said last night: "We know how many telegraphers the two companies have at work and how many telegrams they are handling by wire.

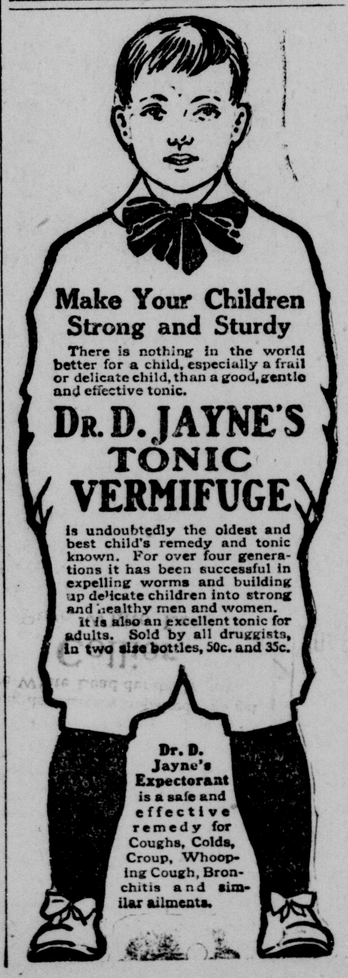

"If the telegraphing public is willing to pay telegraph tolls on telegrams that are being transported by mail that is their affair."

LENT $13,000 TO STRAW MAN

Trust Company's President Accused of Embezzlement.

Minneapolis, June 28.—J. U. Barnes, president of the defunct Minnesota Title Insurance and Trust company, is under arrest on a charge of embezzling $13,000 of the funds of that company. There is said to be a shortage in realty of $150,000.

The most important allegation is that the company loaned Barnes $13,000, through the medium of a "straw man," but it is said other charges of responsibility for shortages are likely to be pressed.

REGARDING RAILROADS

THE TWO-CENT FARE TEST WILL BE PROLONGED UNTIL OCTOBER 1.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

The ninety day test of the 2-cent passenger fare rate, which would, under the federal court arrangement, expire Sept. 19, is to be continued until Oct. 1 by at least three of the leading railroads in the state, their representatives having asked Attorney General Hadley to agree to such an arrangement. It is supposed that the other companies will also come into the agreement.

The purpose of the request is explained by the desire of the companies, should they conclude to contest a continuance of the rate, to be prepared to make an exhibit of their earnings under it for three full months, without the fractional part of a month at either end.

By extending the time to October 1 they can begin the exhibit with July 1.

General Hadley offered no objection and the proposed extension will be carried out by these three roads. General Hadley declined to name them.

Heavy Equipment Orders.

The Harriman, Gould and other large railroad systems have placed car contracts within the last few days, calling for an expenditure of upwards of $15,000,000, and orders are pending for cars to the value of fully $10,000,000 more.

Heavy contracts are also about to be given for locomotives for use on eastern lines.

The principal contract calls for 14,100 freight cars. The Harriman lines have ordered 6000 refrigerator cars, and the Missouri Pacific 7000 freight, most of them to be delivered this year.

The most important contracts pending are for the New York Central lines, specifications being under way for 6000 cars, 3,500 of which will be ordered within the next few weeks. The Rock Island system, it is stated, is also about to order 3,000 freight cars.

Katy Passenger Changes.

A number of changes in the passenger staff of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, effective July 1, were announced in St. Louis yesterday by General Passenger Agent W. S. St. George.

C. A. Briggs, passenger and ticket agent at Oklahoma City, Okla., is transferred to Fort Worth, Texas, in the same capacity. He is succeeded at Oklahoma City by W. G. Slagle, passenger and ticket agent at Muskogee, I. T., who is succeeded by his assistant, W. H. Pritchett. Mr. Pritchett will have as his assistant C. E. McCulley, formerly of Parsons, Kan.

Amiel Clark, who has been stationed at Sedalia, Mo., is appointed assistant ticket agent at Parsons, Kan., and is succeeded at Sedalia by Munson Goodyear.

Telegraphers' Law Violated.

Prosecuting Attorney Ewing Cockrell, of Johnson county, yesterday filed information on ten different counts against the officials of the Missouri Pacific railway, and on four different counts against the officials of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway for violating the telegraphers' eight-hour law, passed by the Missouri legislature last winter.

Mr. Cockrell charges that the railway officials are working their operators in Warrensburg, Knob Noster and Holden twelve hours.

Killed 2-Cent Fare Bill.

The Wisconsin senate yesterday, by a vote of 21 to 5, killed the 2-cent railway fare bill.

MORE CROSS EXAMINATIONS

Haywood Case Developed Nothing of Interest Today.

Boise, Idaho, June 28.—When court opened in the Haywood case this morning Dr. McGee was called by the state for cross examination, but little of benefit was brought out.

William Easterly, who was one of the leaders in the great Cripple Creek strike, and whom Orchard connects with some of the violence in Cripple Creek, was recalled to the stand and continued his testimony in behalf of Haywood.

Esterly denied absolutely all of Orchard's testimony that reflects upon him, and swore that in the fall of 1903 he had heard Orchard threaten to kill Governor Steunenberg.

On cross-examination the state strongy attacked Easterly for remaining silent after he knew Orchard and Thomas Hogan had killed Governor Steunenberg, and for not speaking until Orchard made a confession implicating the Western Federation of Miners.

DAY OF THE SERMON PAST

Baptist Pastor Urged Personal Work in Ministry.

Chicago, June 28.—Sermons and discourses from the pulpit belong to the passing order—are out of date. Like the crusades, they have had their day in the religious world and now must give way before a new era in the manner of getting people into clean association with the church. The new period in religion is "personal work."

This is the belief of the Rev. Johnston Myers, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church, expressed before an audience of more than 100 young divinity students at the University of Chicago in his second lecture of a series on the general topic of "Modern Evangelism."

ALL WILL BE FORGIVEN

Music Master and Girl Pupil Taken Back to Cincinnati.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 28.—Detective Calahan, of Cincinnati, O., arrived here yesterday and left last night, having in charge Christian Zimmermann and Miss Elsie Kraft, apprehended here several days ago, Zimmermann charged with abduction and Miss Kraft with juvenile delinquency.

Zimmermann was a music teacher of considerable note in Cincinati. Miss Kraf was his pupil and they liked each other very well.

Zimmermann was afraid his wife would object and decided to come to Oklahoma City. Miss Kraft decided to come with him. Zimmermann has been forgiven by his wife and it is thought no further trouble will result.

GAVE HIM A WATER SERVICE

Boonville Club Remembers Bridge Arbitrary Abolition.

Boonville, Mo., June 28.—As a token of appreciation for the services he has rendered his constituents the Commercial club of Boonville has presented to State Senator Sam W. Major, of Fayette, Mo., a handsome cut glass water service.

It was through the untiring efforts of Senator Major that the bill known as the "bridge arbitrary" was originated and passed by the recent legislature, thereby cutting off a charge of 25 cents for every passenger, and toll for every article of freight that passed over the bridge.

The passage of such a law has been looked forward to for nearly half a century by citizens and shippers from both sides of the river.

Luttbeg Won the Match.

Al Ackerman, alleged champion welterweight wrestler of the world, quit in his match with Max Luttbeg at Convention hall in Kansas City last night after Luttbeg had secured one fall and the second bout had gone thirty-four minutes.

FOUR HANGINGS IN MISSOURI

Harry H. Vaughan, George Ryan and Edward Raymond Executed at the State Capital This Morning

ALL WERE GAME WHEN DROP FELL

Democrat-Sentinel Reporter Was With the Trio At the Last Moment—Their Farewell Utterances—History of the Crime — Hanging In St. Louis Also

Special to Democrat-Sentinel.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 27.—Harry Vaughan, Edward Raymond and George Ryan were hanged in the county jail here this morning at 9:45 o'clock for the killing of a prison guard, John Clay, during the concerted attempt to escape from the penitentiary November 24, 1905.

The trio were hanged at the same moment, Sheriff Scott sprung the trap and several minutes later all three were pronounced dead.

No statement was made from the scaffold.

The men were removed from the penitentiary where they were serving terms for various offenses, to the county jail at 5 o'clock this morning, being conveyed in a closed wagonette.

Bore Up Bravely.

The men were remarkably cool and mounted the scaffold without a tremor. Raymond smiled while being placed on the trap and was smiling when the black cap was adjusted. He chewed a toothpick all the morning, and it was between his teeth when he dropped.

The others bore the ordeal without a tremor. Vaughan, whom all thought would break down, showed as much nerve as the others. No word was spoken by the condemned men on the scaffold, they only nodding responses to the priests' prayers.

Sheriff John Scott, assisted by several sheriffs from the state, although sick, sprung the trap himself.

United in Lord's Prayer.

Just before the trap fell the two priests united in the Lord's Prayer and continued after the trigger was sprung.

Raymond suffered the most. He struggled violently several minutes, drawing his feet up, his chest heaving spasmodically. His fingers twitched and he gave every evidence of acute pain.

Ryan's chest heaved fearfully and seemed ready to burst.

Vaughan never moved after he dropped, although he was the last to be pronounced dead.

None had their necks broken, but all were strangled.

Raymond lived 11¾ minutes, Ryan 12½ minutes and Vaughan 16 minutes and 22 seconds.

The bodies were claimed by the priests and given Christian burial this afternoon in the penitentiary cemetery.

How the Last Night Was Spent.

The three condemned men spent their last night on earth in the penitentiary in the same cell in which they have been confined for the past nineteen months, the only change from the old routine being that they were allowed lamps in front of the gratings of their dungeons, and had the company of two guards, who were always at hand to do anything possible to ease the hours away.

The Democrat-Sentinel representative visited the penitentiary at 9 o'clock last night and spent an hour conversing with them. All were more than usually cheerful and each appeared thoroughly resigned to his fate.

Vaughan, the leader, was the most serious of the three, and while saying that he was ready and willing to go, yet he expressed the wish that he had come to a full realization of a life of crime before it was too late.

He said that he had had no education in his youth and had naturally drifted into crime as soon as he was able to do anything. From petty thievery he committed robbery, went to the penitentiary and was no sooner out than he was in again; and out of his thirty-five years he had spent sixteen years in prison.

He said he had never known anything but crime, and that it was only about six months ago that he really began to think. Said he last night:

"A habitual criminal is one who don't think or don't know. Something is wrong with his brain. I never realized this until within the last few months, when I have been reading everything I could get my hands on, that there was anything else in the world except crime and stealing.

"It's too late now, though, and I am going to take my punishment with all the courage I can command. It may be I am breaking down; and if trying to save my soul is breaking down, then I am, but I am resigned and am trusting that after this is all over I shall be happier than I have ever been in this life of sin.

"No, I shan't give my right name or make a speech on the gallows. It's all over and would do no good, and might bring sorrow to my relatives."

Cracked Several Jokes.

Edward Raymond, the best educated and most refined of the three, wore a pleasant smile during the whole time the newspaper man talked with him. He said that it was no use to regret, "what was to be had to be, and after all death came but once and I am prepared." He said he based his hope for a future on his religious faith and would meet death with all the courage possible.

When asked if he would reveal his correct name or say anything on the gallows he replied in the negative, saying the least said the better. He was very pleasant and at times jocular and cracked several jokes during the conversation.

"Just to think," said he, "if I hadn't tried to escape my original sentence would almost have expired by now, and in a little time I would be free. If I'd only thought of that. But it's too late now."

The Youngest of the Trio.

George Ryan, the youngest of the trio and the only married one, said, as did the others, that he would not reveal his identity before being executed, and that he would not make any remarks on the gallows.

"What's the use," said he. "No one there will care a rap about me; they'll be there only through curiosity, and none of them will believe me anyway.

"Who I am and what I am amounts to but little; this is the last of it all, and I might as well go without saying anything as not. I am resigned as best I can be under the circumstances and place all my trust now in my Maker."

Vaughn and Ryan both accepted cigars, but Raymond declined, saying he had quit smoking about three months ago. All three bade the visitor a hearty good night and each said, "I'll see you in the morning; good night and good luck."

Their Religious Devotions.

Later on the men went through their religious devotions and then lay down for rest and sleep. They all slept soundly from 1 o'clock until 4, when they were awakened. They were then dressed in neat black suits, white shirts and collars, with black ties, and after bidding good bye to the guards were placed in a wagonette and driven to the county jail, where they were given a hearty breakfast, after which they were left with Rev. Frs. Selinger and Geisert, of St. Peter's Catholic church, who administered the last sacrament and gave them absolution.

The death warrant reading was waived and the short march to the gallows began. Each bore up bravely and kept his eyes on the crucifix held up to their gaze by their devoted spiritual adviser, who accompanied them.

Record of Edward Raymond.

Edward Raymond was sent up from St. Louis for five years from December 10, 1904, on the charge of holding up a saloon. At that time he was 23 years of age. He is a native of Massachusetts and gave his occupation as a tailor. Both his parents are living and he was reared in the Catholic faith. He is fairly well educated. He admitted that Raymond is not his real name, but refused to give it. He had served a short term in the Colorado penitentiary before being arrested in St. Louis.

Record of Harry H. Vaughan.

Harry H. Vaughan was sent up from St. Louis for the crime of robbery in the first degree and sentenced to thirty-five years' imprisonment from March 10, 1905. He was 33 years of age when received. He was a native of Ohio and a shoemaker by occupation. His father is living. Harry was reared in the Catholic religion. His habits were temperate and he had a fair education. He had served two terms in prison previously. Vaughan is not his real name, but he refused to give the correct one.

Vaughan was the ony survivor of the yegg gang that was rounded up in St. Louis in 1904 and which engaged in a terrible battle with St. Louis detectives, in which all the gang except Vaughn were killed. In this battle three detectives were killed before they succeeded in exterminating the outaws. Vaughan would probably have suffered the same fate, but was taken into custody on the street in front of the gang's headquarters just previous to the battle. He pleaded guilty to a charge of robbing a drug store in the outskirts of St. Louis, and was given a thirty-five years' sentence.

Record of George Ryan.

George Ryan was sent up from Jackson county, Mo., for the crime of highway robbery in the first degree and was sentenced to eight years from March 8, 1904. He was then aged 24 years. He was a native of Missouri and was one of the so-called ice box robbers. He was married and his parents are both living.

Ryan is a fictitious name, and he refused to give the right one. His parents and his wife both live in St. Louis. He had a fair education, but had served one previous term in the Missouri penitentiary.

History of the Crime.

Following is the confession made by Ryan to Warden Hall soon after the kiling and in which Raymond joined as to the facts, but which Vaughan refused to either corroborate or deny.

"The pistols, nitro-glycerine and fuse to ignite the same were furnished us by H. E. Spencer, who was released from the penitentiary November 9, 1905. We had formed his acquaintance in the shoe shop where we all worked. We knew when his time would expire. He had told Vaughan, who worked beside him, that after he got out he could furnish us with pistols and explosives enough to blow a hole in the prison wall.

"It was more than a month ago when we commenced planning the escape. Vaughan had $18 which he had concealed when he entered the prison. This he contributed to a purse of $40, the remainder being contributed by Blake, Raymond and myself. We worked overtime on our tasks, and that is the way the rest of us secured our money. Spencer knew how much money we had. He told Vaughan that it wasn't enough, but that he could get some more when released.

"Vaughan had the best chance to talk with Spencer, so the details were largely arranged by them and repeated to us in our joint cell by Vaughan. These arrangements were to the effect that our $40 was to be passed to Spencer the day before his release.

Buy Guns and Ammunition

"Once out of the prison he was to proceed to Kansas City and buy the pistols and ammunition and from there he was to proceed to Carthage and steal dynamite and extract a sufficient quantity of nitro-glycerine to serve our ends from the dynamite sticks. The caps and fuses were to be stolen from some of the miners' supplies at Joplin.

"Wednesday night of last week Spencer was to return to Jefferson City with the weapons and explosives, climb over the wall of the stockade, pry open a window in the shoe shop where Vaughan worked, and shove the deadly material under the bench where Vaughan worked in the daytime.

"Of course, we did not see or hear from Spencer after he left the prison, but he kept his promise to the letter. We knew that the stockade had never been guarded at night, for the reason that no convicts were allowed to remain there after the shops closed in the evening. Spencer had carefully surveyed the stockade and said it would be easy to get to the top of the wall by climbing a ladder at the corner near the warden's residence and letting himself down with a rope.

"This, I suppose, is the way he got into the stockade. His trip to and from Jefferson City was to made in the night for at no other time could the plan have failed to miscarry. Now all I know about his return to Jefferson City is that we found the pistols, ammunition and explosives where he said he would place them.

Was to Seize an Engine.

"It was Spencer's understanding that we were to blow a hole in the prison wall, rush to the Missouri Pacific railroad, seize an engine, cut it loose and proceed east to the Moreau river bridge, blow it up so as to prevent pursuit by rail, and then abandon the engine when we reached some safe spot.

"After we received the weapons and explosives Vaughan said he was afraid we did not have enough nitroglycerine to blow a hole through the thick wall. He said it was a very thick and heavy wall, and that we would need all the explosives to wreck the Moreau bridge. Then we fell to discussing a plan to make prisoners of Deputy Warden See, Yardmaster Porter Gilvin and Assistant Yardmaster Frank Moore, march them to the round gate and on threat of instantly killing them, force the gateman to let us through.

"This plan was fully agreed upon Thursday night, and it was the merest accident that we did not try to carry it out. According to agreement, we met at the storeroom of the shoe shop Friday afternoon and fully equipped ourselves for the undertaking. We marched to the deputy warden's office, and were much surprised to find Gilvin and Moore absent. Two visitors were there talking to a convict.

Began Pulling Pistol.

"When we ordered Deputy Warden See to surrender, he commenced pulling a pistol from his hip pocket. Then we shot and wounded him, secured his pistol and marched him and the two visitors to the round rate, taking all three of them as shields to prevent guards from shooting at us. Just as we reached the round gate, the big gate on the inside of the wagon passageway opened to let a wagon through and we instantly changed our minds, and rushed in at the open gate.

"We ordered Officer John Clay to surrender. He started to draw his pistol and we killed him. Then we closed the inside door and bolted it to prevent guards from attacking us from the inside of the penitentiary. We ordered the deputy warden to open the outside steel gate. He said he could not do so, but would let us out at the side door. He called through the grating to open it. Capt. Allison responded with a cocked pistol in his hand. Deputy Warden See called to him not to shoot. The captain ordered us to surrender. We fired and killed him.

"Then we believed that our only way out was to blow open the big steel door, which we did. None of us knew anything about the use of explosives, so the first charge was entirely too light. Next time we used nearly all of our nitro-glycerine, which caused a terrific explosion and blew a great hole through the door, and through which we escaped."

The Pursuit and Capture.

The pursuit and capture of the convicts was sensational in the extreme. After the explosion the prison had been thoroughly aroused. Capt. See had secured a gun and accompanied by Guard John Bruner, who had run from the lower part of the prison, and Guard Williams, followed close in the wake of the convicts, who kept up an incessant fusiliade.

Williams, who was leading the pursuing party, was shot in the leg and disabled. Bruner finally took the lead, and when he reached the railroad tracks, with the convicts running about 150 yards ahead of him, he fired and brought Blake down with a mortal wound. The convicts ran up the track to the freight depot, and there, observing a stake wagon ready to be loaded, they abandoned the idea of capturing an engine, and seized the wagon, placing pistols to the head of the driver and ordering him to drive anywhere to get out of range of Bruner's deadly rifle.

Believing that the convicts were unfamiliar with the streets of the city, in place of driving west, the driver of the stake wagon kept driving in a semicircle so as to render pursuit more easy.

LOVING MAD FROM DRINK

DAUGHTER'S AVENGER DECLARED IRRESPONSIBLE FOR THE KILLING.

JUDGE DRUNK FOR FOUR YEARS

The State Assails the Story of Woe Told By the Girl to Save Her Father—Defense Scored a Strong Point Today.

Houston, Va., June 27.—Judge Barksdale, on convening court for the Loving murder trial this morning, rendered an opinion as to the admissibility of evidence by the prosecution tending to disprove the story told by Miss Loving to her father and of her ruin at the hands of Estes.

The opinion was in favor of Loving, and the evidence will not be submitted.

The judge ruled that the character of the girl or the character of Estes was ot on issue, and the truth or falsity of her story had no bearing on the case.

T. H. McGinnis, a Lovington livery man, testified to seeing Loving a moment before the tragedy occurred. Loving had asked McGinnis to direct him to Estes.

Loving showed no excitement except that he was red in the face.

After the shooting he talked with Loving, after the doctor had been summoned.

The defendant remarked, "A doctor will do no good; I shot to kill."

"Did you perceive any evidence of mental weakness in Loving on the day of the tragedy?"

"I cannot say that I did."

The defense secured from the witness a statement that Loving declared, "Theodore Estes took my daughter out buggy riding, drugged and ruined her."

The Wednesday Proceedings.

Houston, Va., June 27.—In the trial of Judge Loving for the murder of Theodore Estes, yesterday the defense closed after an examination of three witnesses called to testify that Judge Loving was insane at the time of the killing.

The defense asserts that the mind of Judge Loving had, after years of dissipation, which frequently caused him to have delirium tremens, became unbalanced, and that when his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Loving, told him that she had been drugged and wronged by Estes, he became deranged and was not responsible for his act.

Counsel for the defense hope, through the plea of emotional insanity, to prevent any attempt to impeach the statement of Miss Loving.

The prosecution announced as their first witness Miss Annie Kidd, who, they said, would disprove the story of Miss Loving. This was immediately objected to and the jury retired.

The attorneys for the defense argued that the prosecution had no right to enter into the truth or falsity of the story told by Miss Loving to her father, and cited the New York decision by which District Attorney Jerome was not allowed to impeach the testimony of Evelyn Thaw.

Girl's Story to Be Assailed.

The ruling of Judge Barksdale on this point is deemed most important, as the prosecution claims to have witnesses to disprove every statement made by the girl told on the stand.

At the opening of court yesterday John P., W. G. and Henry Swanson, brothers of Gov. Swanson, had seats on the prosecution's side. Mrs. J. P. Swanson is a sister of Estes, and her husband is taking an active part in defending the memory of the dead man.

Sheriff Beard, of Amherst county, who has known Judge Loving for years, testified as to the defendant being an excessive drinker, and that he had suffered at times from delirium tremens.

The witness stated that the dissipation of Judge Loving had completely changed his disposition, and that before he started drinking he was pleasant and agreeable, though in later years he had become unreasonable and disagreeable.

Sheriff Beard stated the he knew that Judge Loving was continuously drunk for four years while in Amherst county.

Mr. Harrison, of Amherst, formerly a lawyer, testified along the same lines as to the excessive drinking and the change it had brought on Loving.

Dr. Charles L. Emmons, a brain specialist of Washington, testified. He was asked a hypothetical question, going over the life of Judge Loving, his dissipations, his various traubles, etc., coming down to the information given him by his brother-in-law, Harry Sneed, and late his daughter's story, and his opinion was asked as to the status of a man who had undergone these experiences. The reply was that he was "mentally deranged."

In Dr. Emmons' opinion, "the act of Judge Loving was the result of a diseased mind."

The witness stated that he made an examination of Judge Loving, which, in a sense corroborated his opinion.

Dr. Emmons was asked whether an insane man could perform the duties of judge of a county court. His reply was that a man of high education could be judge and still have some mental defects.

At the conclusion of the testimony of Dr. Emmons, Mr. Lee presented a statement that young Estes was unmarried, was 27 years of age and weighed 115 pounds. Miss Loving weighs 140 pounds. The defense then rested.

TROUBLE OVER A BAND

IT WAS ENGAGED FOR THE RED MEN'S MEMORIAL SERVICE ON SUNDAY.

SOME OF THE MEMBERS OBJECTED

In Event a Satisfactory Understanding Is Not Reached, Possible Separate Memorial Services Will Be Held.

(Thursday's Daily.)

The committees from Apache and Wichita tribes of Red Men, appointed to arrange a program for the annual memorial services of the order, to be held next Sunday, met last night, but did not reach any agreement, and it is possible that the two tribes will hold their services separately, unless an agreement is reached either today or tomorrow.

The principal hitch is due to the fact that the Sedalia Military band was employed by a certain member of one of the tribes, who engaged it on his own responsibility, and desired defraying the expenses for the same.

The Military band is a non-union band, and the union musicians, members of the Improved Order of Red Men, objected to having any band.

Apache tribe refused to accede to this request, but Wichita tribe remains firm and wants no band.

A STANDARD OIL CASE

Judge Wants to Learn of Company's Financial Condition.

Chicago, June 27.—Subpoenas were issued this morning in the district court for the officers of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey to appear here July 6, before Judge Landis, who desires to learn the true financial condition of the company which is under indictment.

Among the eight Standard officials subpoenaed are John D. Rockefeller, Wm. Rockefeller, John D. Arhbold, Henry H. Rogers and W. H. Tilford.

Others summoned to testify are J. A. Moffett, president of the Indiana company, and President Felton, of the Union Tank line.

Took Five Stitches in Wound.

(Thursday's Daily.)

Rolla Carpenter, residing near this city, sustained a two-inch gash in his upper lip, near the Warner Coal company's office, on East Fifth street, at noon today. He was riding in a vehicle, when the front axle broke, precipitating him to the ground. Dr. F. R. Morley dressed the injury. It required five stitches to close the wound.

New Professor for Lexington.

Warrensburg, Mo., June 27.—Prof. Clyde Curnutt, of this city, has been elected assistant in elementary work in English in the Wentworth Military academy in Lexington. He will also have charge of special athletic work.

WED IN A FREIGHT CAR

CHERRYVALE, KANSAS, GIRL BECAME THE BRIDE OF A ST. LOUIS MAN.

ARRIVAL OF BRIDE WAS DELAYED

Otherwise Couple Would Have Been Married Monday Night—Now En Route to California on Bridal Trip.

St. Louis, June 27.—Charles L. Elliott, 34 years old, of Olivette, St. Louis county, and Miss Sadie G. Marshall, 32 years old, of Cherryvale, Kan., were married in a house made of freight cars on the Belt line near Olivette Tuesday night, just in time to catch a train which passed that point and start on their honeymoon trip to California.

They were to have been married Monday night, but Miss Marshall's arrival was delayed, and she did not reach St. Louis until Tuesday. Tuesday afternoon Elliott went to Clayton alone and was at first refused a license. Later, accompanied by Justice J. H. Werremeyer, whom he knows, he got the document.

Mrs. Skinner, Elliott's mother, has a large home, but had the ceremony been held there the couple would have missed their train.

Elliott determined to be married at the trackside. Several freight cars had been derailed at the point and joined into one big apartment, which is comfortably furnished.

The ceremony was hardly completed when the train passed at 6:15 o'clock, and the bride had not even time to remove her veil before jumping aboard.

THE ORCHARD CASE

Mr. Borah, for the State, Questions Witness Davis.

Boise, Idaho, June 27.—W. F. Davis resumed the stand this morning in the Haywood murder trial and was questioned by Mr. Borah for the state.

Mr. Borah searchingly questioned Davis. He drove Davis very hard on conditions at Cripple Creek and his action in changing his name, but the witness held to denials of misconduct on the part of himself and his assistants.

W. W. Bush, formerly an engineer of the Florence and Cripple Creek railroad, asserted that Detectives Scott and Sterling staged and executed the second attemp to wreck a train on the line during the strike.

Ed Boyce, formerly president of the Western Federation of Miners declared that James H. Hawley, now leading counsel against Haywood, but then counsel for the miners, had in 1893 suggested to Boyce the organizaton of the Western Federation as an off-set to the Mine Owners' association.

WILL LEAVE SEDALIA

Glen Stevenson Has Disposed of His Printing Plant.

(Thursday's Daily.)

Glen Stevenson, owner and manager of the Stevenson Printing Co., in the Porter building, at Fourth and Osage streets, today sold to the management of the Thompson Printing company, at Carthage, Mo., his entire plant, including machinery, equipment, supplies and the like, and retires on July 6.

The consideration was private. The plant will be removed to Carthage. Mr. Stevenson, accompanied by his wife, will return to St. Louis during the next month, where he has a rattling good offer awaiting him.

Since becoming residents of this city Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson made the acquaintance and friendship of many Sedalians, all of whom will regret to see them leave the Queen City, but will be glad to learn of their success in the Mound City.

Peter's Success Is Assured.

P. B. Stratton, for many years editor of the Sedalia Democrat, has purchased a fine farm near Sedalia, where he expects to reside in future, says the Nevada Mail. He was for many years connected with the country press of Missouri. If he makes as competent a farmer as he was able in journalism his future success is fully assured.

A SOUTHERN MAN.

The perennial question of party politics as to who will be the nominees of both parties for president has received an impetus by the endorsement of Senator Knox by the republican state convention of Pennsylvania. He is evidently brought forward by the faction of his party who are determined to prevent tariff reform or even reciprocity. This insures a squabble over candidates and also over the tariff plank in the republican national convention that will be difficult to compromise without losing the votes of those republicans who really believe in tariff reform.

The movement in the democratic party for the nomination of a southern man has been very generally talked up in the south and nearly every southern state has presented one or more favorite sons for consideration.

Such a free, fair and open discussion of who is the most available candidate is a bright omen for victory. There is no doubt that a majority of democrats favor the renomination of Mr. Bryan, but many who were his most ardent supporters in other campaigns fear that he might again be defeated, and they feel that another defeat would be disastrous to him and the party.

The question that democrats must settle is therefore one of expediency as to who is the most available candidate under all the circumstances. There will be no dispute about the platform, for there is general unanimity on fundamental principles and not likely to be much controversy on the stand the party must take on the issues that have arisen during the past four years that are open for settlement in the future.

Democrats of all shades of opinion admire Mr. Bryan, they praise his honesty of purpose, and the only question they want answered is, can he be elected, and what states can fairly be expected to carry?

BAD LEADERSHIP.

The Western Federation of Miners is not helping its cause very much by the speeches and resolutions offered in the annual convention now in session at Denver, says the Quincy Herald. It is proposed to adopt a preamble to the constitution declaring that "a class struggle exists in society which must continue until the producer is sole master of the product." It is therefore proposed that "we, wage slaves, employed in the mines and smelters, have associated ourselves in the Western Federation of Miners."

The record of the association does not show that it is made up of slaves and it is ridiculous for any band or brand of toilers in America to so stigmatize themselves. They would be the first to resent it were the term applied to them by any body of men in the old world.

One of the orators was vigorously applauded when he declared that "there can be no friendly relations between employer and employed because there can be no friendship between the thief and the man he robs."

The presumption, of course, was that he speaker was the man who was being robbed.

When any group of men declare that they are slaves who are being plundered by thievish employers they should not expect to be seriously taken by any sane body of American citizens. The Western Federation of Miners appears to be another body of original well-reasoning men which has fallen prey to reckless and irresponsible leadership.

GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE.

The government of France has just appointed Dr. Harvey Wiley chief chemist and food expert of the department of agriculture on the board of inquiry into the wine rebellion in France. The wie rebellion seems like almost a farcial proposition from this side the water but to the French it is very serious.

Dr. Wiley has been appointed on the board of inquiry principally because he is a member of the French Pure Food society and has made a special study of French wines for export to the United States. His inquiries have not been very favorable to the French manufacturers, indicating that much of the falling off in the French foreign trade was due to the shameless adulteration of French export wines.

This is the same state of agairs that was disclosed by the investigation by Dr. Wiley of the Scotch whiskey trade. There were stringent laws at home for the making of pure whiskey, but the manufacturers were allowed to put up anything they wanted for selling to the United States.

It would appear that in view of these experiences Dr. Wiley would not prove a very helpful witness for the French wine growers before the nations of the world, but at least he may be able to do something toward putting the French wine industry on a better and more honest footing.

OFFICIAL DEMOCRATIC HISTORY.

National convention proceedings of the democratic party from 1789-1908 have been compiled by Mr. Edwin Sefton, secretary of the committee on organization and campaign of the democratic national committee.

This official history of the acts of the democracy from the foundation of the government has been endorsed by all the leaders of the party, and will be of the greatest value to all political students, and especially to every democrat who desires to know the history of his party and to tell authentically why he is a democrat.

These proceedings will consist of eight octavo volumes, and the Publishers, the Union Press, New York, assure us it will be a superb set of books, so far as type, paper and binding are concerned. The volumes are embellished with authentic and interesting pictures and portraits of the highest grade, and can be secured at a very reasonable price by addressing Edwin Sefton, 68 Williams street, New York City.

LABOR NOT PROTECTED.

In Germany the leading protectionist country of Europe, and one which has recently increased the duties on imports, there is increasing distress arising from low wages and high prices of the necessaries of life.

Consul Hannah, of Magdoburg, reports an enormous increase in the cost of living for 1906 over 1905. He also reports that in certain industries the highest possible earnings of laborers is 8 cents an hour, and the average only 4 cents, American money. The consul at Zittau tells a similar story.

These reports show that tariff taxes do not improve the condition of working men. The high wages paid in this country in the building and railroad and mining industries, which are not protected, prove that it is not the protective tariff, but the organizations of the laboring men that make wages high, in spite of the enormous immigration and difficulty in procuring certain raw materials, owing to prohibitive duties.

AVAILABILITY THE TEST

That sterling democrat, J. Ham Lewis, endorses the proposition that comes from Georgia to nominate Governor Hoke Smith as the democratic candidate for vice president, if it is considered desirable to select a southern man.

What is needed, however, is not a southern man or a northern man because he is from either section of the country, but one who will be satisfactory to both sections and can so unite the democracy that he can carry those states necessary to win the election.

There can be no valid objection to each state proposing a favorite son, but the candidate selected will have to stand the test of availability when the delegates to the national convention assemble, so that the party can enter on the campaign with a fair prospect of success.

THAT DARK HORSE.

The playful paragraphers who are teasing Marse Henry about his dark horse candidate should remember the entries for the race do not close until next year, and there is ample time for the illustrious democrat to name his candidate for presidential honors.

It is to be honed that Mr. Watterson will have his candidate well trained and fit to run for his life, for the history of his party and to tell upon no mistakes being made when the trial heats have been run and the real candidate of the democracy is selected for the final heat.

WERE SEEN TOGETHER

ONE OF HAYWOOD'S OWN WITNESSES CONNECT THE TWO MEN.

ORCHARD KNOWN AS DEMPSEY

Had Defendant and Pettibone as Callers Quite Frequently—Haywood Went With Him to His Room Alone.

Boise, Idaho, June 26.—The first witness today in the Haywood trial was Mrs. Lottie Day, who knew Harry Orchard at the Belmont rooming house in Denver, Col., under the name of Dempsey.

Mrs. Day said that she had met Orchard just prior to the convention of the Western Federation of Miners in 1904. That once while she was talking to him Haywood and a man named McDonald, who was also connected with the Federation, came in. Orchard introduced her to Haywood and then went away with him. The witness related a conversation with Orchard, when the latter told her that poverty separated him from the one woman he loved, and that Steunenberg was responsible for his being poor and that he would get even with him if it was the last act of his life.

"Didn' t he say that 'D— Steunenberg?'" asked Attorney Darrow.

"No, sir, I'm sure he didn't swear like that. I think he said that 'Devil of a Steunenberg,'" answered the witness.

Mrs. Day said that one day when Orchard was telling her about his gambling exploits he said he always kept a little money pu away, that when he made a "raise" he put some of the money away with Pettibone, and drew it out as he needed it.

On cross examination Mrs. Day said she was introduced to Orchard by Pettibone. When Haywood came to the Belmont the day she was talking with Orchard, Mrs. Day declared Haywood said that he wished to see Orchard, and they went into his (Orchard's) room.

The witness said that she often saw Dempsey, or Orchard, with Pettibone, but that Pettibone never came to Orchard's room, as far as she knew.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative and my book on either dyspepsia, the heart or the kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness always. And the heart, and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by W. E. Bard Drug Co.

Members of the girl Friends Christian Endeavor class in a body offered to undergo the ordeal of having part of their flesh removed to save the young life, and yesterday afternoon, including Dr. Gage they bared to the surgeon's knife.

NOT MINISTERAL CALL

Certainly Some Other Noise That Her Nephew Heard.

An elderly woman now living in the west, formerly a resident of Allentown, Pa., not long ago visited her relatives in that town. She was especially interested in the progress of a nephew who had entered the ministry. She had not seen him since his boyhood, and was, therefore, anxious to attend services at his church.

At dinner, subsequent to the Sunday sermon she heard delivered by her nephew, it was observed that the old woman was singularly reticent.

Suddenly she broke her long silence by asking her nephew, "Frank, why did you enter the ministry?"

"Why aunt!" exclaimed the young divine. "What a question! I entered the ministry because I was called!"

Just a suspicion of a smile came to the old woman's face, as she responded, "Are you sure, Frank, that it wasn't some other noise you heard?"

"STORIES" OF THE RAIL

WILLIAM C. VAN HORNE WHEN HE WAS WITH THE SOUTHERN MINNESOTA ROAD.

JAMES J. HILL "PACKED HIS KIT"

How Mr. John M. Egan Used to "Buck Snow" When He Was Superintendent of One of the Railways Way Up North.

When I first knew Sir William C. Van Horne, writes A. W. Dunn, he was superintendent of the Southern Minnesota railroad, a line running from the Mississippi river through the southern tier of counties of the state. At least it was intended to cross the state, but for many years it halted after being constructed half the distance. It was extended west while Van Horne was superintendent, and he had charge of the work. Under his supervision a bridge was constructed across the Des Moines river, which was quite a feat of railroad building in those days, as the trestle was sixty feet high for more than a quarter of a mile, and was wholly of wood. Van Horne watched the progress of that bridge day after day, and was often seen walking along foot wide timbers at its extreme height, scanning first one and then another part of the structure.

A good story about James J. Hill was told to a group of his friends by Norman W. Kittson, a man who was years ahead of Hill in the Red River country, and who, to use his own expression, "packed my kit from La Crosse to Winnipeg and back." This was a distance of about six hundred miles, and Kittson went on foot and traded in furs all along the route with the Indians. He was another wonderful man of the early West. Kittson became rich, as riches went, when Hill was a clerk in a steamboat office in St. Paul. When Hill began his great career by buying a railroad and extending it northward, he interested Kittson in his enterprises. Hill needed credit, and Kittson allowed him to use his name

"I knew," said Kittson, "that I had indorsed more paper than I was worth; but I had confidence in him most of the time. Then I got scared and felt that everything was gone, and that it didn't make any difference and I signed anything Hill brought."

It is almost unnecessary to say that the smash never came; that Hill used Kittson's name with good effect in the east, where he was reputed a much wealthier man than he really was; and also that Kittson had a great deal more when he closed up with Hill than when they first began business together.

It was Fred D. Underwood, now president of the Erie railroad, who taught me railroad poker, a fascinating and expensive game for a man who hasn't a quick eye and comprehension. It has to be played in this way:

We will suppose that we are sitting in a private car, and a freight train is going by. Every car is numbered; most of them in five figures, some in six, or some in four, but seldom less than four. The old cars with the low numbers have been worn out. Well, as the freight train passes, each man in turn takes a car and picks out a poker hand. For instance 14400 would be a pair of tens and fours, and 13311 would be three aces and a pair of treys. Of course, the figures are often all mixed up and it takes a quick eye to call the hand. The best hand wins the pot when the train has passed, and the party then await the next train. Mr. Underwood in his early railroad days had experience in catching and writing down the numbers of an entire freight train as it moved past, and there are few men who can beat him at railroad poker.

He was once a brakeman on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and tells an interesting story of an experience with S. S. Merrill, then general manager. The latter was making a trip over the road in the winter, and his private car was run as a special. He was always apprehensive on the road, and feared collisions, and made Underwood stand out on the rear platform all night to warn off any approaching train. It was a bitterly cold night and an uncomfortable ride for Underwood.

"But I got even with him," said Underwood, in telling his experience. "He loaned me his seal cap and fur coat, and the burning cinders from the engine ruined them during the night ride. In the morning when I reached the end of my run I put them inside the car, and got away without seeing the old man. The next time he saw me he said, 'You're the fellow that burned my cap and coat; but it's all right.' That was the end of it."

When Van Horne went to the Canadian Pacific he took with him John M. Egan. While he had been superintending the building of the Southern Minnesota, Egan was chief engineer, and the latter became superintendent of the division when Horne was advanced, and spent one or two winters trying to keep the road open. In those days the snow plow was simply a plow with a mold board on each side.

The worst blizzards Montana ever experienced happened about that time, and every railroad cut from the Blue Earth river of the Dakota border line, some hundred and fifty miles, was full of snow. Egan went out with the crews, and I have seen him with two engines, between which was a flat car heavily loaded with railroad iron, bucking the snow in the deep cuts. The two engines were backed away from the drift about half a mile, and then sent forward with all the speed that was possible to plunge into the drift.

The plow would throw out great mountains on each side, and the forward engine would be buried under huge piles of snow. From the cab of the engine Egan would emerge and give directions to the shovelers and in emergencies he would seize a shovel and work like a laboring man himself.

It was Egan who rigged sails on hand cars and went out over the line when trains could not get through. The hand cars were dragged across the cuts and then the sails were set for a long run on the clear portions of the track.

After Egan went to the Canadian Pacific he was stationed at Winnipeg, and had much to do with the construction of the road westward. Then he went with Hill on the Manitoba system, and later was general manager of the organization of roads centering in Chicago.

GOLDEN NUGGETS FOR SALLOW PEOPLE

NERVOUS COLLAPSE

IS OFTEN PREVENTED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

Taken When the First Warning Symptoms Are Noticed Much Needless Suffering May Be Saved.

Are you troubled with pallor, loss of spirits, waves of heat passing over the body, shortness of breath after slight exertion, a peculiar skipping of the heart beat, poor digestion, cold extremities or a feeling of weight and fullness? Do not make the mistake of thinking that these are diseases in themselves and be satisfied with temporary relief.

This is the way the nerves give warning that they are breaking down. It simply means that the blood has become impure and cannot carry enough nourishment to the nerves to keep them healthy and able to do their work.

Rest, alone, will sometimes give the needed relief. The tonic treatment by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, however, prevents the final breakdown of the nerves and the more serious diseases which follow, because the pills act directly upon the impure blood, making it rich, red and pure.

Mrs. E. C. Bradley, of 103 Parsells avenue, Rochester, N. Y., says:

"I was never very healthy and some years ago, when in a run-down condition, I suffered a nervous shock, caused by a misfortune to a friend. It was so great that I was unfitted for work.

"I was just weak, low-spirited and nervous. I could hardly walk and could not bear the least noise. My appetite was poor and I did not care for food. I couldn't sleep well and once for two weeks got scarcely an hour's sleep. I had severe headaches most of the time and pains in the back and spine.

"I was treated by two doctors, being under the care of one of them for six months. I got no relief and then decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I soon began to feel better and the improvement was general. My appetite became hearty and my sleep better. The headaches all left and also the pains in my back. A few more boxes entirely cured me and I was able to go back to work. I felt splendid and as though I had never been sick."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable in such diseases as rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

HUSBAND WAS NOT DEAD

However, He Was as Bald as Proverbial Billiard Ball.

A western man, who plumes himself on his fascination for the other sex, was not long ago presented to an attractive New York woman.

In course of their first tete-a-tete the man with the winning ways at once took occasion to turn the conversation into his favorite channel. "I observe that you are wearing an especially fine locket," said he. "Tell me, does it contain some token of a past love affair?"

Aware of the westerner's weakness, the handsome New Yorker thought to humor him a bit. "Yes," smiled she, "it does contain a token of the past, a lock of my husband's hair."

"You don't mean to tell me that you're a widow!" exclaimed the westerner, in delighted surprise, as he nudged a trifle nearer. "I understood that your husband was alive."

"True," answered the beautiful creature, "but his hair is gone."

TRIED TO EXTERMINATE ALL

Woman Whose Husband Suicided Tries to Kill Self and Children.

Formoso, Kas., June 26.—Mrs Peter Johnson attempted this morning to take the lives of her two children, a girl of 10 and a boy of 5, by cutting their throats while they were asleep. After this she cut her own throat. The children will recover but the mother's life is in doubt. The woman was the wife of Peter Johnson, who committed suicide here June 15th.

THAW FIGHTS FOR BAIL

Evelyn Shocked to Find Husband Broken in Spirit and Health.

New York, June 26.—Harry K. Thaw celebrated the anniversary of the shooting of Stanford White yesterday by beginning an effort to procure release from prison until his next trial. The year in prison has made a different man of Thaw, both in appearance and in spirit. It was partially on account of his bad health that Thaw's counsel consented yesterday to ask for bail.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, accompanied by Attorneys O'Reilly and Peabody, called on Thaw in the Tombs yesterday. Evelyn was deeply affected by the anniversary. Thaw looked worse than in weeks. The prisoner's cheeks were sunken, his skin, always dark, had an unhealthy tinge; his eyes were almost out of their sockets and even the guards were shocked at his appearance.

The warden of the prison advised him last week to consult a physician, but Thaw refused. The heavy blow came when he was told of the departure of Assistant Attorney Garven for Europe, which means that the trial cannot be held for at least four months, and that Thaw must spend the time waiting in his cell.

WAS "DUMMY" PACKAGE

IT WAS TO HAVE BEEN PALMED OFF ON A COUNCILMAN AT PITTSBURG.

ALLEGED TO CONTAIN $70,000.00

Startling estimony is Given in the Tube City Graft Cases and There is More of it to Follow.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 26.—Testimony taking in the cases of Brokers C. R. Richardson and A. B. McGrew, of Marietta, Ohio, in the Tube City graft cases was closed with some rather interesting testimony on the part of both defendants, who are accused of having conspired to bribe Councilman W. A. Martin and others for $70,000.

It was McGrew, it is alleged, who furnished the $70,000 in cash with which President Cameron and Broker Richardson made the "flash" that blinded the eyes of the councilmen.

McGrew said that he had furnished the cash as a business transaction, not knowing to what use the money was to be put. He, as a broker, had done this for Cameron, not only before the expose, but since.

District Attorney Goehring puncured the testimony of McGrew badly when he made him confess that the firm of C. R. Richardson was practically owned by him.

Broker Richardson, in his own defense, admitted having carried the $70,000 bribe money from McGrew to Cameron, and on Cameron's order he had fixed up a "dummy" package, similar to the real money package, with the understanding that it was to be palmed off on Councilman Martin. Richardson became sadly tangled in giving his testimony, contradicting that of McGrew quite frequently.

Armed with a warrant for A. A. Cameron, brother of C. S. Cameron, and ready to ask his extradition, a local detective was sent to Marietta, O., to bring Cameron to Pittsburg. Cameron is regarded as an important witness in the case pending against J. H. Milholland and Joseph Fiaherty. Their hearing will probably be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Attorney John Marron, who is prosecuting them, declined to say why Cameron is wanted in Pittsburg. The elder Cameron was the one to whose room in the hotel Antler the package with $65,000 of the alleged graft was returned.

GOOD NEWS KILLED HIM

Man Who Had Been Left an Estate Valued at $100,000.

Washington, Pa., June 26.—William Breene, a day laborer of Washington, was so overcome by the news that he had inherited an estate valued at $100,000 that he fainted and died a half hour later in a local hospital. Breene had not been at his father's home in Ohio since he was a boy. He roved the country until a year ago, when he came here.

At noon yesterday Chief of Police Delaney showed Breen a letter in which it was said that his father had just died on a farm in Ohio, leaving his entire wealth to his son.

"You're not fooling me, Chief?" he asked. He was assured that his wealth was bona fide. Breene seemed dazed, and then throwing up his hands fell unconscious to the pavement. He never regained consciousness. There are no near relatives to claim the estate.

SOCIETY BELLE SUES

She Alleges Title to Gary, Indiana, Rests With Her.

Chicago, Ill., June 26.—Mrs. Caroline F. Summerville, a New York society woman, has started a legal battle to recover the property on which the steel town of Gary, Ind., is situated. She has sued Attorney John Sawyer to recover a quitclaim deed to the land, charging that he secured it from her under false pretenses.

A Chicago real estate dealer sold the site of Gary for $300,000 to the United States Steel corporation, and it in turn sold about 30,000 lots to small investors. One of these became suspicious of the title of his land and secured the services of John T. Sawyer, who said the title rested with Mrs. Summerville. He went to New York to see her about it, and then followed the charge of fraud.

YOUNG GIRL ACCUSER

Admits That She Lied When She Preferred Charges.

Defiance, Ohio, June 22.—Edward Beckenback, a Cleveland notary public, swore yesterday afternoon at the second trial of David Rasor, former superintendent of the Defiance County Children's home, who is alleged to have criminally assaulted Geneva Steele and Loretta McCoon, inmates, that the Steele girl made affidavit before him on March 22 that all the charges she had made against Rasor were false.

According to the witness, the girl said that she had been induced by Laura Stork, another inmate, to accuse Rasor falsely. The Stork girl, it is alleged, sought revenge because Rasor had accused her of theft. Beckenback identified Geneva Steele as the affiant.

As a result of the former trial, in which Geneva Steele was the prosecuting witness, a sentence of four months in the county jail and a fine of $250 was imposed. An appeal was taken.

The crime for which Rasor is now on trial is alleged to have occurred one night in November, 1905, when it is said he entered the girl's sleeping apartments and assaulted Lorena McGoon, who at that time was only 15 years of age.

The accusing witness says that his previous attempts had so terrified the girls that some of them had hid under their beds, and that on the night in question Rasor dragged her from her hiding place.

A FRISKY PRISONER

Was Hurried to the Peintentiary by the Happy Officials.

Lima, Ohio, June 22.—George Williams, who during two months in jail has attempted the life of Sheriff Van Gunten twice, tried to burn down the strong box once by setting fire to the bedding, made one partially successful jail break and twice attempted suicide by hanging, entered a plea of guilty of highway robbery yesterday and was given the full limit of five years in the penitentiary, and hurried to Columbus.

$30 FINE FOR CONTEMPT

Gets Writ of Habeas Corpus When Punished by Judge Sale.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 25.—A writ of habeas corpus, returnable July 1, was granted by the supreme court yesterday. The application for the writ was made by Thomas J. Rowe, representing Judge Willis H. Clark, of St. Louis, who was held to be in contempt by Circuit Judge Sale, who had imposed a fine of $30.

Judge Clark was taken into custody by the sheriff under a commitment, but was released on bail. The fines were imposed because Judge Clark was tardy in returning to the court room when a case in which he was engaged as counsel was called.

The application for the writ contends that he was illegally held to be in contempt, as he had no notice of the accusation, and that he was given no opportunity to purge himself of the alleged contempt.

MEN FOUGHT IN THE AIR

TRAVELING CRANE IN CHICAGO SCENE OF POSSIBLY FATAL ENCOUNTER.

THE WORKERS, HELPLESS, LOOK ON

The Victor at Illinois Steel Works Used a Hammer to Win Contest —The Victim Will Probably Die.

Chicago, June 25.—That a desperate had to hand battle was fought on a traveling crane 30 feet in air, ending in the dealing of terrific blows, which sent one of the contestants hurling through space to probable death, is the police version of the story of an Illinois steel company occurrence in South Chicago yesterday.

Gustave Pierson, 8214 Marquette avenue, a machinist, is being held at the South Chicago police station pending the outcome of injuries sustained by George Barnashak, 8322 Buffalo avenue. Barnashak is at the Illinois Steel company hospital, where it is said he will die. The injured man was Pierson's helper.

Both men were working on the crane when the trouble started. Pierson, the police say, ordered his helper to do a certain portion of roof work, and the latter refused. The next moment the men below became aware of an exchange of angry words above. On looking up they saw Pierson and Barnashak locked together and struggling with such violence that it seemed as if both must fall. A crowd gathered to witness the battle, powerless to interfere.

Suddenly Pierson wrenched himself free from the grip of his opponent and, the police declare, picked up a steel hammer and struck Barnashak a terrific blow in the chest. The spectators stood transfixed as they saw the limp form of Barnashak drop to the ground.

Threats were then uttered against Pierson, who calmly maintained his position, the hammer on his knee. It is thought that the crowd of angry men would have imprisoned Pierson in his vantage point all day had not a riot call been sent to the Illinois Steel company's police station. Twenty watchmen responded and Pierson was escorted to safety.

SUSPECTING HIS WIFE ☐

Barton Shot the Woman, Their Three Children and Himself.

Jasper, Fla., June 22.—Some time last night W. U. Barton, of this place, shot his wife, three children and himself. All were killed except one child, aged 5 years, who, today, was able to tell the horrible tale.

Shots were heard by neighbors last night, but no particular attention was paid to them. Early this morning they noticed Barton's body in a pool of blood on the front porch, and that of his wife on the back porch. She had been choked and then shot thrice through the body.

Two children were found in a room with bullet holes through their heads. Each had been shot in the mouth, and the pistol held so closely that the face of each was scorched. The third child may live.

There had been rumors of trouble at Barton's home, owing to his jealousy of Mrs. Barton. She was a beautiful woman and admired, but Barton had no cause for jealousy, relatives say.

"RED" DAVIS WAS THERE

No Use of Topeka Trying to Outrowdy Wichita Fans.

The members of the Wichita team feel that they have a grievance against the Topeka fans who were occupying that part of the grand stand near the visiting players' bench, says Tuesday's Topeka Journal.

Several of the fans passed insulting remarks reflecting upon the Wichita players, and some even went so far as to hurl missiles at the players. One fan took Holland's cap off his head while he was standing awaiting his turn at bat. Pop bottles were also thrown, but no one was struck.

The insults became so severe that Red Davis, who was coaching on the first base line, called down several people in the grand stand. This is hardly the proper spirit for the fans to show at a ball game.

It is all right to cheer or hiss a ball player, but when it comes to abusing the Wichita players or the players of anyother team, the fans in Topeka especially ought to know better. There is no use trying to outrowdy Wichita.

Independent Plants in and Near St. Louis Consolidate.

St. Louis, June 26.—An $8,000,000 merger of nine independent breweries in St. Louis, East St. Louis and Granite City, Ill., resuted yesterday from conferences held during the last twenty-four hours in the office of E. C. Crow, former attorney general.

According to Henry Koehler, president of the American Brewing company, all the representatives have signed the contract. James S. Brailey, of Toledo, O., who has been promoting the combination, is in charge of the application for a charter.

The brewers in the combination are the Consumers', Columbia, Home, American, Empire, National and Gast, all of St. Louis, the Wagner of Granite City, and the Central of East St. Louis. It has been agreed to select Henry Griesedick, Jr., president of the Consumers' company, president.

EMBALMED HIS FEET

And Sent Off to China by This Celestial, Who Will Follow.

Springfield, Ill., June 26.—Several months ago Sank Loo, a Chinaman of this city, was knocked off an interurban car, west of here, by a collision. Both his legs were run over and the feet taken off.

The Chinaman, instead of having them buried, had them taken with him to St. John's hospital, and later had Undertaker Charles T. Bisch embalm the members. He invested in cork feet.

Last night he left for his home in China, he having obtained $5,000 damages from the interurban railroad for the loss of his feet. He had the feet expressed. It is the Chinese custom, in the event of a Chinaman losing any part of his anatomy, that it be buried in China.

Lost—Somewhere within the confines of Sedalia, one electric railway embyro named the Missouri Interurban railway. This couple is too well known to our people, having been born and reared here, to need any words of commendation from us. Both of them are worthy, popular and most excellent young people, and in taking this, the most serious and important step of their lives, they have the best wishes of many friends for a happy, contented and prosperous voyage through life together. The young couple will go housekeeping immediately in a little home neatly furnished and ready for them in the south part of town.

Some time ago a young lady, living near Smithton, while taking down the telephone receiver to answer a call, emitted one of those delightful little laughs so pleasing to hear, that the party on the other end of the line, upon inquiring for the reason of the mirth, was greeted with the response, "Oh, I thought you were Albert calling up to make an engagement for next Sunday." But it wasn't Albert.

A SQUIRREL AND A SNAKE

Put Up a Great Fight in Carroll County, Missouri.

John Withers, a Carrollton farmer, runs the risk of being called a nature fakir by describing a contest between a squirrel and a large blacksnake.

Both were fighting desperately. The snake was at a disadvantage, however, for the squirrel had a strangle hold behind the snake's head and shook his unwieldly antagonist much as the dog would a rat.

The snake endeavored to encircle the little squirrel with its coils, but could not do so, and presently both the snake and the squirrel fell to the ground, the squirrel still retaining his hold on the snake.

Mr. Withers stepped up and the squirrel released his hold and scampered back up the tree. The snake, which measured nearly six feet in length, was nearly dead, and was dispatched by Mr. Withers.

The loss is in the neighborhood of $700, and there was no insurance, as Mr. Littlefield had just permitted his policy to expire.

NEW TRIAL IS REFUSED

U. S. Judge Denies Application of Standard Oil.

Chicago, June 26.—District Judge Landis today refused a new trial to the Standard Oil company, which was recently convicted of making shipments at illegal rates between Whiting, Ind., and East St. Louis. The motion for an arrest of judgment was also overruled.

The court then announced that he was desirous of obtaining information regarding the financial resources of the Standard Oil company and examined a former auditor and two clerks of the Alton railroad. The judge was unable to obtain much information on the subject from them and ordered subpoenas issued for the officers of the Standard Oil and Union Tank Line companies.

WOE BETWEEN HER SO[illegible]

WAS BARED BY JUDGE LOVING'S DAUGHTER AS SHE TOLD OF WRONG DONE HER.

DRUGGED BY ESTES, SHE SWORE

Girl Declares She Took One Drink and Knew No More—Told Her Parent of Her Plight and Killing Followed.

Houston, Virginia, June 26.—Between stifling sobs and with tears streaming from her bright blue eyes, while striving to hold back the huge lump in her throat, Miss Elizabeth Loving, who has occupied the center of the stage in the trial of her father, Judge William G. Loving, for the murder of Theodore Estes, told on the witness stand her story of her alleged ruin by the young man whom her father shot down. The recital was the most dramatic ever heard in a Virginia court and rivaled the story told by Evelyn Nesbit Thaw of her ruin by Stanford White.

It was the same story, she said, that she told to her father on the morning of the tragedy, and which culminated in his hunting down and slaying the man whom she accused.

Estes, she said, had given her a drink of whisky from a bottle he had in his pocket, while they were out buggy riding on the afternoon prior to the killing.

After taking the drink she declared that she immediately began to feel dizzy and her head "spinned around" as if she had been given some powerful drug. In this condition, and despite her protests, she declared that her escort drove her over an unfrequented road, and despite her screams, ruined her.

Exhausted by the struggle and her mental faculties rendered incapable from the stimulant, the witness declared that she recalled nothing more until she regained her senses while in bed late that night at the home of County Clerk E. L. Kidd, where she had been visiting Miss Kidd.

She testified that on the following morning, when her father asked her for the cause of her being brought to the home of Mr. Kidd in an unconscious and drugged condition, she related to him on bended knees the same story she told today.

This was the recital, declared the defense, which so affected the mind of Judge Loving that it impelled him to commit a crime, which, according to his statement, could have been prevented by no power "except God Almighty."

The prosecution claims that it can be shown that the act laid at the door of the man whose lips are sealed forever was impossible.

Miss Loving admitted she has taken two drinks with young Estes during the drive, the first one being while at Estes' store. She was asked about other occasions, when it is charged she drank whisky, but the defense objected.

Daniel Harmon, attorney for the prosecution, cross-examined the witness, presenting a map of the country over which the buggy ride was taken, and asked that the witness fix the point where Estes gave her a drink.

She could not remember exactly, but designated the neighborhood. She was then asked where the attack occurerd, to which she replied that it was after she and Estes had turned up the mountain road.

"When did you remember gaining consciousness?"

"During the night at Mrs. Kidd's."

"Do you remember telling Mrs. Kidd that you had taken too large a drink and that you did that once before at Bellevue?"

"No."

"Did you not get out of the buggy and walk up the steps into the house without assistance?"

"No."

"On the next morning did you see Miss Shelton, the dressmaker?"

"Yes."

"Did Miss Shelton come up to take your measure for a dress?"

"Yes."

"Did not Mrs. Estes, mother of Theodore, come to see you on the day after the assault and give you a cup of chocolate?"

"Yes."

"Did you not take breakfast at the home of Mrs. Kidd on the following morning.

"Yes."

The witness admitted that she had not mentioned a single word of her experience on the evening previous to persons she met. She had talked pleasantly with the mother of the victim on the morning after the tragedy, but had not mentioned her experience to her. The witness was asked if before she went buggy riding she had not taken a drink of whisky at Estes' store, to which she replied that she had.

"Did you drink in Estes' store on Easter.

To this the defense objected and the jury left the court room.

Mr. Boulding, who was conducting the cross examination, was asked by Attorney Lee if he expected to continue that line of questioning and what was his motive for doing so. Mr. Boulding replied that his motive was to show that Miss Loving was in the habit of drinking whisky. The prosecution waived the question without Judge Barksdale rendering an opinion, but intimated that he might bring it up again at the proper time.

In answer to a question Miss Loving said Estes had lifted her out of the buggy and into it again. The state brought out the fact that Miss Loving weighs 140 pounds, whereas Estes weighed about 119, and it seems mechanically difficult for him to have lifted the girl into the buggy when she was lying inert in his arms. Such was her tale, however, told very interruptedly and tearfully, and without any express regard for logic of facts.

THE BEST FRIENDS OF PE-RU-NA ARE THE MOTHERS AND CHILDREN

Pe-ru-na Should Be Kept In Every Household

Where There Are Little Children.

Peruna should be kept in the house all the time. Don't wait until the child is sick, then send to a drug store. But, have Peruna on hand—accept no substitute.

Children are especially liable to acute catarrh. Indeed, most of the affections of childhood are catarrh.

All forms of sore throat, quinsy, croup, hoarseness, laryngitis, etc., are but different phases of catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind. Peruna, if taken according to printed directions, is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. It does not produce temporary results, but it is permanent in its effect.

It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh.

Mrs. F. Brockman, 813 Meade street, Appleton, Wis., writes:

"I have never had a return of the catarrh, which had made me so miserable and unhappy before I began taking Peruna.

"I would not be without it in the house, now.

"I have a baby boy, two years old, to whom I give Peruna for a cold, and my husband also takes Peruna.

"I thank you and wish you well."---Mrs. F. Brockman.

No Doctor Required.

Mr. Edward Otto, 927 De Soto street, St. Paul, Minn., writes:

"I cannot say enough for Peruna. It has done great work in my family, especially for my oldest boy. We had doctored with three or four different doctors and they did not seem to do him any good.

"We gave up hopes of cure, and so did they, but we pulled him through on Peruna.

"We had several doctors and they said they could do no more for him, so we tried Peruna as a last resort, and that did the work. Since then we keep it in the house all the time, and no doctor is required."--Edward Otto.

There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used off and on for twenty years.

Such a thing could not be possible if Peruna contained any narcotics.

The Benefit Which the Children of the United States Have Received From Pe-ru-na Can Never Be Put Into Words.

The chronic ailments it has prevented, the suffering it has mitigated, will never be fully recorded.

But at least this much can be said that the coming generation owes a great debt to Peruna, for it is in the tender years of youth that slight ailments are liable to develop into lasting disease, thus blasting the whole career of the individual.

The mothers who are bringing up their children to-day to believe in Peruna are speaking from their experience.

A Child's Life Saved.

Mr. G. H. Farmer, New Martinsville, W. Va., writes:

"Our little son, Harry, is well and healthy now and we think if we do as you directed us, he will keep his health and grow strong.

"We know that our little son's life was saved by your wonderful medicine, Peruna, and we shall always praise Peruna and use it in our family when needed.

"Should we have any more catarrhal trouble in our family, we shall always write to you for treatment."

Mr. W. F. Doring, Mt. Vernon, Mo., writes:

"I have used Peruna to my entire satisfaction and am exceedingly well pleased with the results, having suffered greatly with catarrh of the stomach."

Mrs. J. C. Sterling, 133 Brown Avenue, Norfolk, Va., writes:

"My little boy, Meredith, suffered with indigestion so badly he could not eat anything without it making him very sick, so I thought (as many others have) that I would try Peruna, and it worked like a charm.

"Now he eats anything he wishes, and I would not be without it for anything.

"My other little boy, Alfred, two and a half years old, has taken it and received as much benefit from Peruna as his brother.

"I hope my testimonial may be of some benefit to others, as I feel as though I cannot praise it enough."---Mrs. J. C. Sterling.

Mr. Howard Andrew Sterner, 424 Canal street, Reading, Pa., writes:

"I have Peruna in my house all the time and won't be without it. It is good for children when they take a cold or croup. It cured my baby boy of croup.

"I have introduced Peruna into six families since I received your last letter, and four have seen relief already."

—Howard Andrew Sterner.

Pe-ru-na Protects the Entire Household.

As soon as the value of Peruna is appreciated by every household, both as a preventive and cure, tens of thousands of lives will be saved, and hundreds of thousands of chronic, lingering cases of catarrh will be prevented.

When Sickness Comes to the Little Ones

It Is the Mother Who Chiefly Suffers.

She suffers even more than the child who happens to be sick.

Her sympathy is deeper than that of any other member of the family.

The mother looks forward with dread to the torrid heat of summer, thinking of her children and the many liabilities to disease that are before them.

Spring and summer are sure to bring ailments, especially among the little folks.

It does not take a mother very long to discover that Peruna is the best friend she has in time of illness among the children.

A Multitude of Mothers

Have discovered that Peruna is their stand-by, and that in many of the ailments of spring and summer to which the children are subjected, Peruna is the remedy that will generally quickly relieve.

Whether it is spring fever or stomach derangement, whether it is indigestion or bowel disease, a catarrhal congestion of the mucous surfaces is the cause.

Peruna quickly relieves this condition of the mucous membranes. Its operation is prompt, the children do not dislike to take the medicine, it has no deleterious effects in any part of the body.

It simply removes the cause of the disagreeable symptoms and restores the health.

Peruna is a household remedy for all catarrhal ailments of winter and summer, acute or chronic.

The mothers all over the United States are the best friends that Peruna has.

Mr. C. Hallock, Antwerp, Ohio, writes: "My daughter Allie, after taking three bottles of your Peruna is entirely cured of catarrh of the head of two years standing. We have used Peruna as a general tonic as well as for catarrh and are well pleased with it and recommend it to anybody who has catarrh."

The Mothers Hold Pe-ru-na in High Esteem,

Not only because it has cured them of their various ailments, but because it promptly rescues the children from the throes and grasp of catarrhal diseases.

We have in our files many testimonials from mothers whose children have been cured by Peruna. However, the large majority of mothers who use Peruna, we never hear from.

But we do hear from a great number of mothers who are so overjoyed at some special good they have received from Peruna that they cannot restrain their enthusiasm. They are anxious to share these benefits with other mothers.

A WHITECAPPING CASE

RELATIVES OF HIS WIFE ARE ACCUSED OF FLOGGING BROTHER-IN-LAW.

THEY WANT SHARE IN AN ESTATE

Hoped the Whipping Would Cause Tom Vanest to Leave the Country, But in This They Were in Wrong.

Columbus, Ind., June 26.—Thomas Vanest, a blacksmith, aged 42, of South Bethany, 10 miles west of this place, has filed affidavits against Charles, Joseph and Andrew Stull, Charles Seitz, John Burkhardt, James Kirtz and Canady Clark, charging them with white capping him.

At 1 o'clock in the morning six men called at the Vanest home, and, breaking down a door to the home, took Vanest from his bed and flogged him unmercifully with a hickory club.

His wife cried and pleaded with the white cappers not to harm her husband, but they took him a half mile from his home, where the whipped him in his wife's presence, she having followed them with a babe in arms.

After the whipping the wife assisted her husband, who was almost unconscious, to his home.

The white cappers told their victim they had whipped because he had beaten his wife and told him that if he did not leave the country they would kill him.

The wife-beating charge is denied by Vanest, his wife and his neighbors. His neighbors say he is a good citizen and has never before been in any sort of trouble.

The three Stulls are brothers to Mrs. Vanest and the others are relatives of hers. When the white cappers attacked Vanest his twelve-year-old son tried to protect his father against them and was knocked down with the butt end of a shotgun in the hands of one of the white cappers.

Vanest says that he was attacked by his wife's relatives in the hope that he could be scared out of the country that he might not share in an estate in which his wife has an interest.

800 WANT TO MARRY HIM

ADVERTISES FOR WIFE AND GETS STACKS AND STACKS OF REPLIES.

DISGUSTED WITH THE BUSINESS

Is Earning $4 a Day and Could Easily Support a Wife, but Says Now That He Will Never Take a Wife.

New York, June 25.—Frank Hinderer, of Brooklyn, today regrets that he advertised for a wife. He is 45 and good looking. His ad brought 800 answers, and it was reported that he had selected his bride and would marry.

When a reporter saw him, however, he said: "Stop. Do not speak of the subject to me. I am trying to forget."

"I have changed my mind. This whole thing has been terrible," he muttered, clapping his hands to his head.

"I never dreamed there were so many women in Brooklyn," he continued. "The postman asked me if I had opened an employment bureau. I received 800 offers in three weeks.

Some of them called at my boarding house. I encountered them everywhere I went. Finally I had to give up my job. I dared not go home for a week. They were of all ages, from 16 to 60. It was one terrible time."

Mr. Hinderer explained that his intentions in advertising for a wife were most innocent and well meaning.

"I was engaged to marry twenty-five years ago, but the young woman died," he said. "I vowed I'd never marry. But bachelor life is lonesome. I was earning $4 a day as harness maker and had plenty of money to support a wife. But I've changed my mind now. I shan't marry. No, indeed, nothing could induce me to."

Former Sedalian Was Expert.

Mrs. Ryan was thrown upon the brick paving and dragged several feet.

She was carried to Menefee's livery barn, where Dr. W. C. Overstreet attended her, and later was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gabbett, 415 North Prospect street, where she remained over night.

The boy did release the horse, but instantly grabbed the barrel of Vaughan's pistol. While the two were struggling over the weapon, Policeman Staihr reached the scene, and with a pistol to Vaughan's head compelled him to surrender. Houck McHenry, George Walthers and Andy Moerschel, all citizens, closed in upon Raymond at this juncture, and Guard Bruner arriving at the same time, the flight ended.

Raymond had been slightly wounded. Vaughan's hand was bleeding from the accidental wound he received in the prison. The three convicts were quickly returned to the prison.

THE PLAYERS OF GOLF

HAD DELIGHTFUL TIME AT THE COUNTRY CLUB TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

MUSIC BY BRANDT'S ORCHESTRA

In 9-Hole Match Hannibal Ladies Defeated Sedalia Ladies. But Local Male Players Defeated Visiting Men.

(Wednesday's Daily.)

The team match Tuesday between the golfers of the Hannibal Country club and the Sedalia Country club resulted in a draw. The Hannibal ladies defeated the Sedalia ladies, but the Sedalia men defeated the Hannibal men.

Five of the Hannibal ladies played against a like number from the Sedalia club. They played 9-hole matches, the Hannibal ladies winning.

The men's team each consisted of thirteen players. They played 18-hole matches. The Sedalia team won a majority of these matches.

After the matches were over the members of the clubs took their dinners on the club house veranda, and after dinner Brandt's orchestra furnished music for the dancers.

The Hannibal party left for home on the evening train. They expressed themselves as very much pleased with the club house, the golf links and the hospitality of the local club.

The local players are of the opinion that the defeat of the Hannibal team was largely due to their lack of acquaintance with the local links.

The visiting players are true sports and insist that their defeat was due to the superior playing of the Sedalia team.

WILL CLOSE 100 SALOONS

State License Increase and Early Closing Will Wipe 'Em Out.

St. Louis, June 26.—On account of the increasing the state license from $100 to $200 a year for saloons and the new 1 a. m. closing law, Excise Commisioner Mulvihill predicts that about 300 St. Louis saloons will close for good July 3.

Another cause is that wholesalers must discontinue retail traffic under the Humphrey law.

The commissioner says the laws will be strictly enforced.

One Member Kills Another and Is Dangerously Wounded.

Chicakasha, I. T., June 26.— In a lodge room, surrounded by brethren of the Anti-Horse Thief association, at Dibble, Dr. J. H. Howard was shot and instantly killed by E. A. Reifer, who was dangerously wounded by his antagonist.

Reifer was arrested. Dibble is twenty-seven miles east of this city in an isolated region.

DAIRY IMPROVEMENT.

The Cream Should Be Cooled and Aired Immediately After Separating.

Great improvement could be made in the quality of cream if producers were more skilled in the process of cream separation. In nine cases out of ten improvement could be made with very little, if any, extra work or expenditure. The simple fact that cooling and airing cream immediately after separation and maintaining it at a low temperature will preserve its quality does not seem to be generally understod among cream producers.

The lack of cleanliness through all the operations is another great drawback to quality, and this is one of the hardest things to correct, but by careful grading and rewarding for good quality much of the trouble could be overcome.

The washing of dairy utensils is one of the features most neglected by the average cream producer. There is a strong temptation on the part of the user to wash his machine but once a day, or even less often. Milk pails, cans and strainers are not, as a rule, properly washed and aired. The cow stables are often dirty and unsanitary, and through the entire operation of production there is a lack of cleanliness. There should be much more care taken in keeping the utensils clean and sweet. Washing powders could be used to good advantage and their use should be encouraged. In nine cases out of ten there is not enough cleansing matter used. Some agent should be employed in the process of washing that will aid the removing of grease, and at the same time will sweeten and cleanse the utensils. For this purpose nothing is better than sal soda or concentrated lye, and enough of either should be used to give the water a slippery feeling. It may be needless to say that all utensils should have a previous washing in nearly cold water to remove all traces of milk or cream, then a bath in the alakline water for sweetening and purifying, and lastly an immersion in boiling water. After these processes, do not wipe dry, but hang or set where the air can circulate freely; cover with a loose meshed cloth to exclude flies and dust and we have as nearly sanitary care of dairy vessels and utensils as possible. In this connection it may be well to suggest the using of brushes instead of cloths in washing where it is impossible to reach all crevices with the latter.

Another item which would tend to better sanitation, says Coleman's Rural World, would be better rooms or buildings for doing work. The location of the hand separator in about three cases out of four is in the kitchen. While this may be necessary, it is not desirable, and certainly it does not improve the quality of the cream. The separator should be located in a place where odors and contaminating influences do not exist. A little dairy house can be cheaply made and fitted to accommodate all the utensils and work necessary in the production of cream. This may be equipped according to the size of the dairy, and would tend in a marked degree to remove some of the disagreeable features of dairying, at least to the women who must be housekeepers as well as helpers in their husband's work, for the kitchen would then be much more easily kept clean.

Friday Not Always Unlucky.

Is Friday unlucky? Gladstone, Beaconsfield, Washington, Bismarck, Fahrenheit and Surgeon were born on Friday. Henry VIII. gave Cabot his commission which led to the discovery of North America, Columbus actually discovered this continent and the pilgrim fathers landed at Plymouth Rock on Friday. Once more: The first newspaper "ad" and the first newspaper printed by steam power (the London Times) appeared both on a Friday; while the stamp act was repealed in England on the same day of the week. With Charles Dickens Friday was an especial favorite.

POULTRY AND BEES

BEST KIND OF HIVE.

Do Not Use the Box Hive Because It Is Hard to Get At.

Box hives, says Farm and Home, are not advised. Even though you now think you will never open a hive, you may change your mind, and then it will be better to have had movable-frame hives from the start. Your bees may fall into the hands of someone who will great prefer the movable frames. A colony in a box hive may be queenless; you are helpless; the colony is doomed. With movable frames you can easily determine the condition of the colony and supply a queen, if lacking.

There is no longer any patent on the movable frame and good work may be done with any one of the different forms. The idea that if you adopt a certain make of hive you will get an extra amount of honey is all fol-de-rol. Hives don't gather and store honey; bees do that. One of the simplest as well as one of the best is the dovetailed hive, so called because its corners are locked together for greater strength. It is the most popular among men who produce honey by the ton, as well as among amatuers who keep one or two colonies for the pleasure of it. Each comb is in a wooden frame, and one or all the combs can be lifted out of the hive and returned at will, and this is true of all movable-frame hives. The frame used in the dovetailed hive is called the Langstroth frame and is 17⅝ inches long and 9⅛ inches deep, outside measure.

Dovetailed Hive.

For the production of extracted honey, a ten-frame hive is best. For comb honey it is also best, except for those who pay a great deal of attention to their bees. Such persons may do as well or better with an eight-frame hive, but for those who have only a few colonies and do not expect to spend much time with them, a hive so small as one having only eight frames is not to be thought of. Too much danger that the bees will be scarce of stores and starve in winter or spring.

Another reason why the larger hive is better for the average farmer is that bees are not so much given to swarming where they are in large hives. However desirous you may be now to have your colonies swarm so as to increase the number of colonies, you may rest assured that the time will come when you will be still more anxious that your bees shall not swarm. Every swarm that issues means just so much cutting down of the honey crop for the current year.

CHICKEN CHATTER.

Influence of Bad Eggs.

When a bad egg is placed among good ones it doesn't take it long to spoil them.

The sex of geese may be distinguished by the voice. The female has a loud, coarse voice, while that of the gander is fine and squeaky.

If a pumpkin is cut in two and placed in the poultry house, in a short time nothing but the rind will be left. The same is true of mangel wurtzels.

The comb of a hen or pullet, if it shows up good and red, indicates that the bird is in good condition and laying, or that the laying time is near at hand.

Early hatched pullets are the ones that make the winter layers, and this should be borne in mind both in getting out the hatches and in picking out the females to keep over winter.

Pure bred poultry, first, last and all the time, is the motto of many breeders, but a well cared for flock of common chickens will do better than a neglected flock of the best breed on earth.

If you provide several inches of chaff or litter on the floor of your coop, the chickens will not be troubled with bumblefoot—bruises caused by heavy fowls jumping from the perches on to hard floors.

Any old kind of chicken will lay in the spring, but it is the early hatched, well fed, quickly matured pullet that lays when eggs are scarce and high priced. And a little foresight will produce these birds.

Cows and chickens go well together. Anything that promotes milk production is also good to feed to hens, even to the silage and clover hay, and milk is one of the best rations that can be given to the laying hens.

Keeping male birds with females that are not used for breeding is a waste of food. Infertile eggs will keep longer than fertile ones, and the hens will lay fully as well, or better, if not harrassed by the attentions of the males.

When Will It Blossom?

One of the century plants formerly owned by the Jaynes estate, now used to ornament the court house lawn, is about to bloom, if indications count for anything, and Mike Rymer, janitor of the court house, is kept busy watching the plant.

The stalk leading from the center of the plant reaches a height of over fifteen feet, while on top of the stalk is a full bud, giving every indication of blooming soon.

THE POLAND CHINA.

Possibilities of This Breed as Seen by W. B. Cully.

The demand for more lean meat is an acknowledgment the Poland China will get fat. This is one of the foundation stones upon which the breed has been established. For his easy feeding qualities his popularity has, for over 50 years, held sway wherever corn is king. Some have ventured to suggest the bacon hog as the solution, but that suggestion has died in its utterance. In the first place the pork producers of the corn belt are not struck with his shape; secondly, time is too precious to produce him, and, lastly, the market demand would be limited, because it demands both meat and lard, two articles equally valuable.

The trend of the market demand in the last few years has caused the evolution of the Poland China to the present type. A type that because of its time-saving tendency in pork production has added thousands of dollars annually to our agricultural wealth. To retain this profitable carcass and still acquire more lean meat is a problem that will admit of much experimental research. Lean meat is the muscular flesh of the carcass, the growth of which is greatly encouraged by abundant exercise and food stuff rich in protein and mineral matters, foods that are within the reach of all pork producers, but of which so few avail themselves in sufficient quantities to baalnce starchy corn in the feeding ration.

Until our markets offer greater inducements for more lean meat, we are certain our pork producers cannot profit by its production. But when they do, use of more feeds rich in protein will bring about the desired results, and as delicious meat will be produced from the Poland China in the corn belt as is produced with any breed in the agricultural world. As in the race suicide of the Poland China to a great extent the breed has been unjustly accused by both rival breeds and by those who have overlooked the fact that the Poland China sow is a great flesh carrier, and have failed to guard against the over-production of flesh during pregnancy.

An exclusive corn diet during the winter months, especially, can result in nothing but failure to produce large healthy litters. With the successful pork-raiser the diet of the brood sow is even more important before, than after, farrowing.

To those who have mastered this the most important branch of hog-raising, the proficiency of the Poland China has not been the question. Given the same conditions under which other breeds have proven profitable, we believe the Poland China with his early maturity, prepotency and uniform excellence will prove even more profitable.

PASTURE FOR SOW AND PIGS.

Half Acre Tracts and Movable Houses Work to Good Advantage.

I have found it a good practice to construct a number of half-acre lots, placing a portable house in every other one and giving a sow and her pigs an individual house, says a writer in Orange Judd Farmer. By the time they will have eaten or stamped down all the green stuff on this half acre, the house can easily be lifted over the fence to the next lot and the hogs moved where they will have plenty of fresh, green pasture.

The lot from which they have been taken can then be plowed up and sowed in rye or forage crops that grow comparatively fast. By the time they have exhausted the second lot they can be returned to the original one. Thus the two lots will support the sow and pigs until the pigs are old enough to wean. If properly cared for they will support the sows the year round.

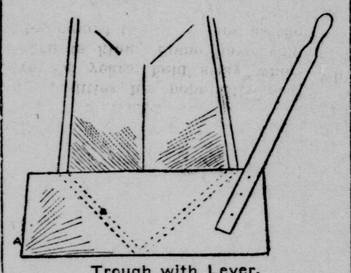

I have also found it good practice to have a larger lot, if possible, of from five to ten acres, to turn all the pigs into after they have been weaned. I allow them to remain there until they are four or five months old. I feed them in the meantime and allow them plenty of ground and exercise so that they may develop bone and muscle. They will then be in a good, healthy condition to go into the feed lot.

In building these portable houses there is one thing that must ever be borne in mind, and that is, no matter how or where they are built, they should provide good, clean, dry sleeping quarters, and, above everything else, be sanitary.

FIGHTING PESTS.

A Word of Explanation About Fungicides and Insecticides.

There are two general classes of insecticides, says a communication from the Oklahoma station. The first class of mixtures contains some poisonous substance that kills the insects when it is eaten with the foliage or fruit on which it is lodged. Paris green, London purple, and white hellebore are the poisonous materials most commonly used in these mixtures. These mixtures are effectual in destroying only those insects that eat the foliage or fruit of the plants, and are harmless to the insects that suck the juice of the plant.

The other class of insecticides kills the insect by coming in contact with the body. Kerosene emulsion, whale oil soap, and pyrethrum powder are the most common materials used in these mixtures. Mixtures of this class are used chiefly to destroy those insects that suck the juice of the plant and cannot be destroyed with poisons. The poisonous insecticides may be mixed with fungicides and applied all in one spraying, but other insecticides must be applied separately.

The fungicides and insecticides, if properly prepared and applied, have no effect upon the plants. If the mixtures are not properly prepared and applied they do not form the desired protection to the plants and may damage the foliage and fruit. There is never enough poison on the well-sprayed fruits and plants to alter their value for food. Most fruits are pared before eating and all sediment of the spraying material removed. In the case of fruits that are not pared before eating, as grapes, a person would have to eat from 300 to 500 pounds to get a small dose of poison. It will always injure the sale of such fruits, however, if there are any signs of a spraying material on them when placed on the market.

AN ORCHARDIST'S OPINION.

The Grass Method of Orcharding Good Under Some Conditions.

A good deal of discussion is going on about the grass mulch method of orcharding. I believe it is all right under some conditions, but though it is successfully practiced on our farm, I do not like to advocate the method in public. Most farmers have too much grass already with their trees for their own or their owner's good, writes George C. Hill, in Farmers' Review. The orchard is mowed or pastured; the trees are sod-bound, stunted, starved, drought sick, unproductive. I am acquainted with one productive orchard in Wisconsin that is in grass. It contains about 100 trees, many of them 30 years old. About one-third of the number are Fameuse. The orchard was in cultivation 12 or 15 years. The trees were headed low and cultivation became difficult. Then it was seeded to clover. After some years June grass took possession of the ground. The grass mulch method would cut the grass and pile it under the trees to keep the soil moist and make fertility. Our practice is to take up one crop of grass and top dress liberally with stable manure. No pasturing is allowed. The second crop of grass makes a cover crop for winter protection. Any small trees liable to be girdled are banked with earth or coal ashes. The low habit of the trees makes it too shady under the branches for grass to flourish. The tough sod is not found there. Fruit that falls to the ground meets a clean, comfortable reception. The trees have been longer lived than those planted on neighboring farms with different treatment. No trees were lost or apparently injured during the destructive winter of 1898 and 1899.

IT'S ALL 2-CENT TRAVEL

WISE PASSENGERS WON'T BUY INTERSTATE TICKETS IN MISSOURI.

WHAT MR. FRANK HAGERMAN SAYS

Through Business Disappeared—It's Cheaper to Buy Your Ticket to the State Line and Then to Get Another.

Kansas City, Mo., June 26.—The experiment with two-cent fares in Missouri which has been in effect one week this morning, has produced results nobody expected. It has nearly abolished iterstate traffic.

"As an experiment to test the practicability of a two-cent fare," Frank Hagerman, attorney for the railroads, said, "it begins to look like almost a failure. It's tendency is to wipe out interstate business."

"We used to sell through tickets to the east here every day," E. S. Jewett of the Missouri Pacific said, "but this two-cent fare law nearly wipes us out as a coupon ticket office. Travelers eastbound buy to St. Louis and buy their through tickets there except, of course, a few round trip tickets to Jamestown."

The railroads agreed to try the two-cent fare law on business within the state, but to charge the old rates on interstate busiess. They were surprised at the promptness with which the public learned how to beat that arrangement. For example, a ticket from St. Louis to Topeka costs $9.50, but a ticket from St. Louis to Kansas City costs $5.50 and from Kansas City to Topeka $2. The passenger saves $2 by buying separate tickets and does not have to worry over stop-overs or connections. Nine out of every passengers figured it out at the start and are taking advantage of the difference.

The same situation applies to business eastbound. Some of the roads have lines to both Chicago and St. Louis and others have not. The lines that go to both cities discovered an increase in travel to St. Louis and a decrease in Chicago travel with practically no sales east. The reason was that a passenger going to New York could save $2 by buying in Kansas City to St. Louis instead of buying a through tcket by way of either point or one ticket in Kansas City and one in Chicago. That was the cause of the hasty meeting of railroad presidents in Chicago, when an agreement was made to equalize the rate.

But the effect of this situation on the litigation in the the federal court is the problem confronting Herbert S. Hadley, attorney general of Missouri, who was here yesterday, and the railroad attorneys who hoped to make a showing that the state business could not be run on a two-cent basis. Formerly a large percentage of the passenger business done by Missouri railroads was through business. There has been a great reduction in the percentage, but nobody knows how much.

The whole system of separating the state and interstate business and dividing the cost of operation must be figured out new and neither side knows now which will be helped by the new way of figuring business. For there has been an enormous increase in the local business, part of it actual increase of travel and part the result of the breaking up of interstate travel.

IS AGAIN ON THE STAND

WAS CONFRONTED BY IMPEACHERS

He Denied Having Conversation With Them as Outlined by the Defendant's Attorneys—Made No Murderous Threats.

Boise, Idaho, June 25.—When the Haywood trial was resumed this morning the defense caused a surprise by recalling Harry Orchard in opening its case.

Orchard was put on the stand immediately after court opened and Attorney Richardson questioned him

He wanted to know if Orchard had not told Max Malich in a Turkish bath establishment in Denver that Governor Steunenberg was responsible for his being a poor man and that he intended to kill him. Orchard answered that he had been to the baths with Malich, but denied that there had been any such conversation. He also denied knowing John D. Elliott, who was in court and who was requested to stand up.

Richardson asked Orchard if he had not told Elliott that capital had determined to get rid of all union labor and would begin with the Western Federation of Miners, and that something would happen soon in Idaho that would startle the world.

"I had no such conversation with any person at any time or place," declared Orchard.

The witness admitted knowing D.C. Copley. He was asked if he didn't say to Copley that there was another man who had had a hand in the Coeur d'Alene trouble, that that man was Steunenberg, and that he had driven him out of the country and he intended to kill him.

"No, sir; I didn't say that, either in substance or effect. There never was a conversation in which Steunenberg's name was mentioned."

Orchard was next confronted by Charles A. Sullivan, a miner from Cripple Creek, but denied ever having a conversation with Sullivan, in which he said Steunenberg ought to be killed and that he himself would kill him if some one else didn't.

He denied in turn having made similar threats against half a dozen other persons named by the attorney.

Orchard was then dismissed and Mary J. King, of Cripple Creek, was called as the first witness for the defense.

Mrs. King testified that K. C. Sterling, chief detective for the Mine Owners' association of Colorado, lived at her house in Cripple Creek and that she saw Orchard visit his room seven or more times.

CHARGE A SERIOUS ONE

JOSEPH STUBBLEFIELD IS UNDER ARREST AT FORT SCOTT, KANSAS.

HE MISTREATED A MISSOURI GIRL

Found With Two Sisters Who Reside at El Dorado Springs—Officers Have Sent for Father of the Girls.

Fort Scott, Kansas, June 25.—Officers here have arrested Joe Stubblefield on the charge of enticing two sisters named Marnia and Zarlinda Atkinson from Nevada, Mo., to this city, and then being criminally intimate with the younger of the two girls, who is only 16 years of age.

The girls were also taken into custody, and the youngest one admitted that Stubblefield had had improper relations with her and that he had brought them to this city from Nevada.

The story she told was that she and her sister live at El Dorado Springs, and that a short time ago they went to Nevada to secure work. There they met Stubblefield, who persuaded them to accompany him to this city. They had been here two days before being arrested.

The father of the girls was notified of the trouble they are in here, and he is expected to arrive in the city today.

If he will swear to a complaint against the man he will be prosecuted, as the law is very strict on a charge of that nature in this state.

BANK WRECKER AS A "STAR"

Seven Years' Toil on Drama Exposing Alleged Persecutors.

Middlebury, Vt., June 25.—John Winslow Katcham, who was released after serving seven years for participating in the wrecking of the Farmers' National bank, of Virgennes, declared yesterday that it was his intention to go on the stage and star in a drama to right his alleged wrongs.

While in jail he has busied himself with efforts to prove that his conviction was a miscarriage of justice. Lately his activity has found expression in the writing of the play based on what he alleges to be the true story of the bank wrecking and it is announced that next fall he will tour the state as the principal in this drama, to impress the people with the idea that he was made to suffer for the wrongdoing of others.

A WOMAN FROM SEDALIA

LED TO GRANVILLE ALLISON'S ARREST AT DES MOINES, CAPITAL OF IOWA.

THE MAN IS CHARGED WITH RAPE

Extreme Penalty of Crime Is Hanging—He Accomplished His Purpose—Assault Occurred at Centralia, Mo.

Columbia, Mo., June 25.—Granville Allison, the Columbia young man who attempted rape upon Miss Myrtle McAfee, a 14-year old girl, at Centralia on Sunday night, June 16, was arrested at Des Moines, Ia., Sunday, and will be held until Deputy Sheriff Wilson Hall arrives there to bring him home.

Allison has made a reputation by breaking away from officers while under arrest, but he will have a hard time getting away alive from Mr. Hall.

Allison's offense is punishable by hanging, the extreme penalty, to five years in the penitentiary, the minimum penalty.

Advices from Centralia say that the girl fainted when the assault was attempted and she does not remember what happened, but the examination by physicians asked by the prosecuting attorney to ascertain the fact, proved that he had accomplished his purpose.

If the state proves this to the satisfaction of the jury it will go hard with Allison. The punishment for attempted rape, where the purpose was not accomplished, is from six months in jail to five years in the penitentiary.

When Allison escaped from Centralia, Sheriff Rothwell began at once to find out where a woman associate of Allison's who had been staying at Sedalia, had gone.

When he learned that she was now in Des Moines, he notified the authorities there to keep on the lookout for Allison. His arrest followed as a result of the police at Des Moines keeping a watch on her. This woman was a former Columbia girl, who had run away with Allison

ANXIOUS ABOUT SON

C. C. Goodwin Was Expected Saturday From Kansas.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

George Goodwin, the cancer doctor, fears that the unknown man killed last Saturday by Missouri Pacific train No. 6 near Dresden was his son, C. C. Goodwin, who was expected to reach here that day from Hutchinson, Kas.

"Our boy has traveled all over the country on freight trains," said Dr. Goodwin this morning, "and he wrote his mother last week that he would be here Saturday, the 22d.

"We have been told that eight tourists camped at Lamonte Friday night, and on Saturday morning five of them started for Sedalia, while the other three went west.

"If the man killed was coming toward Sedalia it is likely he was our son. We have written to Hutchinson to ascertain if our boy left there at the time he wrote he would."

THE FIRST WHEAT CUT

On the Farm of John J. English, Seven Miles Southwest.

The first wheat to be cut in Pettis county, so far as the Democrat-Sentinel knows, was on the farm of John J. English, seven miles southwest of the city, Monday morning, June 24.

Mr. English had a fifty-acre field that was ready for the reaper, it having been planted with fertilizer, and the grain is of fine quality.

The average for the fifty acres will, it is thought, be between 25 and 30 bushels to the acre.

Ralph Dow Named.

Ralph W. Dow, of Georgetown has been appointed a member of the Pettis county text book commission. the other members being Prof. J. P. Gass and County Commissioner T. R. Luckett.

Missouri Wants the Best and Gets It!

The harvester trust, with its many different makes of mowers and rakes, has a strong competitor in the Acme Harvester company, of Peoria, Ill., and the state of Missouri now owns and operates an Acme mower and an Acme hay rake on the state fair grounds in the edge of this city. Yesterday the officials of the State Fair association examined the different machines offered for sale in this city, for they needed an outfit to cut the crop of clover and timothy on the fair grounds, and they unanimously selected the Acme mower and rake as the best on the market, regardless of the price. This certainly speaks well for an independent concern that is making a fight for trade on the merits of its machines.

"BOOZE" IN THE BREAD

A NOVEL METHOD OF BEATING THE "LID" OVER IN KENTUCKY.

THE MAN DID RUSHING BUSINESS

Officials Became Suspicious, Began an Investigation and the "Lid" Lifter Was Finally Arrested.

Lexington, Ky., June 25.—An unusual demand for bread on the part of the thirsty population aroused the suspicions of the local police Sunday, and an investigation culminated in the arrest of J. W. Carmichael.

He conducts a saloon at Sixth and Limestone streets, and is alleged to have disposed of pint bottles of whisky by tucking them snugly away inside of innocent looking loaves of bread.

His place was visited by Detectives Johnson and Stewart, plain-clothes men, who placed him under arrest on the charge of violating the Sunday law and conducting a disorderly house.

Several persons who were found in the place in search of the staff of life combined with oil of joy were summoned as witnesses.

TENT MEETING IS NOW "ON"

First Services at the Katy Shops at Noon Today.

(Tuesday's Daily.)

Rev. Zeb Thomas, whom many of the citizens of Sedalia know, arrived yesterday from Springfield, Mo., to join the district mission board of Harmony Baptist association, and the two churches in the city in a tent meeting campaign in the southwest section.

The tent will be pitched the last of the week preparatory to a great service on Sunday evening. In the meantime there will be a house to house visitation, with three services at the noon hour at the M., K. & T. shops, the first of which was held today. A great meeting is promised.

Rev. Campbell extends a hearty invitation to the entire public to attend these meetings. Over 2,000 people are back of the movement, and it is to be hoped the number will be multiplied many times.

NAKED MAN IN STREETS

THE PEOPLE OF BRIDGEPORT, KENTUCKY, FLED FROM HIM IN TERROR.

THE AUTHORITIES WERE NOTIFIED

Arrest of Man Who Has Lived for Years in the Thickets and Cliffs, Subsisting On Various Roots and Herbs.

Lawrenceburg, Ky., June 25.—Thoroughly frightened yesterday afteroon were the residents of Bridgeport by the sudden appearance in their midst of a naked and uncouth wild man.

The man roamed through the village as unconcerned as if he owned it, and men, women and children fled to their homes and, locking doors and windows, peered through the shutters until the man left in the direction of this city.

Lawrenceburg authorities were notified that a wild man was coming toward this city. From the description he is thought to be the wild man often seen roaming in the thickets and cliffs on the Kentucky river, in the eastern part of Anderson county.

A man answering the description of the naked man seen in Bridgeport was arrested here. His articulation is imperfect, but he is understood to give his name as Lee Wilson, of Frankfort.

Efforts to identify him have proved futile, and he is thought to be "Big Otis," who has lived for years in the thickets and cliffs of this county, subsisting on roots and herbs.

BRIDE ILL; HUSBAND INSANE

Watching at Wife's Bedside Too Much for Kansan's Mind.

Pittsburg, Kas., June 25.—John Loomis, a prosperous young farmer, whose home is southeast of here, has been taken into custody and application made to admit him to the state asylum.

About six weeks ago Mr. Loomis married Miss Mary Tucker, a Walnut girl. Shortly after marriage his wife was taken very sick and has since been at the point of death. Worry over her condition and constant attendance at the side of his bride resulted in his mind giving away.

The young man is son of Elmer Loomis, formerly a representative in the legislature. It is believed that treatment at the state hospital will restore his mind. It is feared, however, that the shock will prove fatal to his young bride, who is not yet out of danger.

'HEY, LET ME DOWN EASY'

CAME FROM THE GRAVE AND NEGRO MOURNERS STAMPEDED AT ONCE.

WAS EXCITEMENT IN A CEMETERY

Ventriloquist Threw His Voice Into Coffin, and It Is Not Surprising That Almost Everybody Hiked.

Wilmington, Del., June 25.—There was all kinds of excitement at a negro funeral near Denton, Md., when Samuel Johnson, a negro ventriloquist, threw his voice into the grave as the casket was being lowered and said: "Let me down easy."

The mourners thought it was the corpse that spoke and with a scream they fled. The pall bearers were so frightened they dropped the casket.

When the relatives recovered their composure they accused Johnson of exercising his "talents," and forthwith had him arrested.

He was given a hearing on the charge of disorderly conduct and malicious mischief, and was held in bail. The ventriloquist is from Wilmington. He says he will never again give a performance in a cemetery.

A TRULY MIXED UP MESS

AS THE RESULT OF THE INTERMARRIAGE OF PEOPLE IN MINNESOTA.

THIS TAKES THE "BLUE RIBBON"

Wedding Made a Widow Stepmother-in-Law of Her Daughters and Sons-in-Law, Who Are—Oh, What's the Use?

Stillwater, Minn., June 25.— Mrs. Julian Wilhelm Schrade, a wealthy widow, who is dead at her home near here, is survived by a remarkable matrimonial entanglement.

About 1860 Mrs. Schrade was a young girl living in Germany and had a lover named Christian Schrade. Christian objected to military service and as often as the draft came around he hied to Austria to evade it.

Returning from such a trip he found that his sweetheart had been married to a rival named Nickols, and he at once came to America and to Stillwater.

In 1867 he took a homestead and married. His wife died, and later he was married again and two sons were born when his second wife died.

In the meantime Mrs. Nickols had become a widow and she and her two daughters came to America and settled near here.

One of the Schrade boys married one of the Nickols girls twenty-one years ago this month, and just eight years ago the other son married his brother's wife's sister.

Later Schrade and Mrs. Nic... decided to renew their old attachment, and the widow became the third wife of the man she had lo... years ago, and at the same time became the stepmother-in-law of both her daughters and the stepmother of her two sons-in-law, who were each other's brothers-in-law, and now become stepsons-inlaw to their own father.

FORMER SEDALIA LADY

HAD A NARROW ESCAPE FROM A FIRE AT HER HOME IN PILOT GROVE.

WAS AN EXPLOSION OF GASOLINE

Mrs. J. W. Kistler Was Slightly Burned—The Blaze Was Extinguished After Hard Fight By a Neighbor.

Mrs. J. W. Kistler, wife of a former Sedalia baker, was wrtten of as follows in the Pilot Grove Record of Thursday:

While preparing breakfast Tuesday morning on a gasoline stove, Mrs. J W. Kistler met with an accident from which she was saved serious injury only by what might seem miraculous.

The kettle in which she was boiling wa[illegible] and which was on one of the [illegible] burners of the stove was almost empty, and Mrs. Kistler picked up a small tin bucket, in which she supposed was water, and poured a portion of its contents into the kettle.

An explosion followed, as the bucket contained gasoline instead of water. The flames instantly spread to every part of the kitchen. Mrs. Kistler screamed and in a moment close neighbors responded to her cries. After a hard struggle the fire was extinguished.

It is the greatest wonder that Mrs. Kistler was not seriously, or even dangerously, burned, but she had the good fortune to escape with but a painful burn on one of her arms.

George Friedmeyer was among the first to get to the house. He saw at once that the kettle, out of which were coming leaping flames of fire, must be removed and he took hold of it to throw it out of the window.

The gasoline splashed out on his shirt sleeve and he was badly burned on the hand, arm and right side of the face. No doubt Mr. Friedmeyer's quick action averted much damage to the surroundings, though he greatly endangered himself in taking it.

The inside of both the kitchen and dining room is badly damaged, the wall paper being spoiled, three doors ruined, and most of the wood charred. It was a narrow escape for the entire building.

It Pays to Read the Advertisements in Your Newspaper.

"I was down with chronic rheumatism since last fall," writes M. F. Toorney, No. 52 Carbon street, Scranton, Pa. "I tried all kinds of medicine, but did not receive any benefit. I saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised in the Scranton Times, got a half dollar bottle of it, but as everything else had failed I had little faith in it. I rubbed myself thoroughly with it and went to bed, and to my surprise felt better the next morning. The pains seemed to go away. I kept on using it and now have had no pains for the past six week. I only used half of it." For sale by W. E. Bard Drug Co.

A TRULY TRAGIC DEATH

THAT OF MRS. SKINNER, WHO RESIDED AT HUNTSVILLE, MO.

WAS ANOTHER WOMAN IN CASE

Latter Was of Questionable Character, Lived at Moberly, and Mr. Skinner Was Infatuated With Her.

The Huntsville Herald gives further particulars of the tragic death of Mrs. W. H. Skinner, of that place, told exclusively in the Moberly Democrat last Friday. The Herald says:

The cause that led to the death of this wife and mother, Mrs. W. H. Skinner, wife of Constable Skinner, was a letter written to another woman by the husband, and which fell into the hands of the unfortunate wife. It had been rumored for some time prior to Thursday night's tragedy that Mr. Skinner had not been true to his wife and these rumors seemed to have been well grounded.

Several days ago Mr. Skinner wrote a loving letter to a woman of Moberly of questionable character. The letter was written on his official letter head paper, but for some reason it was miscarried and was later delivered to a family of the same name on one of the rural routes, and through this party the letter was delivered to Mrs. Skinner.

Of course Mrs. Skinner wanted an explanation from her husband, and he flatly denied being the author of the letter or that it was his handwriting, but claimed that some one wrote it on his letter head while he was out of his office. But this did not convince her that her husband did not write the letter and that he was not trying to deceive her, and family troubles continued to grow worse until her life was ended. The particulars of the affair, as told by Mr. Skinner, are about these:

He and his wife retired about 9 o'clock. She asked him to tell her the truth about the letter and then for the first time he admitted to her that he wrote it.

Then, according to his testimony, she sprang out of bed and said, "I will put a stop to all of this trouble," and made for the safe, on top of which was his revolver, a 38-calibre Colt's, but he followed her and got hold of it first.

Then she grabbed him around the neck with one arm and gripped the revolver with the other hand and tried to snatch it from his hand. During the struggle for the possession of the gun she pulled him partly over her, in a stooping position, and while in that position the gun was discharged, with both holding onto it, the ball entering her breast, ranged downward, passing through her body, coming out at the back.

When the gun was discharged she sprang up into his arms and cried that she was shot. Then he carried her into the bedroom and laid her on the floor; as he did so she said: "Will take care of the children. I am dying. Will, I never did this on purpose; I don't want to die."

Mr. Skinner then tried to get some one over the 'phone, but could not. Then he awoke his little son and sent him to the nearest neighbors for help. Neighbors and physicians soon arrived and she was placed on the bed and all was done for her that could be. The physician promised no hope of her recovery and death came to her relief.

CONTROLLING VICIOUS RAMS.

Simple Plan of Shield to Be Placed Over Animal's Eyes.

Anyone who has a vicious buck understands without further comment what he is apt to do when cross, and is often at a loss to know what to do with him. He may be perfectly satisfactory as a breeder and as a wool producer so that the shepherd is loath to part with him, says the Farmer, and at the same time his vicious habits make it necessary to fix up some contrivance to control him. Here is a little diagram of a hood that can be made out of a leather boot leg. It is provided with loops to fit around his horns if he has them, or his ears if he has not, and can be tied with pieces of rawhide or stout cord. This fits down over the eyes and will soon be the means of calming his haughty spirits.

PIGS AND CLOVER.

A Little Grain Should Be Fed During the Summer.

Pigs should not be carried through the summer on clover alone. A little grain will be required to balance the green clover. It is claimed by some that pigs can make just as good growth on Alfalfa or clover alone as they would if a little corn were given with the green forage.

While it may be true that the pigs will make a profitable growth on alfalfa or clover, it is not true that they will do as well on these green feeds alone as they will if given a little grain in addition. The grain is needed to increase the number of pounds of food elements without correspondingly increasing the amount of dry matter.

Several years ago the Nebraska station made an experiment to learn what proportion of grain to alfalfa was needed to make the most economical ration for growing pigs. It was found that the cost of producing 100 pounds of grain on alfalfa pasture alone, was about $4.30. On Alfalfa pasture with an addition of one and one-third pounds of grain the cost of 100 pounds of grain was lowered to $2.74 per 100. When the grain ration was increased to two and a half pounds per day, the cost was lowered to $2.45. It can be seen by feeding only one and a third pounds of grain ration per day, the cost of producing the 100 pounds of gain was lowered nearly one-half. While one single test should not be taken as reliable, it certainly shows that pigs should not be expected to pass the summer without a little grain ration.

DOCKING LAMBS.

It Should Be Done Early, So Wounds Will Heal Quickly.

The lamb is docked when it is from ten days to two weeks old. If left until older the blood vessels are better developed and there is a chance of the lamb's bleeding to death, says the Criterion. At this stage the wound heals quickly and growth is not interrupted. The simplest tools to use is a sharp, clean butcher knife. If an attendant can be had he holds the lamb in his arms, feet up. With one hand he holds the legs and with the other he draws the skin around the tail within one inch of the body toward the body, so that when the tail is cut off the skin will slip back and partially cover the stub of the tail. The tail is cut off with a butcher knife while it lies on a small block of wood, and within one and one-half inches of the body.

After the docking the lambs are closely watched for an hour or two. Sometimes one bleeds more than he should and a string is tied about the stub to stop the bleeding, after which the string is removed.

Quality of Meat of Beeves.

The quality of meat of beef animals has enormously improved under conditions of high breeding and high feeding. This has been in part due to the lack of exercise which has made the muscles softer and it has been in part due to the selection for breeding of those animals having the right conformation to insure the best kind of meat.

Remove Harness from Sweaty Horses.

When the work-horse returns sweaty from the field his harness should be removed, if he is to rest for an hour or so. The sweat under the collar becomes a means of irritating the skin and causing rawness underneath.

Use Kindness.

In the educating of the colt to the harness and to the various wagons and farm implements, only kindness should be used. Harsh measures at this time have spoiled many a colt.

CRAZED BARBER'S DEED

SHOT SLEEPING PASSENGERS ON A TRAIN ON THE ROCK ISLAND.

ONE IS KILLED AND TWO WOUNDED

A Denver Man Closed With the Insane Tonsorial Artist and After a Fight He Was Finally Disarmed.

Goodland, Kan., June 22.—While the passengers in a chair car of a west bound passenger train of the Rock Island railroad were dozing in the seats last night about 10:30 o'clock, an Italian barber named John Bello, crazed from drinking, suddenly leaped from his chair with a drawn revolver in his hand, yelling frantically. The drink crazed man fired five shots, taking accurate aim at the passengers as he walked. T. B. Topp, a tailor of Minneapolis, Minn., was killed; Mrs. Morris Olsen and her sister, both of Arriba, Col., were wounded, although not dangerously.

The shooting took place east of here. When the train reached here Bello and a traveling companion who had been drinking with him were taken off and placed in jail.

The first shot fired by Bello struck Mrs. Olsen on the left side of her face, the bullet passing through the jaws and coming out on the right side. Mrs. Olsen's sister, Miss Blakesley, sitting opposite her, was hit in the right shoulder with the second bullet. Their wounds are not fatal. After being shot both women rushed to the smoking car ahead, and most of the men passengers followed as quickly as possible, tumbling over one another in their haste to escape.

Bello's third bullet passed through Mr. Topp's heart. He was found dead in his seat later. His facial expression was calm and from his position it appeared that he was sleeping when shot.

By this time no other man remained in the car except Charles A. Gilliat, a Denver man, an employe of the Griffin Wheel company, and D. R. Slawson, of Pueblo, Col. Gilliat closed in on Bello and wrenched his revolver from his hands, but not before two more shots had been fired, neither of which hit any one. Before being overpowered Bello drew a razor and with this fought desperately. A negro porter from the tourist car, armed with a billy, finally succeeded in knocking the razor out of the Italian's hand. Bello was then seized and bound by Gilliat, Slawson, the porter and others. The train crew stayed out of the car while the disturbance was in progress.

When the train arrived here Bello and his traveling companion, Patsy Leganbradi, also an Italian, were removed from the train and locked in jail. Bello was accompanied by his wife and four children, and Leganbradi by his wife and five children. The women and the children continued their journey to San Francisco.

Mrs. Leganbradi admitted that the two men had been drinking Italian vermouth all day yesterday. About 8 o'clock they fell asleep. At 10:30 o'clock Mrs. Leganbradi said Bello awoke and began to protest wildly that some one was trying to rob him. Then he rushed up the aisle and began shooting.

JONAH AND THE WHALE

This Story Has Nothing to Do With Case in Question.

St. Louis, Mo., June 24.—Attorney John F. Merriman, opposing at Clayton the motion of the Bible College of Missouri to strike out that portion of Rev. Gustavus Hoffmann's answer which referred to Jonah and the whale, declared that the court ought not to compel Hoffman to contribute $5,000 to an institution to increase the race of infidels.

Hamilton Grover, attorney for the Bible College, said that Rev. Hoffmann's $5,000 note, on which the suit was brought, is part of a simple contract and that the question of whether Jonah was swallowed by the whale or Mathuselah lived to be 967 years old had nothing to do with the matter.

Judge McIlhinney took the case under advisement.

Pat McGinley Heard From.

FARM AND GARDEN

A SMOKE HOLE.

Easily Constructed and Will Cure Meat Perfectly.

A writer in the Dakota Farmer gives this account of his simple plan for smoking meat:

"After the meat has been in the brine about two weeks I take it out, put it in a tub of cold water one day and night, and it is then ready to smoke. Take a box about four feet high and two or three feet wide, and knock both ends out. Dig a hole about 2½ feet deep and two feet square; then dig a trench the length of a stove pipe and eight inches deep. Dig a small hole at opposite end from the large hole, put in an old joint of stove pipe and cover over with dirt, then put box over the small hole and bank up with dirt. Put a tin over large hole; an old joint of pipe, uncoupled and flattened out, will do. Make a fire out of corncobs and you have a smoke box equal to any smoke house."

MAKE HASTE IN HAYING.

Try and Have Cutting Done in First Bloom.

The nearer hay approaches grass the better feed it makes. To accomplish this, it is necessary to cut the crop early to secure it in good condition. In the first blossom is the ideal time. Farmers used to think it necessary to dry hay excessively before storing. Advanced ideas have proved this method entirely wrong. The natural juices of the hay should be retained as far as possible. Excessive drying makes the hay dry and woody, and removes a large part of its natural juices.

I commence haying usually the last week in June, says a write in Farm and home, and, weather permitting, my hay is stored during July. I find it a good plan to put the mower on late in the afternoon. This leaves it for the first sun in the morning and it wilts a good deal during the night, which aids the drying next day. If cut in the morning heavy with dew, it takes half the forenoon to get the water out of it. Some think the dew will color hay cut in the afternoon, but it will not do so unless cut early enough to dry considerably.

The middle of the forenoon the tedder should be put on and worked until noon. The tedder is the most valuable hay tool that we have. Without it much hay would get wet, that otherwise is safely stored in semi-dull weather. Hay dries very fast when constantly stirred. This is only possible with a tedder.

By one o'clock the hay is ready to rake and cart, unless it is very early in the season or very heavy hay. In that case it should be put up in good sized cocks and left until the next day, when it should be opened a little to air, then carted to the barn. Most of the necessary drying has been accomplished in the cocks.

There is little danger of hay mow-burning from the natural juices; it is caused by introducing hay that has been wet. For this reason it is essential that hay that has been wet should be thoroughly dried before storing. The quicker hay is cured after cutting the better it is. Swale hay requires more drying than timothy or clover to secure it from mow-burning. Swale should be cut early; it is practically worthless cut late.

Managing the Workers.

Managing the workers on a farm is a science in itself. It is a science that few have studied sufficiently. Planning out the work so that it may be done in the best manner and in the least time is equivalent to a saving in dollars and cents. Not only should the work be properly done and at the right time, but the time between different pieces of work should be as small as possible. Here is a point at which great waste occurs. It is like a man forgetting something at the store and having to drive back miles to get it. No man can properly manage a set of workers without putting some thought on it. Thinking is not so easy as it seems. To think in a logical manner requires effort.

Sow Cowpeas in Drills.

After about 18 years' experience with cowpeas and soy beans, I would not think of broadcasting them, says a writer in Farm and Home. I use a nine-hoe drill, closing all but the center and two outside hoes. This makes rows two feet apart. I set this to sow about one-half bushel seed per acre. I then cultivate two to four times according to the season. This will give a greater yield than when peas are broadcasted and the seed saved will pay for the cultivation. They are also easier to harvest. Sow only when the ground is warm, which is usually ujst after corn planting. We often have a good crop of black peas after wheat.

Athens, Ohio, June 24.—The lid went down with a bang here Saturday night, when ten saloons closed their doors as the result of the recent local option election, at which 1,530 votes were polled, the "drys" winning by a majority of 13.

The saloons affected are in the business portion, a Brannock petition having shut them out of the residence district.

NOT A CENT FROM "JOHN D."

Desired by Promoters of New Home for Aged Baptists.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 22.—John D. Rockefeller is not to be invited to subscribe to a fund for the Home for Aged Baptists. Members of the building fund committee of the newly organized institution say they do not want John D. to contribute because they wish to get along for once without his financial assistance.

"No, we are not going to ask Mr. Rockefeller for a subscription," said B. T. Quilling, chairman of the committee. "We have received a number of letters in which the writers said they supposed that Mr. Rockefeller would give about two-thirds of the money we need. We want it understood that we are not calling on him for any money. We want to create the home with money raised by popular subscriptions.

"We are trying to raise $5,000 by July 1, and $5,000 by August 1. After that we hope to get $$15,000 at the rate of $5,000 a month. We want all Baptists in this district, barring Mr. Rockefeller, to contribute."

Jealous Brother Shot Him—Assailant Then Nearly Killed.

Marietta, Ohio, June 22.—Jealous because his aged mother favored his brother in operating their farm north of this city, Charles Miller shot Albert Miller, and in turn was nearly killed by the latter's son.

The men quarreled over a harrow, which Albert wanted to use. Charles obtained a shotgun and emptied both barrels at the brother, tearing away his right hand, with which he shielded his head from the charge of the gun. The boy then grabbed a shovel and with it fractured his uncle's skull.

Albert is in the hospital and Charles is a prisoner at the county jail. Both are in a serious condition.

BROUGHT IN BURGLARS

WOMAN LIVING NEAR WARRENSVILLE, OHIO, WHO WAS NOT AFRAID.

GOOD FEMALE TO PATTERN AFTER

She Tied the Men Hand and Foot, After Leading a Posse That Exchanged Shots With Them in a Swamp.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 22.—The pluck and bravery of Mrs. Fred Loeshman, wife of a contractor, living near Warrensville, foiled an attempt at daylight burglary.

Dodging bullets, Mrs. Loeshman headed a posse that followed the burglars two miles in a running chase across country. Shots were fired on both sides. The chase ended in the surrender of the men in a swamp when they were down to their last cartridge.

A picturesque ride into town in an old-fashioned, canvas-topped wagon, where the prisoners, tied hand and foot, sat covered with two guns from behind and a sixshooter in front, was the climax.

This was the story that her admiring neighbors told the police authorities at the Seventh precinct when they rode up to the door.

The men were booked as Frank Leshke, 20, charged with housebreaking, and Joseph Weis, 19, accused similarly, except as to the shooting. Only Leshke had a firearm. It still contained one cartridge when he was arrested.

Returning home from marketing, Mrs. Loeshman drove up to the door. She heard a noise inside.

Throwing open the door, she dashed inside. There she found two men going through the silver chests, she says. One of the men pulled a revolver and said "Get out." Instead she ran toward the intruders.

There was a flash and a bullet whizzed past her head and was imbedded in the wall back of her. The next minute the two men, frightened at possible consequences, turned and fled.

Still Mrs. Loeshman did not lose her courage. She pursued the flying burglars. Others joined her and the men were finally brought to bay and captured in a swamp. The men were quickly tied.

"It isn't anything remarkable," said Mrs. Loeshman, talking the matter over afterward. "I didn't have time to think about being afraid."

FATHER'S FATAL ERROR

Mistook His Child for Thief and Shot Him Dead.

Carmi, Ill., June 22.--Believing that his 9-year-old son was a burglar, George South, of this city, early yesterday morning opened fire on him, killing the boy almost instantly.

Early in the night burglars had attempted to enter the South home, but were frightened away. About 4 o'clock, South heard a noise in an adjoining room, and drew his gun, believing burglars had gained entrance.

Creeping toward the form of the supposed burglar, he opened fire. Caleb, his little son, fell, mortally wounded.

The father and mother are hysterical over the affair, and refuse consolation. The boy was gright, and a neighborhood favorite.

WAS RAILROADING THEN

SOME OF THE MANY OBSTACLES EMPLOYES MET IN THE EARLY DAYS.

HAD NO "SAFETY DEVICES" THEN

Engineers at $2 Per Day Were Supposed to Pile on Wood Every Fifteen Miles and Also Fix the Track.

The bunch was sitting around a table at the Railroad club, says the Kansas City Journal. It was raining and no one had brought an umbrella. The conversation was of railroads—railroad men and railroad methods, past and present. An old-time engineer drifted in to get out of the wet. For a time he listened silently to the talk of the days gone by. Finally he moved up closer and began to wax reminiscent.

"You young fellows have a lot to say about those good old days," he said "but I'll bet there's not one of you but is simply repeating what has been told him by his father or grandfather. Those were good days, but they were not easy days. Then they had to stop their engines every ten or fifteen miles to take on wood. No, I don't go back that far myself, but I've fired for men who did.

"In the old days of railroading there was a wood pile every few miles along the road. The engines used only wood then, you know, and when they came to one of the piles both the engineer and fireman would climb down and fill the tank with fuel. I guess we would think ourselves worked to death if we had to do a thing like that now. Then the train would go along for maybe ten or fifteen miles further and the performance would be repeated. Sounds funny, doesn't it?

"But it was the men who did that work, who made railroading what it is today, and it really seems to me that there was better stuff in them than you see now. As I said, I fired for some of them ad I know about the differences, then and now. There are mighty few of the old-timers left and fewer still in active service.

"Besides the difference in fuel there was about as big a difference in pay. The engineer got $2 a day and the fireman $1, and there was no such thing as overtime. Your day ended when you got to the end of your run, and then you couldn't get water in the boiler unless the engine was moving. There wasn't any such thing as an injector or and inspirator in those days. There was a pump and it was attached to the guides of the drivers, so unless they were moving there was no way to force the water in. Now less than thirty pounds of steam is needed to fill your boiler.

"And in those days the engineer was supposed to make all repairs on the road. Of course you couldn't expect him to do it now, the machinery is so much bigger. Why, take the guides. He couldn't wind a piece of wire around them now if they broke, and keep on running. Now-a-days if anything happens to one side of an engine all there is to do to it is to cut it out and run light with the other. Every locomotive is practically two engines, you know, one on each side.

"In those days the fireman regularly crawled under the engine and packed the wheels. If anything happened to them, and they got heated up, he was to blame. Now all that is done in the shops.

"Of course, if you should put one of those old single-trackers on a compound he'd be lost, but they certainly knew their engines. Single trackers? Why all the railroads were single track in those days, and there wasn't any block system, either. The way they ran was something like this: Two trains would be scheduled to leave stations about the same time and half way between the two stations would be a white post. When one train reached the post it would wait half an hour on a siding, and if by that time the other train hadn't showed up, it would start on again.

"Sometimes they'd get to the halfway-post and not be able to stop because the throttle had disconnected. They used the sliding throttle and when anything happened there was no way of cutting off the steam. They'd simply fill the boiler up with water and use the reverse until the train slackened up enough to let the brakes work. Now they all have automatic throttles and steam is cut off the minute anything goes wrong.

"There were no safety devices like the steel brake beam or the air brake then, and the hand brakes were poor. It wasn't by any means unusual for one of those wood brake beams to break and drop down on the rails and wreck the train.

"Another thing that those old fellows did was to make the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers what it is today, conservative and respected by everyone. If a man doesn't belong to the Bfotherhood the officials of the road at once begin to think there is something wrong with him. And you never heard of the Brotherhood being in a row or a foolish squabble. They started it and carried it through when organizations were in pretty bad repute and when they deserved to be. But they never let the Brotherhood go to the bad.

"One more thing about the old days," the engineer relighted his cigar and rang the bell for "Ben."

"The way they ran freights was like this: An engine was rated as able to pull, say, fifteen cars, and pull just that many cars it had to whether they were loaded with straw hats or brick. Now the horse power and diamenter of the drivers shows just how many tons an engine can pull under given conditions, and that many it pulls, no matter how many cars are in the train."

PASS THROUGH PETTIS

EAST-AND-WEST HIGHWAY PLAN COMES BEFORE BOARD IN ST. LOUIS JULY 6.

AN ENGINEER WILL BE SELECTED

Scheme Would Be Basis for Roadway System Provided for by Legislature—Many Applications for the Office.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 22.--Governor Folk announced Friday afternoon that he would hold a conference at St. Louis on July 6 with the state board of agriculture for the purpose of selecting a state highway engineer, provided for in the series of good road laws enacted at the regular session of the Forty-fourth general assembly.

The governor has on file a number of applications for the place. The law provides that the appointee must be a skilled civil engineer.

At the conference with the board of agriculture Governor Folk will make a suggestion for the construction of a modern highway across the state from St. Louis to Kansas City as the beginning of a complete system of good roads in Missouri. His idea is to build the road in as near a direct line between the two cities as it will be possible to lay it out.

It would pass through the counties of Jackson, Lafayette, Pettis, Cooper, Boone, Callaway, Montgomery, Warren, St. Charles and St. Louis.

Governor Folk believes that the building of a great highway across the state from its eastern to its western metropolis would be a substantial basis upon which to found a network of good roads throughout the state. It would be the center from which could radiate a system that would provide all quarters of the state with good roads all the year round.

The governor also believes that the good work of the legislature in enacting laws that would admit of a good roads system should be followed up at once by active work in starting the system.

SUNDAY SCHOOL'S WORK

THE WEEKLY CONTRIBUTION OF COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT G. L. SHEPARD.

WORLD'S GREATEST CONVENTION

Fifteen Hundred Delegates in Session for Five Days in Rome—What It Is Proposed to Accomplish.

To the Democrat-Sentinel.

The convention which assembled at Rome, Italy, May 18 to 23, was the greatest Sunday school gathering in the history of the world. For five days about 1,500 delegates, representing thirty-seven different lands, nearly all evangelical creeds, and 26,000,000 Sunday school adherents, met together to hear reports of the progress throughout the earth and study the best methods of winning the world to Christ through the medium of the Sunday school.

From beginning to end the keynote of the fifth world's convention was the Sunday school as a missionary force. It was clearly brought out that the hope of evangelizing the world lies in the potential energy, as yet largely untouched, of the Sunday school. Near the close of the convention there occurred the most epoch-making event since the inauguration of the international system of Sunday school lessons a generation ago.

There was formed the World's Sunday School association, to rapidly develop and promote Sunday school work throughout the entire world. Bishop Hartzell was chairman of the committee which brought this action before the convention and in moving its adoption he declared it was the most important movement he had ever been privileged to endorse.

Without doubt it will mean an unparalleled advance of Sunday schools during the next few years. The lot fell to England to have the first president of the world's association in Rev. F. B. Meyer, of London; but to America was given the chairmanship of the executive committee, Dr. George W. Bailey, of Philadelphia.

The convention may almost be said to have begun when two specially chartered ships sailed from New York and Boston on April 27, carrying nearly 500 American delegates to Rome. Stops were made at the Azores, Gibraltar and Algiers, where missionary conferences were held and large sums of money raised for missionary work. In all nearly $20,000 was raised for missionary and Sunday school work as the two ships journeyed toward Rome.

A strange and impressive scene was presented at the opening meeting. The representatives of thirty-seven lands made a polyglot as on the day of Pentecost in Jerusalem, and as then all were with one accord in one place praying and praising God in divers tongues.

There were seen in the audience dark-skinned men of Egypt with their red fezes; native delegates from Palestine; a dark-faced college president from India; swarthy men and women from Spain, Bulgaria and other countries of Southern Europe; fair-haired delegates from Sweden; considerable delegations from France and Germany; over 300 delegates from Great Britain; as many as could crowd in the building from Italy, and about 500 from the United States and Canada.

The five days of the convention were crowded with addresses by famous Christian leaders and reports of Sunday school progress in all lands.

Among the speakers who stirred the convention by their messages were Rev. F. B. Meyer, Bishop J. C. Hartzell, M. Marion Lawrence, Rev. B. B. Tyler, D. D., and numerous others.

One man, Dr. W. A. Duncan, of New York state, journeyed over 6,000 miles to Rome and return, simply to address an Italian and a German conference on the "Home Department of the Sunday School," which he founded.

The most unique of all the meetings was the gathering in the ruins of the famous Coliseum at 4 p. m. on the last day of the convention. There, where Christians were thrown to the lions and suffered martyrdom in great numbers; there, in the fullness of time, assembled Christians representing a score or more of different peoples to praise the God whose worship the Caesars thought they were destroying forever.

The closing meeting of the convention was one long to be remembered. Numerous delegates gave three minute talks on the significance of the convention, and the closing address by Dr. B. B. Tyler was a deeply impressive one from the text, "Arise, let us go hence."

The next convention will be held in 1910, but the executive committee has not decided in what city it will convene.—The Advance.

We present a few more of the essentials to success in Sunday school work this week, and have promise of replies to our request from several whose opinions we value highly, but stress of circumstances has doubtless prevented the fulfillment of their promise.

1. An earnest pastor who takes an interest in the children.
2. A tactful and practical superintendent.
3. An adequate and efficient teaching force.
4. An attractive room with suitable appointments.
5. A good plan for work and the plan well worked; system and order.
6. Teacher training class.
7. Review work with blackboard illustrations.—Bro. S. M. Lesher.

1. Prompt and regular attendance.
2. Teachers make up—Heart and head, knowledge of God, Bible, human nature, deep convictions, sympathy, adaptation, cheerfulness, hopefulness, consecration.
3. Active interest of church membership. Why is the Sunday school not an adjunct to the church; it is the church at work, therefore this is absolutely indispensable.
4. Gaining and holding the confidence of the community.
5. Conscientious responsibility felt by the community at large; if the community is listless labor is largely in vain.—Rev. T. R. Gray.

1. A greater sympathy and not afraid to work in the school.
2. A superintendent who has life, tact and original ideas.
3. Teachers who are regular, educated and Christ-like.
4. Discipline and order in the house of God, cost what it may.
5. A good teachers' meeting held once a week for the study of the Sunday school lesson.—Chas. E. West.

1. Preparation upon the part of superintendent, officers and teachers, that the school may be really a teaching function.
2. Punctuality, work to make tardiness as unusual as in the day school; never delay time of opening, and unless unavoidable run over the closing time.
3. Appropriate music carefully selected by a chorister interested enough to make the music a part of the lesson, and enthusiastic enough to inspire the school to sing.
4. Constant variety of method with regard to opening and closing exercises, presentation of lesson reviews, use of maps, boards, pictures, etc.
5. An attractive room or rooms whether the large graded school with departments and class rooms, or the small school with a single room, the success depends much upon a bright, well ventilated, attractive room; above all things a clean one.—Mrs. F. Meriwether.

The Sunday school department of the convention held in this city the past week was grand; it has been well reported in our papers.—Geo. L. Shepard, County Superintendent.

MOTHER SHOT SON

Aimed at a Squirrel, but Stumbled and Fell.

Bedford, Ind., June 22.—The 8-year-old son of John Miller, living near Shawsick, was accidentally shot by his mother yesterday when she was sighting a squirrel which the boy and some other children had spied in a tree when at play in the woods.

In moving around the tree to get better aim, she stumbled and fell, the gun being discharged. A scream from the boy told the frantic mother that she had shot her little son.

The ball had passed into the back of his head, ranged around the head, passed the ear, and came out at the right cheek bone. The mother is prostrated over the accident, requiring the attendance of a physician and nurse.

Dry Fourth Down at Clinton.

Clinton is to be dry during July. It seems that the county court up in Henry county has been in the habit of granting saloon licenses any old time, and has just found out that the law only allows such action at the regular term. As the May term went by without petitions being presented, they must be postponed until August. All license expire in July, so the thirst parlors must close for four weeks.

S.S.S. A CERTAIN SAFE TREATMENT

Even if mercury and potash could cure Contagious Blood Poison the condition in which these strong minerals leave the system would make the "cure worse than the disease." But they cannot cure the vile disorder; they can only cover up the symptoms for awhile or mask the disease in the system, but as soon as the treatment is left off the hideous symptoms return. Mercury and potash eat out the delicate lining of the stomach and bowels, produce chronic dyspepsia by drying up the gastric juices, cause the teeth to decay, and often completely break down the constitution, and where they are used in large quantities, the bones become affected, while the disease for which one has so long taken this destructive treatment has not been cured. Contagious Blood Poison is a disease it will not do to trifle with. It is a vile, dangerous and destructive disorder. When the blood becomes infected with its virus the mouth and throat ulcerate, hair and eyebrows come out, glands in the neck and groin swell, copper-colored spots appear on the flesh, and in severe cases sores break out on the body, the finger nails drop off and the sufferer is diseased from head to foot. S. S. S. is the only known antidote for Contagious Blood Poison—the one remedy that is able to get to the root of the disease and force out every particle of the poison so that there are never any signs of its return. It is purely vegetable, made entirely from roots, herbs and barks of known curative value. Instead of leaving bad after-effects as some medicines do, S. S. S. tones up every part of the system and puts every part of the body in perfect health. It will also remove any lingering effects of former mineral treatment while eradicating the poison from the circulation. Special book on the home treatment of this disease and any medical advice desired furnished free to all who write. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA GA.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

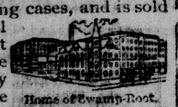

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A BATTLE IS "ON" TODAY

THE LIQUOR QUESTION IS THE ABSORBING TOPIC OVER AT PAULDING, OHIO.

BEEN "DRY" THERE FOR 2 YEARS

Claims That Storerooms Have Been Deserted, Business is Bad and the People Are Ready for a Change.

Paulding, Ohio, June 24.—To thirst or not to thirst, is that which must be decided in this city today.

For two years the town ostensibly has been "dry," but it mattered not to some, as evinced by prize packages brought home from surrounding cases.

Against this end are arrayed the combined forces of the churches here. The battle promises to be bitter.

Since the town was declared "dry," two years ago, several business places have been deserted and the stores still remain empty.

Admitting this, but declaring such a condition is better than that attending liquor traffic, religious organizations have been holding meetings almost daily to combat the saloonists.

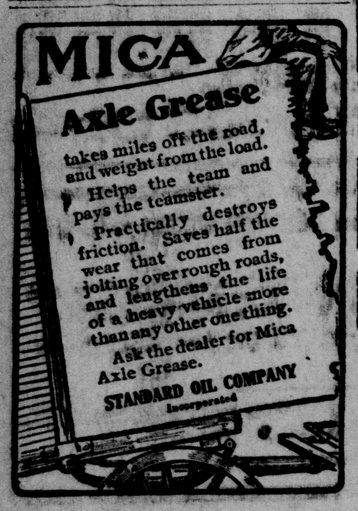

The closing addresses against the "wets" was delivered Sunday afternoon and night by F. L. Dustman, editor of the Toledo Blade, and Mayor Brennan, of Xenia. Among those who have spoken is Dr. Rutledge, the Cleveland divine.

Struck by Lightning.

Lightning struck a large tree near the home of J. B. Johnson, at Georgetown, during the severe storm Friday afternoon. The tree was shattered, the telephone wires leading into the house cut and several window panes smashed. Other damage in that neighborhood was principally trees being blown down.

J. S. Stephens and Sherman Williams, prosperous farmers of Maplewood neighborhood, were business visitors here Saturday. Mr. Stephens reported about a fishing expedition he and others enjoyed on Ed Imhauser's place on Flat Creek Thursday, when in about three hours they caught almost 300 pounds of fish.

East Liverpool Has 53 Saloons and Now All Must Close—Wellsville Votes on Proposition Tuesday.

East Liverpool, Ohio, June 24.—By a majority of 293 East Liverpool went "dry" at the Beal law election Saturday.

The contest was one of the most exciting the city has ever witnessed and the vote cast was one of the largest recorded here.

The campaign had been in progress a month, growing more exciting each day until the past week, when little else was given thought.

While the men were voting the women were holding prayer meetings, all-day services being in progress in different parts of the city.

The whole campaign for the "drys" was managed by the church people, and credit for its success rests with Rev. Dr. E. McMillan, of the First Presbyterian church; Rev. C. J. Taggart, of the First U. P. church; Rev. Dr. David Jones, of the Methodist Protestant; Rev. E. P. Wise, of the Christian church, and other local ministers.

The election was quiet, though a suppressed excitement was manifest throughout the day, so alert were the election officers that, it is claimed, some men honestly entitled to vote were excluded from the privilege. It is not unlikely that the election will be contested on this account.

A reward of $500 offered by the "drys" for the detection of frauds or attempts at frauds stimulated every amateur detective, as well as all interested in the election, to unusual exertions, and never was a contest in the city watched more carefully.

East LLiverpool is the largest Ohio city that ever went "dry." It has 53 saloons at the present time. Wellsville, four miles away, now a licensed town, votes on the same question tomorrow. The total vote here was 2,294 "dry" ad 2,001 "wet."

FATHER OF HER "STEPDAD"

Becomes the Husband of a Pretty Nebraska Miss.

Imperial, Neb., June 24.—Willis P. Morgan, a Chase county rancher, aged 72. has just been married, according to advices received here from Champion, to Miss Luella A. Charlton, aged 22, the pretty stepdaughter of his son, Marcus M. Morgan.

Morgan fell in love with and began to pay court to Miss Charlton several months ago, when she went to his home to visit his two daughters, young ladies of about her own age

Despite the great disparity in their ages and the fact that she is a singularly attractive girl and has had many young suitors, Miss Charlton encouraged Morgan's suit, and when, a few weeks ago he proposed marriage, she promptly accepted him.

GOT MEN HIGH UP?

Rumors of What the Denver Federal Grand Jury Did.

Denver, June 24.—Bench warrants based on the indictments returned by the federal grand jury yesterday will be issued today, it was authoritatively stated, and until they are issued no names of the persons indicted will be made public.

It is hinted in reliable quarters that the indicted persons include men of high business standing in Colorado and Wyoming, and also in Milwaukee and St. Louis.

Although the grand jury has practically concluded its present sitting, the work of the immense secret service force now making headquarters in this city will continue indefinitely.

TRAINS MEET HEAD ON

Four Pasengers Are Dead and Eight Badly Injured.

Rochester, N. Y., June 24.—Four persons are known to have been killed, three more are thought to be dead and eight were badly injured in a wreck last night one mile east of Pittsford, on the Auburn branch of the New York Central.

The train met a freight, head-on.

UTILIZING THE BONES.

Surprising That This Valuable Food Material Is Allowed to Waste.

It is a surprise to me that the bones produced on the farm and coming from the table of the farmer are not more generally utilized in the feeding of poultry, says a writer in Farmers' Review. I bought a good bone cutter several years ago and found that it worked to perfection. I had heard about it being hard work to cut or grind bones, but I think that must be the case only with the old machines that are now out of date. Ways have been found of making the work easy, the newer machines being so adjusted that the power required is comparatively small.

I found that I had at hand a big supply of all kinds of bones. From the butcher shop I got fresh bones with the meat hanging to them. When the bones were ground they presented an appearance of being largely ground meat. The fowls ate them with avidity and they certainly had a stimulating effect.

I was able to utilize all the bones that came from our own dining table, and that was a large amount. These bones had always been thrown away before that. The bones contain not only lime, but they also contain some phosphorus and some nitrogen. They are a good food for fowls, whose gizzards are made for the utilizing of such materials.

Of course the droppings of the hens so fed are richer than are the droppings of hens that have no ground bone. The difference is largely in the amount of phosphorus. I wonder that more farmers do not have machines for preparing bones for fowls.

VENTILATION FOR HIVE.

The Advantage of More Than One Entrance to Hive.

Dr. Miller says, in referring to the advantage of having more than one entrance to a hive during the height of the honey-flow: "You can not make me believe it is not easier for the bees to have one hole for the air to go out and another for it to come in than to make the air go both ways in the same hole." This is something for the practical bee-keeper of to-day to think over very carefully, says Gleanings in Bee Culture. Too much ventilation sometimes certainly is bad, but is there not somewhere a golden mean by which we can relieve the bees of a great load of work? Or, to put it another way, is it necessary to keep a large force of workers at home fanning during the heat of the day if we can by some mechanical means reduce the temperature of the hive, allowing this force to go to the fields? This question will hinge somewhat on whether comb or extracted honey is produced.

the small end down; if three months old it will stand on the small end, and if older it will float with large end out of water more or less, according to age.

Plymouth Rocks.

There are now three kinds of Plymouth Rocks—the Barred Plymouth Rocks, White Plymouth Rocks and Buff Plymouth Rocks. The two latter are new strains that have been but recently produced. The most popular is still the Barred Plymouth Rocks, which has been bred by the farmers since the first appearance of the breed. The Barred Plymouth Rock bids fair to hold its own against all new subvarieties that may appear. In fact, it would be hard to find why the White and Buff birds are superior to the others. It is possible that their color pleases some.

Looking After Sitting Hens.

If the sitting hen can have a little pen outside the nest, where she can get off, stretch, eat and drink when she desires, it will not be necessary to fasten her on the nest and the labor of letting her off to eat at certain intervals will be avoided. Occasionally, however, a hen will not leave the nest often enough to obtain sufficient food unless taken off and all of that kind must be attended to regularly.

Watch Lice on Brood Hens.

With hens brooding the young, the grower should bear in mind that it is an easy matter for the lice to become very numerous before their presence can be told. They should be examined at least once each week and the remedies applied with the first appearance

SWEPT BY A TORNADO

MEDICINE LODGE, KANSAS, HAS THREE OF THEM IN ONE DAY.

SEVEN PERSONS WERE INJURED

One Known to Be Missing—Much Damage to Growing Crops Was Inflicted and Many Buildings Were Demolished.

Medicine Lodge, Kas., June 24.—Three distinct tornadoes struck this city late last night, destroying twenty-five houses in the northern part of the town. Seven persons were injured in Medicine Lodge and one is missing, but so far as is known no lives were lost. Several persons are reported injured and much damage was done to property in the path of the tordadoes in the surrounding country.

Mrs. Bell, an aged woman, is missing, and the injured in Medicine Lodge are J. R. McCoy, arm broken; Mrs. J. R. McCoy, ribs broken and skull injured; Mrs. Mary Griffith, hurt internally; Mrs. Morris, arm broken; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Saury, both badly bruised.

The first of the tornadoes struck the town shortly after 7 o'clock Sunday evening, destroying all telephone and telegraph wires, and causing other damage. Later two other storms came, completing the damage done by the first one. The third storm appeared shortly before midnight. All three came from the northwest and were accompanied by a terrific fall of rain and hail, which did much damage to the growing crops.

The greater part of the damage sustained in Medicine Lodge was in the northern part of town. The residence of United States Senator Long was slightly damaged, but the Long family escaped injury. The residence of Ralph Faxton, Senator Long's secretary, was entirely demolished, but the family escaped.

Other property destroyed includes the Gypsum mill and Santa Fe round house. Mrs. Linle is the most seriously injured. While seeking shelter she was blown into a tree from which she was rescued in an unconscious condition.

The Ceremony Performed by the Rev. E. J. Hunt.

Last Wednesday evening Rev. R. A. Hunt, pastor of the M. E. church, was united in marriage to Miss Winifred Edwards, of Lebo, Kas., says the Tipton Mail of June 20. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hunt, of Sedalia.

The groom is the pastor of the M. E. church. He is a very talented young man and is becoming prominent among the preachers of Central Missouri.

The bride is one of Lebo's most popular society women and church workers.

Rev. and Mrs. Hunt will be at home in Tipton about the last of next week.

We join the friends of the young people in wishing them a happy voyage on life's sea.

FIRST DEGREE MURDER

Charge Placed Against Ex-City Marshal of Galena, Kas.

Galena, Kas., June 24.—Ex City Marshal Charles Garner, recently arrested here for alleged complicity in the robbery and murder of L. C. Frick, a second-hand dealer, has been bound over to the district court in the sum of $10,000 on a charge of murder in the first degree.

N. C. Malone, another second-hand dealer, turned state's evidence and accused Garner, R. D. Booth and Ed Jones of committing the crime.

Jones died in the county jail of blood poisoning shortly after the hour set for his preliminary.

"I have been subject to sciatic rheumatism for years," says E. H. Waldron, of Wilton, Junction, Iowa. "My joints were stiff and gave me much pain and discomfort. My joints would crack when I straightened up. I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm and have been thoroughly cured. Have not had a pain or ache from the old trouble for many months. It is certainly a most wonderful liniment." For sale by W. E. Bard Drug Co

HUMUS HOLDS WATER.

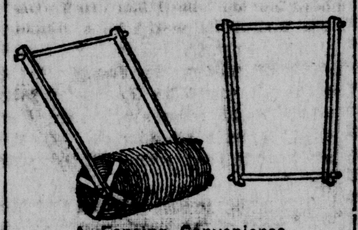

A Valuable Element to Have in the Soil.

Decayed and decaying vegetable matter in the soil greatly increases the power of the soil to hold water. This is a fact of such large consequence that our agricultural scientists are paying more and more attention to it. One of the professors at Cornell university undertook to prove the great value of humus as a holder of water. He took two samples of soil from places about 20 feet apart. Everything about the location suggested that the two samples should show the same water content. But in one of the locations three successive crops of crimson clover had been turned under. The sample of soil from the place where no clover had been turned under analyzed 8.75 per cent. moisture; 1.91 per cent. humus and .12 nitrogen. The sample from the soil where the crimson clover had been turned under analyzed 15 per cent. moisture; 2.94 per cent. humus, and .21 nitrogen. This was a gain of 6.25 in moisture content; 1.03 humus content and .09 nitrogen content. There are very few people that stop to consider what this means on an acre of land. Taking the soil to a depth of six inches it means that this 6.25 per cent. increased moisture would equal 93,750 pounds or 46⅞ tons of waer. This amount of additional water would mean a great deal in a dry season. The turning under of an occasional crop of some green stuff means much, if it does nothing else than hold up the water content of the soil. It would take a great deal of sprinkling from a hose to put on 46 tons of water. Many of the soils that are now unproductive would, says Farmers' Review, be productive if they had enough water to carry them over the dry spell of summer. But by bad farming methods the humus has been exhausted and this has reduced the capacity of the soil for carrying crops through the dry season. The crops start well in the spring and seem to be doing nicely till the summer dry spell begins, when they at once droop as if some insect were assailing them. The trouble really is that the moisture supply was so light that it was soon exhausted and the soil could not supply more. This loss of water holding capacity has really been at the bottom of numerous crop failures in different localities. The humus supply of the soil can be kept up by growing deep rooting crops and by fertilizing them so heavily that they will develop great masses of roots. The plowing under of crops grown for the purpose, of course adds much humus to the soil, but most farmers do not like to lose the use of the land for even a season. This may be avoided by growing some leguminous crop in the cornfield late in the season and turning under the soil late in the fall or early in the spring. Rotations of crops help to keep up the humus supply, if there is a grass sod to turn under occasionally.

A BARBED WIRE REEL.

Handy Device Which Makes Handling of Wire Easy.

A very handy device to be used in handling barbed wire is shown herewith. Take two strips 2½ inches wide and 30 inches long and bore holes through each end. Through these, says Farm and Home, put old broom handles or any round stick, and fasten by driving a nail through the square timber. Leave one loose so that it can be put through the reel of wire as shown in the cut. The spool of wire may be unrolled by drawing it over the ground with this simple device.

HINTS FOR FARMERS.

Don't let any clouds get between you and the sunshine.

The farmer's road to success is paved with good resolutions.

Lie down and stretch out a few minutes every day. Shut your eyes and let the world go. It will do you more good than anything else.

Trying to be a successful farmer without industry, economy and modern methods, is in the same line with perpetual motion—has not been solved.

Sip the cold water you drink these days. A lot of cold water gulped down will be apt to bring on colic. You haven't the time nor strength to waste in that way.

When heavy winds come up, shut the doors at the barn and at the house. If you don't, you may find your roof away over in the back lot, and that would not be much fun. More than one building has been unroofed by leaving the doors open in a storm.—Farm Journal.

The Farmer's Living.

The farmer, with a little labor, can live like a prince, yet ofttimes he works the hardest and lives the poorest of any because he will not accept the goods provided. More properly speaking, will not raise them. What is better than a luscious melon, yet how many never raise one, but are content to buy one now and then?

HAYWOOD'S SIDE BEGINS

CLARENCE DARROW, OF DEFENDANT'S COUNSEL, MAKES THE OPENING STATEMENT.

BLAME MURDERS TO PINKERTONS

Says That Detectives Were Hired to Commit All Kinds of Crimes and Outrages and Lay Them to Federation.

Boise, Idaho, June 24.—When the Haywood trial opened this morning Clarence Darrow, of counsel for the defense, made the opening statement. He said:

"The defendant is charged nominally with the murder of former Governor Frank Steunenberg, but the state has told you that the case rests upon a giant conspiracy, of which the defendant among others is a part.

"The state's attorney has told you that the murder of Steunenberg was but an incident of that campaign. They have told you that the Western Federation of Miners was an organization to commit murder, to control politics, to hire lawyers and other criminal things."

Continuing, he said: "As soon as the Western Federation of Miners was born the mine owners went about to destroy it, and as a chief means of destruction they hired the Pinkerton Detective agency, with one McParland at its head. We will show you that this agency hired detectives and placed them in positions of responsibility as presdents and secretaries of local unions; that these hired men constantly advised the miners to strike, and that when a strike was on counseled violence, dynamite and murder. They did it at Cripple Creek; they did it at Telluride, and at many other places."

He declared that every illegitimate child born west of the Mississippi river had been hurried to Denver and laid at the door of the Western Federation of Miners. He was still talking when a recess was taken.

"CHINKS" MUST MAKE GOOD

Secretary Straus Is Reorganizing the Inspection Service.

Washington, June 24—Secretary Straus of the commerce department is making a record as a reorganizer.

He is now shaking up the Chinese inspection service in a manner that is bound to bring results as favorable as those which attended the recent reorganization of the steamboat inspection service.

The Score was 5 to 4.

In a rather uninteresting game of baseball at Windsor, Sunday afternoon, the Missouri Pacific shops' team defeated the Windsor team by a score of 5 to 4.

THE UNKNOWN DEAD MAN

Almost Certain That He Resided at Mattoon, Ill.

(Monday's Daily.)

It was learned almost definitely today that the unknown young man killed west of Dresden Saturday by Missouri Pacific train No. 6 was from Mattoon, Ill. Mr. Will Clifford, of the firm of Clifford Bros., said to the Democrat-Sentinel Sunday:

"I have just read in your paper of the killing near Dresden. That man was in our place early Saturday morning. I noticed him particularly because of his red hair and eyes of unusual blue.

"He told me that he was from Mattoon, Ill., and that he and the man with him, who was from Louisville, Ky., were on their way to the Kansas harvest fields. Each man had money, but of course I do not know how much."

The dead man was buried at Dresden by the county, but what became of the Louisville man who was with him at Clifford Bros.' is not known.

LOVING TRIAL BEGINS

Another Case Where the "Unwritten Law" Will Be Invoked.

Houston, Va., June 24.—The trial of former Judge W. G. Loving, of Newton county, for the murder of Theodore Estes, son of Sheriff M. K. Estes, began here today.

Judge Loving shot and killed Estes the day following a buggy ride which the latter had taken with his 19-year-old daughter.

The plea of the defense will be the unwritten law. Judge Loving is backed by Thomas F. Ryan, of whose West Virginia estate he is the overseer. The trial promises some interesting developments.

FIVE MORE VICTIMS

Rochester, N. Y., June 24.—Five persons were killed and a score more or less seriously injured last night on the New York Central railroad near Pittsford, when a passenger train crashed into a freight on a sharp curve. The smoking car was telescoped and three of the fifteen passengers instantly killed.

All of the injured, with the exception of Engineer Lyons, are expected to recover.

WED SABBATH EVENING

MR. JAMES ARENSON AND MISS ROSA KAHN BY RABBI GORDON.

SEVENTY-FIVE GUESTS ATTENDED

Presents Were Numerous and Beautiful—Couple Began Housekeeping Today at 108 South Ohio Street.

(From Monday's Daily.)

A quiet but impressive wedding ceremony was performed at 108 East Jefferson street at 8 o'clock last night, when Rabbi Gordon, of Lincoln, Neb., united in marriage James Arenson, brother of I. Arenson, of this city, and Miss Rosa Kahn, sister of Mrs. I. Arenson.

About one hundred and thirty five invitations were extended to relatives and friends here and elsewhere, and about seventy-five guests attended, among them being the groom's mother and sister, both of Lincoln, Neb.

The house was artistically decorated for the occasion, and after the ceremony a sumptuous supper was served to the bridal couple and relatives.

Over twenty telegrams of congratulation from relatives and friends were received by the bridal party from Albuquerque, N. M., Lincoln and Omaha, Neb., and Kansas City.

The presents included cut glass, silverware, linen and many other beautiful and useful articles.

The music for the occasion was furnished by a colored glee club.

Mr. and Mrs. Arenson went to housekeeping today at 108 South Ohio street, and are receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

BABY REUNITES PARENTS

J. F. McLaughlin and Wife of St. Louis Reconciled.

Warsaw, Ind., June 22.—The 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McLaughlin, of St. Louis, yesterday brought about a reconciliation of the couple, following a separation of two years during which time a divorce suit has been pending in the local court. The petition was dismissed by the wife, who accompanied her husband to St. Louis.

The principal ground for the petition was that the husband misrepresented his religious beliefs at the time of his engagement, and that later he attempted to change his wife's views on the subject. Mrs. McLaughlin is an accomplished musician.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

A HAPPY JUNE WEDDING

NUPTIALS OF MISS ADA STANLEY AND MR. HAROLD HOLMES INGE CELEBRATED

AT CALVARY CHURCH LAST NIGHT

Ceremony Performed By Bishop Atwill, of Kansas City, Assisted By Rector of Church—Couple Will Tour the East.

(Sunday's Daily.)

The marriage of Miss Ada Stanley, of this city, to Mr. Harold Holmes Inge, of Little Rock, Ark., took place at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night at Calvary Episcopal church, Rt. Rev. E. R. Atwill, bishop of Kansas City, officiating, assisted by Rev. Douglass Atwill, rector of the church.

The ceremony was witnessed by so many friends of the young couple that every seat in the church was occupied.

After the services, which were very beautiful, a reception to the relatives, neighbors and intimate friends was given at the home of the bride's parents, 711 East Broadway, and at 12:20 this morning the bridal couple left over the Missouri Pacific for an extensive journey through the east.

At the depot a large number of friends gathered to see them safely aboard the train and to extend last words of sincere congratulations.

Referring to the marriage, Rosa Pearle's Paper of Saturday afternoon had the following:

The marriage of Miss Ada Stanley, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Dumond Stanley, to Mr. Harold Holmes Inge, of Little Rock, Ark., will take place at half after eight o'clock this evening, at Calvary Episcopal church, in the presence of a large congregation, composed of most of the prominent people of the city—all either being friends of the bride's family, or that of the groom, he, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Inge, having formerly resided here. The church decorations will be green and white, hundreds of field daisies being used and these intermingled with ferns and palms in a way which will beautifully harmonize with the pretty church, which is in a scheme of Flemish oak and green, especially after the many electrics are lighted and the great beautiful cross of these shines down, like a benison, from above the altar. The music will be furnished by the vested choir and a special choir, composed of the following well-known singers: Mesdames E. F. Yancey, W. F. Keyser, Harvey MacGugin, W. D. Steele, C. C. Kelly; Messrs. G. C. Hoffman, Turner Wilson, Joe Chasnoff, C. C. Lawson, Dr. Roy Hubbard. The choir will be stationed in the church balcony and will sing the wedding march from Lohengrin, with Miss Early as the organist. The ceremony will be performed by the Rt. Rev. Bishop E. R. Atwill, of the Kansas City diocese, in accordance with the beautiful ritual of the Episcopal church. The maid of honor will be Miss Marguerite McDaniel; the bridesmaids, Miss Louise Maltby, of Kansas City, and Miss Nelle White, of Weatherford, Texas, who was the bride's classmate at Vassar. The best man will be Mr. Roy Dalby; the ushers, Dr. Stanley, of Kansas City, Messrs. Pitkin Stanley, Gentry Estill and Dr. Philip Lamm.

The Lindsay gown worn by the bride will be a beautiful setting to her girlish loveliness and is of white messaline in a fitted empire. The front is panelled with point lace—a family heirloom—the guimpe of princesse lace and the waist effect finished with bands of cluney lace, from either side of which falls three silken tassels. The elbow sleeves are of the princesse lace, finished with bands of the point lace. The veil is of tulle and will follow the long graceful sweep of the empire train to the bottom. The train is finished with a shirred cording. The bride will carry a shower of bride's roses.

Miss McDaniel will wear white plumetin, in an empire design, the waist effect and sleeves being elaborately finished in medallions, insets and bands of cluney lace and white ribbon, the skirt finished with the lace.

Miss White will be in an all-over English val lace princesse gown over white silk, with girdle bands of white ribbon, and a finish of Mechlin lace.

Miss Maltby will wear a white silk mulle fitted empire, with a finish of tiny tucks, princesse and cluney lace.

The maids will all wear half length veils and will carry sheafs of roses, sweet peas and softly harmonized blooms from the quite famous Stanley flower garden. For the recessional, the choir will give the wedding song from the "Rose Maiden"—"The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden." After the ceremony, the bridal party, including the relatives, ushers, musicians and neighborhood, and intimate friends, nearly one hundred in all, will go to the handsome residence of the Stanleys, where a reception will be held. June blooms of many varieties will be used in the decorations and in their color effect they will exceed any floral decorations seen here. The dining room will be of special beauty, a wedding floral piece for the table having been ordered from a Kansas City florist by Mrs. B. F. Christopher, the bride's aunt, of Kansas City. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley will welcome the guests and will have with them Mr. and Mrs. George Trader, the latter the bride's sister; Mrs. M. M. Stanley, her greatly beloved paternal grandmother; Mrs. Christopher, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Powell and the immediate bridal party. During the evening sandwiches, coffee, ice cream and cake will be served.

Mrs. Stanley will be gowned in gray chiffon voile, empire fitted, the waist effect formed entirely of duchesse point, the elbow sleeves of white tucked chiffon, finished with the lace. Mrs. Trader will wear white net, over white silk, the elaborate trimmings being of honiton lace. Mrs. Stanley, sr., black silk voile, over black silk, with touches of rose point.

The presents are of great beauty—many of them being very costly as well—and came from all points of the compass. From the family of the bride the following may be mentioned: Elegant solid silver coffee and tea set combined, made to special order, Dr. Theodore Stanley; cases of tea and table spoons, forks and knives, the bride's parents; solid silver pitcher, Mrs. M. M. Stanley; Mrs. Christopher, exquisite white coral necklace—with her husband, Mrs. Christopher also gave a very beautiful silver after dinner coffee set; Mr. Pitkin Stanley, check for substantial amount; Mrs. Trader, silver ladle and serving fork; Mr. James Christopher, of the Columbia University, New York, perforated brass electric shade; Mrs. Caroline Abbott Stanley—the author of "Order No. 11," and son, of Washington, D. C., silver crumb tray and brush. The best man and ushers, with the exception of Pitkin Stanley and Dr. Stanley, gave a beautiful electrolier; Miss White gave a gold and silver toilet set; Miss McDaniel, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C McDaniel, and aunt, Mrs. Kelk, gave silver bouillon spoons. The groom's parents gave a cut glass water set; Judge Wilkerson gave a large and beautiful cut glass pitcher; Mr. and Mrs. Powell gave silver and gold orange spoons; Mr. William Powell, jr., and Master David Powell gave gold individual salt cellars with spoons; the bride's Sunday school class gave silver spoons. Indeed, the array of presents, as was said, is magnificent, and number cut glass, silver, art, and table linens, etc. The bride and groom will go east for their bridal journey—the bride gowned in a tailored blue panama, with tan hat trimmed in blue—and after an absence of two weeks they will go to Little Rock, Ark., where the groom is the popular rate clerk for the Iron Mountain railway. They will not go to housekeeping at present, but later will fit up a beautiful home. Many beautiful entertainments were given in honor of Miss Stanley following the announcement musicale given by Mrs. Powell. Among entertainers were: Miss Latimer, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Scruton, Dr. and Mrs. Yancey, Mrs. Keyser, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Ilgenfritz, Mrs. Horace Knight and Miss Josephine Knight, Miss McDaniel, Mrs. W. J. Crouch, Miss Doyle and Mrs. Orville Barnett.

"I HAVE TAKEN 2 LIVES"

SO SAID NOTE FOUND ON BODY OF THE MAN BURIED HERE THIS MORNING.

SUICIDE OF LOUIS M. WALBOURN

Young Man Disappeared After Night of Jollification With Acquaintances in St. Louis Last Week One Day.

(From Monday's Daily.)

The remains of Louis G. Walbourn, a young man born and reared in Sedalia and who left this city fifteen years ago for St. Louis, where he had resided since, who threw himself in front of a switch engine at Mexico, Mo., last Friday, arrived here on Katy train No. 3 Sunday morning.

The body was taken to the home of Mrs. Carter May, 414 West Pettis street, where, at 10 a. m. today, Rev. Thomas Watkins, of Calhoun, Mo., who is filling the pastorate of the Broadway Presbyterian church for Rev. D. M. Claggett, conducted funeral services in the presence of relatives and friends.

Interment was in the city cemetery, the following serving as pallbearers: Tom and Sam Atkinson, John Koenecke, James and Will Greenstreet and John Fall.

Regarding the dead man the St. Louis Republic this morning has the following:

An unsigned note taken from the body of Louis Walbourn, who lived at No. 4221 Olive street, and who was killed Friday night by a train at Mexico, Mo., has aroused the police to active interest in his history.

"I have taken two lives, therefore I can afford to give one," the note read.

Incidents connected with his death indicate that he threw himself under the wheels of a moving switch engine.

The suicide theory is scouted by friends who had gathered at the home of his widowed mother and sister yesterday, but no explanation could be offered for the contents of the note. He had been steadily employed in St. Louis for twelve years and never had been in trouble.

Half an hour after the mother received a telegram yesterday announcing the death of her son, the postman handed her a card from him mailed at Mexico, Mo.

"I am on my way to Kansas. Will wrote you a long letter from there," the postcard ran.

Louis Walbourn was 29 years of age and an art decorator. He had been employed by the Absorene Manufacturing company, No. 2410 North Tenth street, for twelve years, except at intervals when he would leave the city.

He received his wages last Monday evening and went to drinking with friends. Monday night late he left the city without leaving word of his departure at his home. No news had been received from him until yesterday morning, when a message briefly telling of his death by a moving train was received by the mother.

The mother was prostrated last night. The contents of the note found on the body of the brother were about to be recited to the sister, when she begged that nothing more of the tragic affair be told.

"I don't want to know anything," she pleaded.

In explanation of the note a friend stated that Louis could only have had reference to his mother and sister. He had no police record and was known to be of a quiet disposition, given to drink at intervals.

Before leaving St. Louis, Walbourn had talked among his friends about going to Kansas. That this was his intended destination is evidenced by the postcard to the mother. He had been drinking during the week, and at Mexico, Mo., applied to a physician for medicine. The identification of the body was made possible by the physician's prescription which was in Walbourne's pocket, together with his unsigned note.

Mrs. Walbourn and her daughter will depart this morning for Sedalia, Mo. Orders have been wired that the body be sent there for interment.

The Globe-Democrat of Sunday had the following:

The body of Louis G. Walbourn, the St. Louis man who committed suicide in Mexico, Mo., by throwing himself under a moving switch engine Friday night, will be taken to Sedalia today, where services will be held and burial take place. For some time the body was unidentified. Walbourn was 29 years old and unmarried. He had been in the decorating business for twelve years and had left his home at 4221A Olive street, this city, about a week ago on a business trip to Mexico.

The members of the family will leave this morning for Sedalia, the mother, Mrs. Ella F. Walbourn, going by way of Mexico. There are two brothers and a sister who survive the dead man—Charles H. Walbourn, a conductor on the Frisco, living at the Olive street address; James Walbourn, who does not live in St. Louis, and Daisy Walbourn, residing with her mother and brother at 4221A Olive street.

"DRY" ST. LOUIS SUNDAY

The County Grand Jury's "Lid" Edict Was Rigidly Enforced.

St. Louis, June 24.—The "lid" edict of the St. Louis county grand jury went into effect yesterday. The indicting of several saloonkeepers, coupled with the action of the liquor dealers in demanding that the excise laws be enforced, put the saloonkeepers in a perplexing situation, but "the" lid so far as is known was on tight everywhere in the county.

In East St. Louis Mayor Cook enforced "the lid" against driving ice wagons on Sunday, but left the lid off in the matter of saloons. Side doors and back doors were open as usual.

Governor Folk had threatened to bring proceedings against the St. Louis county attorneys if they did not enforce the lid, so the grand jury became active and everything was closed.

FIRST JULY 4 VICTIM

A Little Girl Will Die of a Cannon Cracker's Explosion.

St. Louis, June 24.—Hattie Clark, 5 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Clark, of this place, is the first ante-Fourth victim reported. So serious are her injuries, caused by the explosion of a giant firecracker, that her doctor says she will die.

From a boy, the little girl yesterday afternoon got a "cannon" cracker, one of the dynamite loaded variety forbidden by the police. The little girl had the big fire cracker in her right hand and laughed as the sparks fell from the fuse. Suddenly it exploded.

The doctor found that the little girl's left eye had been destroyed, and her face filled with powder driven deep into the skin, and the thumb and three fingers of the right hand blown off. The shock to her brain was so great that she cannot recover.

"The Store That Saves You Money"

OF FAKE WHALE, WITH MOUTH OF STRAW AND A BOGUS WOODEN TAIL.

1,500 BONES FOR "PIG IN A POKE"

Patiently Listened to Lore Concerning Wooden Tail, but Couldn't All Agree in Regard to Flim-Flam Whale.

The tale of a whale that was made of wood, while its mouth was stuffed with straw, formed a tale so funny the judges roared, writes a New York correspondent.

"That's bully! Haw-haw! Haw-haw!" They patiently listened to the lore correct concerning the wooden tail, but discovered they couldn't all agree in regard to the flim-flam whale.

"Bill" Muhlig, his name, of engineer fame, sought wealth by buying a whale, and hundreds of hard earned "plunks" he paid to close the coveted sale. The mammal, he says, was a frightful fake, constructed in manner rude; with a canvas skin that let rain in, and its caudal part was wood.

So, replete with lore, Muhlig sought the law to regain the sum he paid, as he'd parted with 1,500 bones for a "pig in a poke," he said.

He said he was lured to a tavern bad, where, over a bottle of fizz, he learned of the really marvelous whale, which afterwards became his. He was told, he said, that the wondrous whale was deemed remarkably fine; that 'twas caught in Hamburg, right from the sea, where they'd pickled the beast in wine.

He heard from Rebhan and Brann, he said, the Munchausen tale, in chunks, and he handed over with a joyous heart his 1,500 plunks.

So Muhlig then took the whale on the road to exhibit it through the land; but the very first night he opened his show the tale tumbled into his hand. A jolly jack tar then playfully poked the leviathan with his paw; he gave it a jab in the ribs and found its carcass was stuffed with straw.

There was a big row in Allentown when the public learned of the smash, for Muhlig so bold, with his mammal cold, had garnered near $3,000 cash. They had hustled him out with his "phoney" whale, and he hiked east over the land till he set up his tent by the sad sea waves on Atlantic City's strand.

An autopsy held on the wondrous whale revealed it was stuffed with sand; then Muhlig came back with a saddened soul and the whale's tail in his hand.

Muhlig then sought redress in the courts, and "Exhibit A" was the tail; the judges were wise, but they could not agree in decision over the whale.

So he took an appeal to justices three, Seabury, Platzek, Gildersleeve, and they're still debating, what to do with cruelty they'd scarce believe, but Muhlig was patience, despite delay, though his fake fish suit may fail; yet he knows how Jonah, the scapegoat, felt when he saw the inside of a whale.

WED ON KATY TRAIN

Which Was Speeding 50 Miles an Hour in the Territory.

Muskogee, I. T., June 22.—While the Katy fast mail was speeding at the rate of fifty miles an hour, and after several unsuccessful attempts at matrimony, Miss Esther Doyle, a prominent young society woman of South McAlester, well known in Dallas, San Antonio, Texas, and Muskogee, was married to Dee L. Edwards, a telegraph operator.

A former attempt to steal the girl away from her home was frustrated when relatives drove the young man away and took the girl home.

This time the license was secured in this city and the couple met in Crowder City, I. T., twenty miles south of here, and boarded the fast mail. The bride said that her relatives opposed her marriage because they desired her to marry a millionaire.

HAYWOOD MURDER TRIAL

ALL EVIDENCE IS DISCREDITED

The Attorneys for the Miners' Head Hold Orchard's Story Unsupported—One Guilty and All Guilty.

Boise City, Idaho, June 22.—The opening statement for the defense in the trial of Haywood for the Steunenberg murder will be made by Darrow Monday morning. The prosecution rested its case in chief Friday morning, and then Richardson and Darrow made good, but losing, talks for their motion to instruct the jury to acquit.

It was a perfunctory motion, that is always made at this stage of murder trials, and it was a foregone conclusion that it would be overruled, but they argued for it so earnestly as if they really hoped to be able to convince the judge that the state had failed to make out a case worth sending to a jury.

They consumed the best part of three hours in argument, and Senator Borah spoke for twenty minutes in opposition. Richardson and Darrow covered very much the same ground, the Denver man going into the evidence that had been introduced by the prosecution very fully, taking up the testimony of nearly all the witnesses, one by one.

Wide Difference of View.

The first two or three sentences of Senator Borah's reply demonstrated that there was a radical difference of view betwen the two sides in their consideration of the evidence.

Richardson entirely ignored the allegations of a conspiracy, which Borah declared to be the principal of the state's case. Richardson quoted from the Idaho statutes to show that if the defendant is to be convicted there must be testimony directly connecting him with the crime charged, which was independent of an accomplice. His motion to instruct the jury to acquit contained seven counts, each of them based upon the contention that no evidence had been adduced by the prosecution which in any way connected Haywood with the Steunenberg murder independent of Harry Orchard's story. "There is no single piece of testimony," he said "which taken alone, tends to establish any connection between Haywood and Orchard in the commission of this offense."

No Corroboration, He Contends.

That was always the burden of his argument. As he finished his examination of the testimony of each witness he argued that there was nothing in it to furnish the kind of corroboration of the accomplice contemplated by the statute. The phraseology varied, but the conclusion was always the same.

"There is no tendency to connect Haywood with any of these until you add the testimony of Orchard. It does not in the remotest degree tend to implicate Haywood in Orchard's crimes.

"How does Haywood become connected with this? By the mouth of Harry Orchard."

These are samples of his deductions from the testimony of the witnesses other than Orchard. The Orchard story, of course, was excluded entirely as the evidence of an accomplice, and his general conclusion was that there was absolutely nothing to support it in any material point.

Registered Letter of No Effect.

The registered letter that J. Wolf sent from Pettibone's address to Dempsey-Orchard in San Francisco had not the least bearing on the case, even if all the state's contention as to the fact about it were true. The letters of recommendation to Hogan-Orchard just before the Canon City trip, were similarly of no force or effect, not even a circumstance within the meaning of the law; the Postal telegraph money transfers did not even implicate Pettibone, let alone Haywood, and so on.

"It is the flattest case outside the testimony of Orchard that ever was placed before a court," he said, in conclusion.

"I have shown your honor what the law in the case is, if you did not already know it. To leave the case to the jury is to leave it to be tried by passion and prejudice when the cold and settled rule of law rightly applied, ought to settle it here and now'.'

Conspiracy Feature Ignored.

Mr. Richardson spoke with emphasis and vigor and made a forceful argument. But it was also applied to a theory of the case different from that on which the prosecution has proceeded, and on which the great bulk of the testimony has been introduced. Richardson argued as if the case were simply that of the murder of Gov. Steunenberg alone and ignored entirely the conspiracy feature of the charge. From that point of view it was a strong argument. But as far as this case is concerned, it was like shooting south to hit a man going west.

"We have no fault to find with the law cited in this case," began Borah in his reply," but with the logic used in interpreting it." He went on to cite some authorities on the matter of making such instructions as the defense asked for, and then took up the question of conspiracy. He cited the Idaho statutes on that subject and showed that under them the act of one conspirator was the act of all and the knowledge of one the knowl- of all.

Borah's View of It.

"If we show a conspiracy," he said, "it is not necessary to show that this defendant went to Caldwell and committed the crime there. It is only necessary to show that some member of the conspiracy committed it there, although every other member may have been in Europe at that time."

There are two ways of showing a conspiracy, the senator declared, one by the testimony of a conspirator, which is the usual method, and the other by combination of circumstances, a number of acts all tending to one general purpose or object. This conspiracy had been shown by both methods, the testimony of Orchard and the large number of confirmatory circumstances which had been shown by the testimony independent of his story. We found these circumstances in the articles of the Miners' Magazine; in the proof that Simpkins, under an assumed name, was with Orchard at Caldwell before the murder; in the letters of recommendation of Hogan-Orchard; in the drafts to Simpkins from Haywood; in the money transfers from Pettibone to Orchard; in the San Francisco testimony about the attempt on Bradley; in Vaughn's testimony about the Canon City trip with Orchard; in the Haywood letter to the Cripple Creek wife of Orchard, and in various other circumstances.

Every Path Leads to Denver.

"Take whatever path you will, follow whatever trail you like," exclaimed Borah in closing; "from the time that Harry Orchard started out on his career of crime every path leads back to Denver."

Darrow started out to answer Borah, but before long was traveling very much the road Richardson had taken.

"It takes something besides feeling and besides prejudice to make a conspiracy to kill," he said, "and there has been nothing else in this case. There has been nothing except the words of a man testifying against three others, cooly as he ever proceeded on any of the crimes he told about, and testifying for a bigger reward than he ever worked for before. From the begining to the end there is nothing in this case but Orchard. After months, where every eye was open and every ear alert to see or hear every circumstance possible, they come here with nothing but Orchard."

To the Jury, Court Says.

Judge Wood was ready with his decision the moment Darrow took his seat. "The court is thoroughly satisfield that this case should be submitted to the jury," he said. "If I felt differently I should not hesitate to say so. Ordinarily the court would assign some reason for such a decision, but that would involve the examination of the testimony. If this defendant were the only one on trial that would be done, but there are three other defendants on the indictment, two of them now in jail and awaiting trial immediately on the conclusion of this case. For this reason no examination of the testimony here will be made. Motion is overruled."

WHITE BOY LEFT STAGE

Because Negro Girl Was Seated by Him in Opera House.

Portsmouth, Ohio, June 22.—Quite a sensation was created by the refusal of William Schaefer, son of a local saloon keeper, to take the place assigned to him beside Rhetta Haley, a colored girl, at the High school commencement exercises in the Grand opera house last night.

Superintendent Hudson, when appealed to, refused to change the seating. The girl remained on the stage, while Schaefer seated himself in the audience. His diploma will be mailed to him.

A similar occurrence was narrowly averted when the baccalaureate sermon was preached last Sunday evening, one of the girls volunteering to march with Miss Haley in order to spare one of the male graduates doing so.

THE CAUSE OF PROTEST

ALLEGED THAT A BUNTED BALL SHOULDER HIGH WAS INFIELD PLAY.

BROOKLYN TEAM WANTS THE GAME

Pat Flaherty, Who Was Umpiring, Called It a Base Hit—Jack Sheridan, Dean of Umpires, Has Ruled the Same Way.

The Boston National league team has a protested game on its hands, Brooklyn having filed the protest. Judging from reports of the game and the fact that President Pulliam has not allowed a protest in the four years he has been president, Brooklyn's chances of having that game replayed look pretty slim.

The trouble happened in the morning game of May 30 at Boston. Umpire Johnstone had been injured the preceding day by a collision with Pitcher Rucker and did not officiate on Memorial day. Accordingly each team picked a player from the opposing club. Tenney chose Stricklett, of the Trolley Dodgers, and Donovan picked Pat Flaherty, of the Doves. Flaherty was umpiring balls and strikes.

Pretty well along in the game when Boston already had Brooklyn beaten 2 to 0, there were runners on first and second and none out. The Boston batter tried to sacrifice, but bunted the ball close to the foul line and about shoulder high. Casey saw there wasn't any chance in the world to get it and let McIntyre, pitching for Brooklyn, make the try. He barely touched the ball with the ends of his fingers, knocking it foul. The batter was safe, of course, the bags filled, with none out.

Donovan ran up to Flaherty and asserted that the batter was out on an infield fly, saying that the bunt was a fly ball and the runners must be sent back to first and second. Flaherty ruled the other way—that it was a base hit for the batter.

On this play Manager Donovan has filed his protest.

Umpire Jack Sheridan, dean of the umpires in the big leagues, and who is regarded as one of the wisest in the business, has ruled the same way that Pat Flaherty did in that game.

About three years ago a play came up in Philadelphia between the White Stockings and Athletics in which Sheridan ruled this way and caused some arguments between the official and Connie Mack.

There were Chicago runners on first and second and none out. Monte Cross, playing short, was worrying the runner on second, when the batter bunted the ball just over the pitcher's head It fell safe about ten feet behind him. Monte Cross had no chance in the world to get the ball and the pitcher proved he could not when he jumped and missed it.

Connie Mack claimed an infield fly, but Sheridan ruled against his contention, saying that the rule was made to mean a ball possible for the fielder to catch. If it could not be fielded the ball went for whatever the batsman and baserunners could get on it. Sheridan was upheld at that time by President Johnson, of the American league, and the board of directors.

Would Pitch No-Hit Game.

"I've pitched two one-hit games this season, and before the year is over—perhaps before I leave here—I'm going to officiate in a no-hit bout." Frank Corridon, one of the many pitchers on the Philadelphia team, made this observation and fixed his face with an expression which conveyed the idea that he was not joshing. "On two occasions since I began getting money for enjoying myself out on the diamond, I have been near the no-hit mark, but on each occasion I was bunkoed out of the honor right at the last minute," continued Corridon. "The first time I was on the eve of no-hit bliss was two seasons ago, when I pitched against the Lancaster club, of the then outlaw league. Eight large and exciting innings had gone by and not a man of the opposing side had registered at station one on a safe drive. Two men had faced me in the ninth and two outs were chalked up against Lancaster. The third man hit a long fly to left field; the guardian out there gave chase and succeeded in getting both hands on the ball—but it didn't stick. To me and the other members of our team it looked like a muff. The official scorer for Lancaster, however, took the hit view of it—and my prospect of twirling a hitless game was gone.

"Last season I had pitched for eight innings and two outs without a man reaching first. 'Here,' I said to myself, 'is where I do it.' The next fellow rolled one to the first baseman; I was slow in covering the bag, and the man beat out the hit.' Again I was squelched. But never again on anything so close."

Both Are Prospering.

Oscar Pfotenhauer, a Sedalia boy, is now secretary of a new brewery, recently opened at Joplin, and is doing first rate. Z. Fielder, also a former Sedalian, is engaged in the concrete and cement business at Joplin and is likewise making money.

A Death Claim Paid.

E. M. Shields, clerk for Sedalia camp No 16, Woodmen of the World, is in receipt of a draft for $1.000 payable to Mrs. R. D. Hogan because of the death of her husband some time ago.

WAS KILLED BY A TRAIN

AN UNKNOWN MAN BETWEEN LAMONTE AND DRESDEN SATURDAY.

HE WAS ATTIRED AS A LABORER

Possibly 21 Years Old, and it May Be He Was Injured By a Freight Train Before Hit By the Passenger.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

An unidentified man was run over and instantly killed by Misouri Pacific train No 6, in charge of Conductor Frank Mount, with Engineer Alcorn in the cab of engine No. 6502, at a point two miles west of Dresden at 11:05 o'clock Saturday morning.

The train was running late and the man was not noticed until after the killing.

People residing in the vicinity of the place stated that the man was seen to lie down on the track twenty minutes before the killing took place.

From a passenger on the train the Democrat-Sentinel learned that the dead man was about 21 years old and was attired as a laborer. He wore a pair of greasy overalls, and in one of his pockets was found a pair of white cotton flannel gloves.

The belief of the passengers was that the victim had been injured before he was struck by the passenger train and killed.

One of his hands, the right, was badly mangled, all of it being missing except one finger, and it is thought that the man was injured by a freight train on which he was possibly stealing a ride an hour or so previously, as the lacerated flesh of the hand showed that the wound was not a fresh one.

The body was frightfully mangled, the head being crushed and other portions mutilated. The corpse was taken to Dresden for burial.

Coroner Guy Titsworth drove to Dresden, where, at 3 p. m., he held an inqquest over the remains, the jury returning a verdict that the man had been accidentally killed by Missouri Pacific train No. 6.

Not the slightest particle of information was learned about the dead man at the inquest, not a single witness being present who could throw any light on the killing. The man was 5 feet 6 inches tall, with red or sandy hair and blue eyes.

He wore a greenish brown coat, with red checks, a blue shirt with white spots, and dark trousers, on the outside of which he wore a pair of blue overalls. He also wore a pair of heavy shoes.

Near where the killing occurred a negro found an empty envelope on which was written, "Morris Denton, Tiedmont, Okla., Care C. Ussary."

HE IS FIFTY YEARS OLD

Ex-Alderman Frank Hulland Celebrated the Event.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

Ex-Alderman Frank Hulland, the well known contracting painter, celebrated his fiftieth birthday anniversary Saturday, and in honor of the event he entertained a number of guests at a sumptuous banquet at Blatterman & Rowe's restaurant at 9:30 o'clock last night.

An elegant menu of substantials and delicacies was served, and the affair will long be remembered by those fortunate enough to be present.

The invited guests were: A. R. Easton, Herman Klink, Howard Wood, James Card, Will Boullt, John L. Buckley, John Hegarty, Ed Love, Henry Smith, I. N. Sprecher, Al Yost, Pat Guihen, Al Bayne, Bob Rose and E. B. Burrowes.

"Jim" Card officiated as toastmaster, and well, too, did he perform his part. With that rare touch of eloquence that popularizes him with the ladies and causes him to be admired by his gentlemen friends, he "vociferated" in an indescribable manner to toasts and jokes that delighted every guest, and after the affair had been concluded those present were profuse in their complimentary remarks of the able manner in which the gallant police officer performed the ceremonies of toastmaster.

The guests departed at a late hour, wishing Mr. Hulland many returns of the day.

SLEUTH WITH MANY DISGUISES

She Asserts That a Woman is As Good As a Man in a Gun Fight, and Further Says That She is Always Ready.

Should you meet a good looking sailor boy, with a complexion something too good for one who follows the sea, take a second look at him, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. It may be Ethel King, the woman detective, of Philadelphia, in one of her many disguises.

Take a searching glance at the messenger boy who runs, with head down, to deliver a missive. It is possible that the female sleuth may be hiding her identity within that blue suit.

Look around you in opium scented Chinatown. The dapper woman who trips past the lookout at the gambling joint, with a side glance at the closed door, may be pretty Ethel King in the costume of her sex, but sent on a mission that is very unusual to a woman.

At home Miss King lives a quiet and secluded life. Few of her associates in the boarding house at which she has her room know what a distinguished personage is the dark eyed girl who is so frequently away an mysterious trips.

Absolutely without fear Miss King has acepted any dangerous work that has come to her in the line of duty. She has donned the uniform of a United States sailor and haunted the docks and navy yard vicinity in search for information regarding sailor criminals.

Being a small woman and looking rather diminutive in boys' clothes Miss King had no difficulty in assuming the character of a district messenger Mercury. She readily assumed the jargon of the corps, as well as the uniform of the messenger boy, and did valuable work in breaking up a series of pilferings and clever swindlings that the youngsters had caried on for years at the expense of the company and its customers.

She learned that the boys were in the habit of meeting in the street and exchanging caps, so that should a complaint be made of money collected on prepaid messages, or of cash missing from envelopes intrusted to the boys for delivery, it would be easy to establish an alibi. Miss King astounded the management of the company by her revelations concerning the tricks of the messenger boys and enabled the regular sleuths of the concern to checkmate the systematic stealings and guard against a repetition of them.

As a scullery girl Miss King assisted in the arrest of a notorious woman thief who had been in the habit of hiring out as a domestic for the purpose of allowing her criminal friends to enter and rob the house at night. The woman sleuth washed dishes and watched the other woman, and when the critical time came, and the house was raided in the dead of night, the would-be thieves were caught in a trap.

Miss King has assisted in the suppression of the opium traffic and of the gambling dens in Chinatown. She has made friends with the yellow man and in due time betrayed him to the police. She has been threatened time and again, but has not so far been attacked. Threats she ignores, and any one who has talked with her for a time is impressed with the idea that in a tight corner she could well take care of herself, for, as she says:

"A woman is as good as a man in a gun fight, and I'm always ready."
